ASHBY DE LA ZOUCH CASTLE

In the turbulent Middle Ages, William, Lord Hastings, built the tower of Ashby de la Zouch Castle both as a status symbol and to protect him from the enemy.

FACILITIES

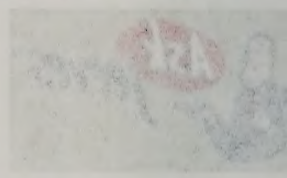
ADMISSION
1 April-31 October: open daily, 10am-6pm (6pm/dusk in October). 3 November-30 March 1997: open Wednesday-Sunday, 10am- 4pm, closed 1-2pm. Adults £1.50, concessions £1.10, children 80p.

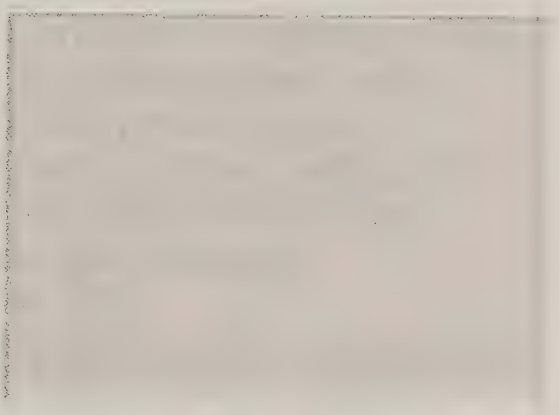
HOW TO GET THERE
Road: in Ashby de la Zouch, 12m S of derby on A50.



Ashby de-la-Zouch Castle

South Street, Ashby de la Zouch, Leicestershire
Telephone: (01530) 413343

One of the most impressive medieval castles in the Midlands. Originally a Norman Manor House, it was converted into a self-contained fortress by Lord Hastings in the 15th century. The magnificent Hastings Tower built in 1464 can still be climbed and was connected to the kitchens by an underground passage which can also be explored (but bring a torch!)



During the Civil War the castle was occupied by a Royalist Garrison and laid siege for over a year by the Parliamentarian Army until the Royalists surrendered in 1646. Also used by Sir Walter Scott for the famous tournament scenes in his classic historical romance "Ivanhoe".

Free car park nearby. Coach parking by arrangement with Ashby Tourist Information Centre, telephone: (01530) 411767. Disabled Visitors: Wheelchair access to grounds. Special events throughout the year. Free audio tour. Refreshments, toilets, wide range of heritage inspired gift ideas.

Open: 1st April-31st October daily, 10am-6pm (or dusk if earlier in October); 1st November-31st March 1999, Wednesday-Sunday, 10am-4pm.

Admission: Adults £2.50, Concessions £1.90, (5-16) £1.30. English Heritage members and under-5s free.

Ashby-de-la-Zouch Castle	In centre of Ashby-de-la-Zouch	The earliest parts of the castle date from the 12th century, but its most impressive feature is the tower built by the 1st Lord Hastings in the 15th century. The 12th century hall is the oldest part of the castle still standing. The solar nearby contained the apartments of the lord and his family; it has a fine chimneypiece with moulded jambs and an elaboratly carved lintel. The chapel was built by Lord Hastings between 1464-1483.

The unusual name of Ashby de la Zouch is derived from the Breton nobleman, who inherited the estate through marriage in the 12th century. Ashby developed into a Spa town in the 19th century, it has a long wide main street, with fine Elizabethan half-timbered houses and delightful bow fronted Georgian shops.

Ashby de la Zouch Castle - Built in the 15th century by the first Lord Hastings. The castle is an impressive ruin of a late medieval castle, dominated by its magnificent tower. Sir Walter Scott took Ashby Castle as the setting for the tournament in his novel "Ivanhoe", it was here that Mary Queen of Scots was held prisoner for a time by Lord Hastings's grandson first Earl of Huntingdon.

St. Helen's Church - The East Window of the Parish Church of St. Helen's in Ashby, has some interesting heraldic stained glass, which was removed from the chapel of the ruined castle.

Here you can see the only known surviving finger pillory, a device made up of two beams with grouves cut in each. Anyone foolish enough to disrupt the service in church, would have his or her fingers locked in the pillory as punishment.

Ashby De La Zouch Museum - This small friendly Award Winning Museum contains displays on Ashby's fascinating history, also a Model of Ashby Castle under siege.

Heart of the National Forest Visitor Centre - Situated at Moira, near Ashby (B5003). The Heart of the National Forest Visitor Centre is the hub of the whole National Forest, featuring forest displays, a placeto eat and shop, events, cycle hire and woodland walks.

The outdoor Forest Experience is a year-round opportunity to relax and have fun with family and friends, all in a mature and growing woodland setting. There is an amphitheatre for music, plays and shows, a "Canopy Walk", a "Willow Bridge", a challenging "Adventure Woodland Play" area, woodland trails, sculpture and a "Forest Garden".

Moira Furnace - An impressive early 19th century blast furnace, one of the best preserved in Europe. There are also woodland walks and a children's playground.

Ashby Canal - Enjoy a walk along the towpath, passing through the beautiful rural countryside of South West Leicestershire. This is the ideal link between Hinckley, Bosworth Battlefield, Marker Bosworth, Battlefield Railway, Measham Museum and Moira Furnace. There are picnic areas at Gopsall Wharf and Basin Bridge.

Snibston Discovery Park - Near Ashby on the Coalville road. Miners once spent long gruelling hours underground at the former Snibston Colliery, visitors of all ages can now have hours of fun at Snibston Discovery Park's 100 acre site.

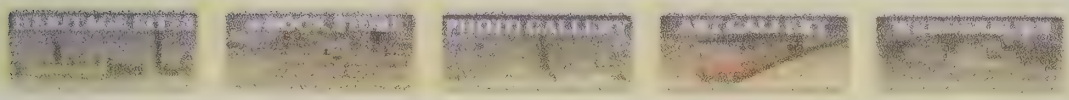
THE HERITAGE TRAIL



ASHBY DE LA ZOUCH CASTLE

In the 15th century, Edward IV granted Ashby De La Zouch Castle to Lord Hastings who converted what was no more than a fortified manor house into a grand castle, adding a chapel, and the Hastings Tower. Now partly ruined, this tower remains indicative of the presence it held over the castle site, soaring to the great height of 80ft. The main part of the tower is rectangular in plan and four storeys high, with a smaller rectangular structure, attached to the eastern wall, built to the same height but containing seven levels within. Surviving parts of the tower that stand to full height offer wonderful views across Leicestershire, as well as providing close-up inspection of the decorative semi-octagonal turrets on the remaining corners of the tower.

Not being centrally located, as was more usual, Hastings Tower looks across the 'wilderness' - an area of land used as castle gardens in the 16th century - to the two smaller towers built in the south east and south west corners of this area. Each tower is quite different, one being octagonal in shape, and the other a quatrefoil. Some of the earliest buildings on the site, dating from the 12th century, can be seen in sections of wall that belonged to the Norman hall, buttery and pantry.

The hall, the oldest existing structure, has undergone many changes since it was originally built but there is plenty of evidence from the early period. Similarly with the buttery and pantry, even though only the north and east walls are still standing.

To the west of the hall is a much later kitchen, with 15th century windows and doorways remaining, and the passageway used to connect the North and South Courtyards either side of the original buildings. A solar, situated to the east of the hall, was extended at about the same time and still contains a 15th century fireplace.

A very impressive ruin just asking to be explored. From the depths of its dark, underground passageways to the energetic climb to the top of Hastings Tower, Ashby del la Zouch is a fascinating castle. Even its proximity to a modern housing estate really does not detract from the pleasant and peaceful atmosphere within the walls.

CREST: Out of a Coronet composed of four Fleur de lys set upon a Rim Gules a demi lion Or supporting a staff proper flying therefrom a Banner paly of six Gold and Azure a Quarter Ermine. Mantled Gules doubled Argent.

Motto 'DEEDS NOT WORDS'.
Granted 9th February 1956.

Picture used with permission, do not reproduce.

The ash tree, within a border carrying five of the ten gold roundels on red of the arms of the Zouche family, symbolises the name. The hill on which the tree stands refers to the uplands of the district, especially Bardon Hill, the highest point in Leicestershire. The black chief, with the ermine cinquefoil, from the arms of the County Council, represents the Leicestershire coalfield. The wheatsheaves allude to the agriculture which, with the mining, constitutes the principal industries of the district.
The red and white of the wreath and mantling are the County liveries. The red fleurs de lys of which the crown is composed come from the arms of George Stephenson, who lived at Ravenstone and built the Leicester and Swannington, one of the earliest railways. The gold lion is that of the Beaumont family of Coleorton and Grace Dieu, and the banner shows the arms of the Shirleys, Earls Ferrers, of Staunton Harold.
The motto is a reflection of the Council's progressive attitude, and has a local significance in that it comes from one of the works of the late Elizabethan dramatists, Beaumont and Fletcher, Francis Beaumont being one of the Coleorton family.

Motto 'SANS DIEU RIEN'-Without God, nothing.
Granted 9th November 1960.

The castle and mount refer to the ancient and historic castle at Ashby. Originally a Norman Manor House, it was converted into a self-contained fortress in the 15th Century by Lord William Hastings. After the Civil War the castle was partly destroyed and largely forgotten. The black maunches or sleeves and the lion are from the arms of the Hastings and Abney families respectively, the family of Abney-Hastings, being so long and closely associated with the town.
The mural crown refers to corporate government, and the fleurs-de-lys are from the arms of Ashby's twin town of Pithivier. They also refer to the sojourn in Ashby Castle of Mary, Queen of Scotts, as the form part of the Scottish arms. The bull's head is derived from the supporter of the County's arms and the bezants are from the arms of Lord Zouch.

ARMS: Or two Pallets between six Lozenges Sable on a Chief Azure a Maunch between two Garbs of the Field.
CREST: Out of a Coronet composed of six Lozenges Gules set upon a Rim Or an Oak Tree rooted upon a Rock proper; Mantled Sable doubled Or.

Motto 'EX TERRA OPES'-From the earth, wealth.
Granted 23rd March 1956.

The six black diamonds allude to coal mining and to the six wards which comprise the district, with two black lines indicative of railway lines. The railway, being one of the earliest in the country, was constructed by Robert Stephenson, son of George Stephenson of railway fame, to convey coal from the pit head to the marketing terminal at Leicester. The blue of the chief is taken from the arms of Beaumont, the maunch or sleeve from the arms of Hastings and the sheaves from the arms of Comyn. These three families have played an important part in the history of the district.
The oak tree represents Charnwood Forest, upon a rock, allusive to the volcanic rocks in the area. The Coronet composed of six Lozenges (only four visible) is red to enhance the colour effect of the arms, and is allusive to the blood shed in the winning of the coal.
The motto refers to the coalmining, quarrying and agricultural activities in the Urban District.

The ancient market town of Ashby de la Zouch in North West Leicestershire is about as far away from the sea as it is possible to get in Great Britain which is probably why some wags earlier in the century saw fit to write a music-hall song with the title "Ashby de la Zouch by the Sea".

It is probable that there was a settlement in the area in Roman times. There was certainly a manor of Ashby at the time of the Norman invasion which the Domesday Book valued at the princely sum of ten shillings.

The name Ashby is Saxon and simply means "Homestead where Ash Trees Grow". In 1160 a Norman nobleman, Alain de Parrhoet la Zouch inherited the manor and his name was added making Ashby de la Zouch.

Ashby Castle is the setting for an important scene from Walter Scott's novel, "Ivanhoe". In a tournament held there Ivanhoe and Robin Hood both won fame. Occasional mock tournaments are still held in the remains of the Castle.

Sir William Hastings built the castle in the early 15th century. During the Civil War it was a Royalist stronghold. It was beseiged in 1644 by Parliamentary forces and surrendered in 1646. Cromwell's forces slighted (or partially destroyed) the castle. From time to time the Sealed Knot re-enact the battles of the Civil War in the castle grounds.

In the 19th century Ashby became a spa town. The water had to be imported from the nearby village of Moira (where it had been discovered in a coal mine!) Cook's Tours used to run trips to Ashby for people to "take the waters". The Ivanhoe Baths was a magnificent building consisting of Pump Rooms and Ballroom, Billiard Room and Card Room. Many of the Georgian style buildings in the town were built to accomodate visitors to the Baths. There was also a swimming pool which was used as late as 1920. The buildings were demolished in 1962.

Photographs

Beware - large file sizes

The town today has a goodly number of pubs - some dating back as early as the 14th Century, and is equally well endowed with Churches including 2 Anglican, a Roman Catholic, a Methodist, a Baptist and a Congregational Church. There is also an Alliance (Evangelical) Church and a Christadelphian Ecclessia.
Two small Pentecostal groups, an Elim and an Assemblies of God (Ashby International Church) also meet.

Ashby de la Zouch - The Hastings Family

On 17 February 1462, Sir William Hastings, the trusted friend of the new Yorkist King, Edward IV, was granted the manor. The Hastings were to bring fame and fortune to the town and have maintained an unbroken link to the present day. In 1474, Sir William was given royal licence to fortify the manor house and over the next decade it was transformed into a magnificent castle - with its own chapel, a large improved kitchen and the 90ft Great, or Hastings Tower. The town became for a while the headquarters of the greatest man in the kingdom after the King.

Ashby Castle

However, in the troubles that followed Edward IV's death in April 1483, Hastings was accused by the Lord Protector, the Duke of Gloucester, of treason. He was executed at the Tower of London in June and his lands forfeit. The family were not to suffer long as Gloucester, now King Richard III, in turn met his death at Bosworth in August 1485. William's son Edward, regained all the family lands and thanks to a beneficial marriage, added the Baronies of Hungerford, Botreaux and Moleyns and huge estates in Wiltshire and the south-west of England.

Edward's son George, succeeding to the titles in 1506, was much more ambitious for the family fortunes; in 1509 he married Anne, daughter of the illustrious Duke of Buckingham. A favourite of Henry VIII, George regularly attended court, earning his King's gratitude, a Privy Councillorship and the Earldom of Huntingdon in 1529. Further prospects were opened up when his son, Francis married Katherine Pole, a senior descendant of the Yorkist line. Francis succeeded his father as second Earl, in 1544 and also frequented court. He died in 1560 and his splendid alabaster table-tomb can be seen in St Helen's Church.

The third Earl, Henry Hastings had to tread carefully as he had been widely canvassed as the possible Protestant candidate for the throne during Elizabeth I's near fatal illness from smallpox in 1562. The Queen's suspicions must have abated however, as he was made joint custodian of the captive Mary, Queen of Scots in 1569. Mary stayed at Ashby Castle on two occasions: in the last week of November 1569, on her way from Tutbury Castle to Coventry; and for the night of Thursday, 22 September 1586, on her last tragic journey to Fotheringhay and execution. The third Earl, a strong believer in Puritanism, made Ashby a major centre of protestantism and also founded Ashby Boys' Grammar School on 10 August 1567, on firm puritan principles.

Anne of Denmark, the wife of James I, visited the castle in 1603 on her way from York to London. The fifth Earl, who succeeded to the title in June 1603, kept up the establishment at Ashby in the style of princely magnificence. Upwards of 70 persons dined and supped daily at his table. A splendid masque was staged in the castle ground in August 1606, in honour of the first visit of the Countess of Derby. In 1617, James I himself visited and the expenses were so great as nearly to cripple the Earl's fortune.

In 1634 King Charles I and Queen Henrietta Maria also imposed themselves on the Earl with their suite. However, far worse was to come. With the outbreak of the Civil War in 1642 the Earl's second son, Henry Hastings, declared himself strongly for the King. Ashby Castle became the headquarters of his 'Flying Army' and a vital link between the Royalist south-west and north. The castle itself was strengthened with outlying earthworks. Mount House, the triangular fort which still exists on the Leicester Road, was built to protect the east side of the castle from direct attack. Tunnels between this fort and the main kitchen, between the kitchen and the Hastings Tower (and probably others) were constructed to convey food, munitions and men when necessary. Visits by Henrietta Maria, in June 1643 and by the King himself in May and June 1645 (after the disaster of the Battle of Naseby) were a mixed blessing. As the Royalist cause became hopeless the castle was more closely besieged between September 1645 and its surrender in March 1646. Henry Hastings, now Lord Loughborough, marched out with the honours of war but into exile.

In 1648, Lord Grey, Hastings' great enemy, was appointed Governor of the Castle and in November of the same year a parliamentary committee, sitting in Leicester, ordered the sleighting (partial demolition) of the castle to render it useless for further defence. One wall was mined in both the great kitchen tower and the Hastings Tower. It was enough. The Hastings family moved their main home to Donington Park and the castle gradually fell into ruin, not helped by Ashbeians wishing to improve their own residences!

Luckily for the locals and tourists, Sir Walter Scott, a frequent visitor to Sir George Beaumont's home, Coleorton Hall, chose to set part of this first romantic novel with an English setting at Ashby. He placed the famous tournament, where the Black Knight and Ivanhoe fought, a mile to the north of the town and imagined Prince John holding 'high revelry' within the castle walls. Besides bringing literary fame to Ashby, the publication of the novel in 1820 drew attention to the forlorn state of the castle, and the first Marquis of Hastings took steps for its greater preservation. Today, the castle is cared for by English Heritage and is a popular venue for special events as well as a marvellous place to visit at any time.

The Manor House, now a successful independent school, stands in what was formerly the north courtyard of the castle. It was built in 1832 as a residence for the first Marquis' agent, on the site of Ashby Place, the home of the famous religious leader Selina, Countess of Huntingdon.

Loudon Memorial

The Loudoun Memorial stands at the junction of South Street and Bath Street. Recently cleaned to its former glory, it dominates its immediate surroundings. It is a memorial to Edith Maud Hastings, the Countess of Loudoun, wife of Charles Frederick Clifton, later first Baron Donington and sister of the fourth Marquis of Hastings. It cost £3000 and was unveiled on 24 July 1879, to 'commemorate the general estimation' in which the Countess was held by the townspeople. It was built to the design of Sir George Gilbert Scott R.A. in the style of an Eleanor Cross on the site of the communal well known as 'Gawby's Hole', a place where the town gossips met and collected their water. Benjamin Disraeli is said to have penned the inscription on the side of the monument.

Ashby de la Zouch - The Zouche

How did the town get its distinctive name?

'Ashby' first appears in the Domesday Book (1086) as 'Ascebi' which comes from two Scandinavian words - Aski's 'by' or settlement.

Alan la Zouch had acquired the manor by 1160 and added his family name to distinguish it from other Midland Ashbys.

Ashby Castle

The Zouche held the town until 1399 but although members of the family fought at Crecy and served their monarchs well, it remained in the backwater of national affairs. They did improve the manor house, building in stone a hall, solar and outbuildings, much of which can still be seen as part of the larger castle.

The manor changed hands on several occasions in the 15th century, finally coming into the possession of James Butler, Earl of Wiltshire who fought for the Lancastrians at the Battle of Towton and was beheaded after that defeat.

Castle Ashby

The Heritage and Tradition of Castle Ashby

The history of Castle Ashby begins in the 11th century, when Judith, niece of William the Conqueror, married Waltherof, Earl of Northampton and Huntingdon, and the King granted her several manors in the neighbourhood. The manor was then leased by Hugh of Ashby and his descendants until about 1300, when Langton, Bishop of Coventry, purchased Ashby and won permission from the King to 'embattle' the mansion. The original castle was pulled down and the Ashby Estates were acquired by Sir William Compton, ancestor of the present owner, in 1512. Work on the present building was begun in 1574 by Henry, 1st Lord Compton, whose arms can be found in the doorway at the foot of the west turret. Building continued untill 1600, when Queen Elizabeth stayed in the house. King James I was a frequent guest. During the 17th century, various additions were made to Castle Ashby, notably by Inigo Jones. The parapet of stone lettering around the top of the house is dated 1624. In the Civil War the family fought on the side of the King. In 1643 Spencer, the 2nd Earl, was killed at the battle of Hopton Heath. After his death, the east front of the house was set on fire and severely damaged. The marks of the flames can still clearly be seen on the lintels of the windows.

In 1688 Henry Compton, Bishop of London and uncle of the 4th Earl, found himself in conflict with the Roman Catholic King James II. He retreated to Castle Ashby and lived for two years in a secret part of the Castle, now known as the Bishop's Rooms. Later, when King James was deposed, the Castle gave refuge to Princess Anne before she was escorted to Oxford to meet her father, the new King William III. In October 1695, the King himself came to stay at Castle Ashby and personally suggested the planting of four avenues of trees opposite each face of the house. In 1760, Capability Brown provided designs for much of the parklands and built the Dairy and the Temple against the Menagerie. The present owner of Castle Ashby is the 7th Marquess of Northampton, a direct descendant of Sir William Compton.

Ashby de la Zouch

The town's rich history is set against a backdrop of people and events shaping this country over the last 1000 years. The name Ashby is said to be derived from the Saxon 'AESC', meaning an Ash, and 'BYR', a habitation.

The unusual ending 'de la Zouch' was added in 1160 when a Norman Nobleman, Alain de Parrhoet la Zouch inherited his position as Lord of the Manor by marriage. During Norman times Ashby was recorded in the Doomsday Book as a settlement of about 100 people situated around the present site of St. Helen's Church.

In the 15th Century, Edward IV granted Ashby Manor to his favourite counsellor, Lord Hastings. He converted the manor house into a castle and rebuilt nearby St Helen's Church. The town became the main seat of the Hastings family and there followed a long period of prosperity and growth.

The Grammar School was founded in 1567 and skilled craftsmen such as silversmiths, gold beaters, pewterers, swordsmiths and clock makers began to move into the 'courts' at the rear of Market Street.

During the Civil War, a Royalist garrison occupied Ashby Castle under the command of Henry Hastings, who became Lord Loughborough. However, following a yearlong siege of the Castle by the Parliamentarian Army, the Royalists surrendered in 1646 (a model of the Castle under siege is on display at Ashby Museum).

After the war, the Castle was partly destroyed and largely forgotten until the publication of Sir Waiter Scott's classic historical romance 'Ivanhoe' in 1820. He used the Castle as a backdrop for the fictional tournament in which Ivanhoe was victorious on the field of combat and Robin Hood won the archery competition by splitting the shaft of his opponents arrow with his own.

In the 19th Century, the town's fortunes prospered further as it tried to become a Spa Town. Water with medicinal qualities had been discovered nearby at a coal mine in Moira and transported to Ashby. The magnificent Ivanhoe Baths were built in 1822, along with the adjacent Hastings Hotel (now Royal Hotel). The opening of the railway through the town in 1849 and subsequent pioneering rail tours organised by Thomas Cook from Leicester, brought a further influx of visitors to the town. Unfortunately, after 40 years of prosperity, the Ivanhoe Baths began to decline and were closed in 1884.

Today, the town's prosperity is based on light industry and its excellent range of shops. Due to its geographical location, Ashby is a much sought after residential area being situated close to the major urban areas of Birmingham, Derby, Leicester and Nottingham. A continuing link with the past is Ashby's Statutes Fair which has been held every September since it was started by Charter of Henry III in 1219. Therefore, while Ashby has all the amenities and facilities expected of a modern town, it has lost none of its original character and charm.

Burton-on-Trent

The town is situated in the centre of England, in the South East of Staffordshire, close to the border with Derbyshire, 126 miles north of London. It is 11 miles South of Derby on the A38, and almost equidistant between the cities of Birmingham (to the South West) on the A38, Leicester (to the South East) and Stoke-on-Trent (to the North West) on the A511 (formerly the A50), and Nottingham (to the North East)) all of which are approximately 30 miles away.

The town straddles the River Trent and the Trent & Mersey Canal passes through. Trains stop on their route between Nottingham and Birmingham.

Burton-on-Trent is world renowned for the brewing of beer. A centuries-old industry, which was started by the monks of Burton Abbey, and has persisted to this day thanks to the high quality of the water drawn from wells deep around the town. The heyday of the brewing industry was at the turn of the century, when dozens of breweries were in operation. A dense network of brewery railways criss-crossed the town joining and supplying them. The last trains ran in the 1960's and virtually all trace of a once distinctive part of the Burton scenery has disappeared.

Until recently four breweries continued to brew within the town. Many of the old breweries closed or merged to create huge multinational companies such as- Bass's, Ind Coope and Marston's. The larger Carlsberg Tetley bought up Ind Coope Burton Brewery early in the 1990's, the old Ind Coope Brewery was to be closed down. Thankfully Bass's, who's brewery backs on to the old Ind Coope site, agreed to buy it's old rival, thus creating one of the biggest breweries in the world. Carlsberg Tetley remains in name only now having been its self merged into Basses. Sadly some much loved beers like Ind Coope's "Burton Ale" looks set to disappear into oblivion.

Belvoir Castle

The thrust of Britain's history has been a struggle between the rich and poor, a never-ending conflict between the classes. Even today, Britain remains divided between the haves and have- nots. Nowhere is this division better emphasized than in the majestic stately home, the lavishly decorated mansions that are still scattered about the countryside. Many of these wondrous homes have origins in the Middle Ages, starting their existence as castles, fortified military establishments. Over time, as their purpose evolved, so did their structural designs, and today we may experience the splendor of the wealthy and powerful in such homes. Ironically, the names of these marvels still reflect their original function, as castles.

Belvoir Castle in Leicestershire must more accurately be viewed as a stately home. However, it began its life as a true castle, an earth and timber fortification erected in the years shortly after the Norman Conquest. Pronounced "beever", the castle's majestic name dates to Norman times and means "beautiful view", a very fitting label for this picturesque estate. Belvoir Castle was begun by Robert de Todeni, who served as William the Conqueror's Standard Bearer during the Battle of Hastings. Probably, a motte castle was built at Belvoir no later than the 1080's, a structure that would have been quite typical of its day.

Little is known of this initial fortification, and we can only presume that it was soon reinforced with stone, for a medieval seal depicts the castle with a large, rectangular keep and masonry curtain wall. Robert de Todeni was also responsible for the construction of a priory adjacent to the castle, and was buried inside the chapel in 1088. Having been unearthed in the 18th century, Robert now rests inside the castle (still in his coffin!). Interestingly, Robert's descendants were surnamed Albini, and were members of one of the most powerful of medieval England's noble families (William de Albini was a masterful castle-builder; see earlier article on Arundel Castle). When the last male Albini heir died in 1247, Belvoir Castle passed through marriage to Robert de Ros and his heirs.

The de Ros family maintained control of the castle until 1464, when Thomas, Lord Ros, was executed for his support of the Lancastrians during the Wars of the Roses. Consequently, Belvoir and its estates passed to William, Lord Hastings, having already survived an onslaught by Edward IV three years earlier. Unfortunately, Belvoir Castle was fated to fall into ruin, after another attack by faithful friends of Lord Ros and quarrying by Lord Hastings, who used the stone and roofing lead for another Leicestershire castle, Ashby de la Zouch - a marvel of medieval construction that also has survived the ravages of time. After Lord Hastings' tenure at the castle, it fell into profound ruin.

Shortly after Henry VII gained Britain's throne (the direct result of the Wars of the Roses), Belvoir Castle was granted once again to the de Ros family, and it soon passed to Sir Robert Manners with his marriage to the de Ros heiress, Eleanor. Robert's grandson, Thomas Manners, the first Earl of Rutland, initiated the castle's rebirth in about 1523; its rebuilding effort was completed some 32 years later, by the second Earl of Rutland. What was created was typical of the Tudor age: no longer needing the protection of massive masonry walling, the castle became a modestly fortified manor house fit for the rich or famous.

From the mid-16th century to the present time, Belvoir Castle has remained the property of the Rutlands, first earls and later to become dukes. The Earls of Rutland were prominent during the reigns of Elizabeth I (when the 5th earl was imprisoned for treason) and James I (who was lavishly entertained at the castle). Yet, Belvoir Castle fell victim to the chaos of the English Civil War in the mid 1600's. Its Royalist garrison was heavily besieged in 1645, and in 1649, Cromwell ordered the "slighting" of the castle, rendering it useless.

Another Belvoir Castle was erected on the site in 1654 and finished in 1668. Amazingly, the present castle is yet another regeneration of the castle, for much of the 17th century structure was eventually torn down. And it was not until the 1800's that reconstruction was begun to any degree. Despite devastation by a fire in 1816, most of the castle was saved. The final product is what we see today: a marvelous castellated home that simply takes one's breath away!

The Dukes of Rutland still own and occupy Belvoir Castle, and keep it in a state of perpetual splendor. Its exteriors are a jumble of shapes molded into a cohesive unit of oranges and cream colors, corner towers adorned with battlemented turrets, and an impressive round tower which complements the rectangular structures on the opposite facade. Surrounding the structure are lovely gardens hallmarked with fine sculpture and colorful flowers.

Inside, the rooms are ornamented with uplifting vaulting, intricate arcading, brilliant gilded ceilings, luscious tapestries, an extensive collection of paintings and portraiture, silks and statuary. Visitors are welcomed into the Guardroom, up the Grand Staircase, through the Ballroom, the ornate Chinese Bedroom and Dressing Room, the splendid Elizabeth Saloon (named for the 5th Duchess of Rutland, who directed the castle's rebirth after the Great Fire) with its amazing gilt and painted ceilings and mirrored walls, the Grand Dining Room (equally dazzling), the King's Rooms, two galleries, and the impressive albeit simple (relatively speaking) family Chapel. On the lower floors, the enormous kitchen and beer cellars are also viewable. The interesting Regimental Museum of the 17th/21st Lancers is also located inside the castle, and worth a visit.

In all, Belvoir Castle offers us an intriguing, fanciful passage into the world of the wealthiest of England's classes. We can only marvel at its existence, combatting time, neglect, intentional devastation and fire, and appreciate its splendor.

Belvoir Castle is located about 7 miles west of Grantham, Leicestershire, in the heart of England. It is best accessed via the A607 Grantham-Melton Mowbray Road, turning west on a minor roadway leading to the property. Look for signs. The castle and grounds are open regularly during the summer, and only on Sundays during October. Check for opening hours. Fee.

Kirby Castle

Kirby Muxloe Castle

Kirby Castle 1481-1483

The immediate ancestor of the country house was the fortified house of which two of the finest examples are Kirby Castle and Ashby-de-la-Zouch castle, both in Leicestershire. Hoskin says: "Neither Ashby nor Kirby is a true castle but a strongly fortified dwelling house built by a powerful feudal Lord, who had good reason to barricade himself in". The time was the Wars of the Roses and the powerful Lord: William Lord Hastings. Unfortunately because of William's untimely execution, Kirby Castle was never finished, but the ruins remain significant, as are of the finest examples of Mediaeval brickwork in England. Also the history of the actual building is set out in detail owing to the fortunate survival of the complete building accounts from the 22nd of October 1480 to the 6th December 1484*. These were kept by the Clerk of Works, Roger Bowlett and were written in a mixture of Latin French and English.

The Hastings family first had a connection with Kirby Manner when Margaret Herle, daughter of Sir William Herle and Lord of Kirby Muxloe Manner during the reigns of Edward I and II (1272-1307) married Sir Ralph Hastings. William, born in 1430 was a supporter of the Yorkist cause and fought in successful battles including Mortimer's Cross (1461) for the Yorkists against the Lancastrians.

He was a devoted servant and friend to the young Earl of March, later to be crowned Edward IV. He became chamberlain of the Royal Household, Master of the Mint and held many other notable offices, some of them in the Midlands. In 1462, after he led a division to victory in the Battle of Barnet, he was knighted and appointed Lieutenant of Calais.

In 1474 Lord Hastings received a licence to fortify three houses across the Midlands, at Ashby, Kirby Muxloe and Bagworth.Being a man of great wealth and integrity he could well afford these building projects and could indulge his love of fine houses by employing highly skilled workmen and quality materials.

Kirby Muxloe Castle, which was replacing an earlier stone-built moated manor house called Pakeman's Place, lay low near Kirby Brook so that ample water could be diverted for the moat. It was planned to be rectangular with a tower at each corner and a gatehouse in the middle of the north-west side.The towers and the gatehouse were to have been three storeys, connected by two storey buildings with only the towers and the gatehouse rising directly out of the moat.

This picture shows the remains of Pakeman's Place, the manor house which preceded the castle.

Work began in October 1480 by demolishing part of the original old moated manor house, the old gatehouse and several other buildings were cleared but the hall and the north wing were kept to form part of the new house and their foundations may be seen today, within the lines of the new house. So little of the older manor remains that its date can only be estimated at middle of the fourteenth century. By March and April 1481, debris of the demolished buildings was removed and timber for the new bridge was prepared.

In May 1481 building work began in earnest with many workmen being employed, some from Wales. Apparently the moat was finished by mid-September as the regular payments to the "dykers" stopped at this time. The bricks were supplied by John Vaux or Fauxe but were made on site in a kiln called John Eles Kiln. The firing (or burning) of the bricks was supervised by Antony Docheman, who was paid tenpence a week, two pence more than the ordinary men, and he was clearly a foreigner - a Fleming. He fired 100,00 bricks in the kiln a week, burning 78 loads of brush wood at a site called Breeke Place In total 1,340,500 bricks were made.

The Gatehouse

By May or June 1482 floors and windows were put into some of the towers and by the autumn of 1482 the West and East towers were nearly finished and covered in. Building work continued at a pace without a break throughout the winter 1482-1483 and by January 1483 the vault over the gatehouse was being built so that brick laying on the gatehouse could commence and rapid progress was made.

Edward IV's untimely death at the age of 40 in April 1483 significantly affected the future building of kirby Castle. This left William in a precarious position with his patron and protector dead. As he was intensely disliked by the Queen, Elizabeth Woodville, he supported the appointment of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, as sole protector to the new 12 year old king Edward the V. William's loyalty to the son of the old king was irreproachable and for this reason he was an obstacle to Richard's ambition to seize the throne from his nephew. Thus he was beheaded without a trial on June 14th 1483 (only two months after the death of Edward IV). Mancini, a Roman scholar commented: "Thus fell Hastings, killed not by those enemies he had always feared, but by a friend whom he never doubted".

After the execution building work at the castle ceased immediately and from the 23 June until the 1st September 1483 the accounts were only made every 3 weeks instead of weekly. But Lord Hasting's estates were not seized by the Crown as was customary after execution, so his widow was able to complete some of the project, albeit in a more modest fashion. All accounts of building ceased in December 1484.

Walter Hastings , buried in Kirby in 1616, and great-grandson of William, 1st Lord Hastings was the last male Hastings to occupy the castle.

The 18th century saw the castle plundered for its bricks when the East Tower was almost demolished by the locals who were in need of building materials, especially the Castle Farm. By 1911 the ruined castle was in very bad repair - completely covered in ivy, trees grew on top of its walls and the moat was silted up. Only the excellence of the mortar used prevented it from falling down, Hence the owner, Richard Winstanley of Braunstone, put the building under the protection of the Ministry of Works. Repairs to both the castle and the moat were undertaken. The chief damage to the brickwork was at water level in the moat where weathering by frost had taken place. The brick work below the water level was in good condition. During the clearing and levelling of the area within the castle, the foundations of the old manor house were rediscovered and left exposed. Now they are easily distinguished from the work of Lord Hastings. The moat was recut and cleared.

English Heritage now has responsibility for the Castle and an excellent guide book is available.

Finest Medieval brick work in England - note the black brickwork decorations on the gatehouse; over the doorway are the initials WH and on the left turreta is a decoration looking like half a man.

- The vaunted brick built spiral staircases, each different.
- The advanced sanitary arrangements (at least 7 garderobes).
- The vaulted ceiling.
- The gun ports for cannon are among the earliest known ever, though they were ill-sited so that firing would have caused damage to the castle itself.
- The West Tower which is the best preserved part of the castle, projecting 6 feet into the moat.

The castle is now open to the public from the 1st of April to the 31st of October at weekends and Bank Holidays from 12.00 am to 5.00 pm.

DNA Test Results (Alleles) for Project Members

* Haplogroups in green have been confirmed by SNP testing. Haplogroups in red have been predicted by Family Tree DNA based on unambiguous results in the individual's personal page. This has been placed on this GAP page for your ease and convenience. Please note that for any predicted results we see no reason for ordering a SNP test to confirm the Haplogroup. if a – is in the HAPLO field then we feel that the comparative results are not clear and unambiguous and if the kit holder wants to know their SNP with 100% confidence they may consider ordering a SNP confirmation test.

Recent Ancestral Origins

Welcome to the database of RECENT ANCESTRAL ORIGINS (RAO). The results below show the ancestral origin of those you match or nearly match in the RAO. Exact matches show people who are the closest to you genetically. The ancestral origin information is provided by each testee, and is only as accurate as the testee's knowledge. Testees are instructed to answer "Unknown Origin" when their ancestor's origin is uncertain or not known.

The Ancestral origin shows where they have reported to have lived. Since many persons migrated over the past few centuries, you will typically see matches in more than one country.

If you see "MDKO" and a country name of "Unknown Origin", it means that the country informed by the testee is not the ancestral country of origin, but rather the "Most Distant Known Origin". Example:

12 MARKER Y-DNA MATCHES

EXACT MATCHES

COUNTRY (NUMBER OF ENTRIES)	COMMENTS	YOUR MATCHES
Unknown (1)	MDKO - Antiqua	1

In this case, the person in question could have a typical European or African Haplogroup, but reported the known country of origin as Antiqua – the place where his European or African ancestor migrated to.

Incorrect origins provided by testees may lead to search results that do not seem logical. for example: Assume your ancestors are from England, but your search results show the ancestral origin of your matches as England, France, AND one match shows an origin of Native American. Does that mean that your ancestors relatives may have lived in England and France? Yes. Does it mean that your ancestor was also a Native American? No. This means that a settler in America had a child (likely with a Native American woman), the child was brought up as a Native American, and that, over time, the family has "forgotten" the European ancestor, and believe their ancestry to be Native American.

Over the span of generations people tend to move, as do borders, so nationality or ethnicity becomes subjective. For example, testees may enter Germany for ancestral origin, because the land of their ancestors is Germany today, but the land could have been held by Denmark for many centuries.

To see how your ancestral origin is recorded in our database, click on the link above entitled Update Contact Information. You may also update your paternal and maternal ancestral origin on the Update Contact Information page.

For information purposes, the Recent Ancestral Origin search also displays results for those who are near matches. A near match is either one step or two steps from your result. An exact match is 12/12 or 25/25. A one step match is 11/12 or 24/25 and the magnitude of the mismatch is 1. A two step match is 10/12 or 23/25 and the magnitude of both mismatches is 1, or it is 11/12 or 24/25 and the magnitude of the mismatch is 2. Near matches show where those who are distantly related to you have migrated over time.

The results below compare your Family Tree DNA Y-DNA STR test with the world-wide database of Dr. Hammer and customers who have had their SNP tested by us. The comparative Haplogroups shown below were confirmed by SNP (Single Nucleotide Polymorphism) tests at Dr. Hammer's lab, which uses the YCC nomenclature. Haplogroups represent fractures in the tree and are tied to deep ancestry (think 10,000 or 10's of 1000's of years) and are shown in the human Phylogenetic tree. Please note that countries in this database are listed by the place one came from or currently lives. The value therefore is that it tells researches about migratory patterns, and gives information about the age of the 'group' of people -- after all, everyone on the tree that isn't in Haplogroup A and B have lived outside of Africa for at least 60,000 years - and the story is how you got where you live now.

Haplogroup Descriptions

R1a1 The R1a lineage is believed to have originated in the Eurasian Steppes north of the Black & Caspian Seas. This lineage is thought to descend from a population of the Kurgan culture, known for the domestication of the horse (circa 3000 B.C.E.). These people were also believed to be the first speakers of the Indo-European language group. This lineage is found in central & western Asia, India, and in Slavic populations of Europe.

R1b1 Haplogroup R1b1 is the most common haplogroup in European populations. It is believed to have expanded throughout Europe as humans re-colonized after the last glacial maximum 10-12 thousand years ago. This lineage is also the haplogroup containing the Atlantic modal haplotype.

R1b1c Haplogroup R1b1c is the most common haplogroup in European populations. It is believed to have expanded throughout Europe as humans re-colonized after the last glacial maximum 10-12 thousand years ago. This lineage is also the haplogroup containing the Atlantic modal haplotype.

R1b1c6 Haplogroup R1b1c is the most common haplogroup in European populations. It is believed to have expanded throughout Europe as humans re-colonized after the last glacial maximum 10-12 thousand years ago. Its branch R1b1c6 is found primarily in the British Isles, but can also be found at lower frequencies around Western Europe.

Mated and Married.

One of those delightful occurrences that the whole neighborhood generally denominates "perfectly lovely," took place at the handsome country residence of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Picker, four miles northeast of Coffeyville, Saturday evening, July 31st, 1897. In response to a most cordial invitation, the writer had the pleasure of participating in the ceremonies attendant upon the marriage of Mr. L. H. Ashby and Miss Jessie Picker, on the above date. The evening was peculiarly delightful, and the drive from the city to the Picker farm, was exceedingly pleasant. We were met and cordially greeted, as were all the guests by our warm hearted and truly hospitable friends, the hosts of the evening. On every hand there were perceptible evidences of the extensive preparations that were being made for the event. A number of relatives and friends had already gathered, and a brilliant scene was presented on the cool lawn and in the brilliantly lighted parlors. By half past eight o'clock the spacious dwelling was filled with a cheerful company of men and women, from the city and community, who had assembled to do honor to the occasion. At 8:30 o'clock the bridal party entered the large parlor and were met by Rev. A. S. Freed, the officiating minister. Mr. Frank Wisden, as groomsman and Miss Polly Holman, as bridesmaid, led the bridal procession. In the presence of the assembled company, Rev. Freed performed the impressive ceromony and uttered the solemn words that made the "twain one." The groom was a perfect picture of well developed young manhood and the bride was simply lovely as she appeared in her girlhood charms and the beautiful simplicity of well trained youth. The attractive couple seemed to have been "born for each other" as they earnestly and carefully responded to the service by which their lives were united by the strong bonds of wedlock. Their popularity was attested by the enthusiastic manner with which they were congratulated by every one present. "God bless you," "success attend you," "may joy be always yours," and similar expressions of love and tenderness, accompanied the warm shaking of their hands by their relatives and friends. The congratulatory period was followed by an elegant supper that was unexcelled in richness and marked by abundance in every particular. In this respect Mr. and Mrs. Picker showed their generosity in providing and their skill in entertaining. It was a veritable "wedding feast," and the guests did it ample justice. The fortunate groom is a son of our valued friends, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ashby. He grew from boyhood into manhood in this community, and is one of the best young men in the community. He possesses the attributes of good citizenship and his home training has been such as to especially fit him for the management of a home of his own. The bride is the adopted but very greatly beloved and cherished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Picker. She came to their home years ago, and won and maintained a warm place in the esteem of all with whom she became acquainted. She is a lady and will make a splendid help meet for her manly husband. They will be at home to their friends in a few days, in the residence on the O'Neal farm, where Mr. Picker has planned to established them by the gift of that rich tract of land. The following is a list of the guests of the occasion:

Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Freed,
Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ashby,
Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones,
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mahan,
Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Ball,
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Francis,

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hite and family,
Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Smith and family
Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Moore and family
Mr. and Mrs S. McCaleb and family,
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Doop and family, Cherryvale.
Mrs. Sarah J. Ashby.
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jones,
Mr. Alva Ashby,
Mr. Arch Hines,
Miss Grace Elliott,
Miss Maud Hamlin,
Master Harry Francis,
Master D. S. Elliott,
Miss Maud Ashby,
Miss Lydia Moore,
Mr. Lee Moore,
Miss Polly Hohlman,
Mr. Frank Wisden.

The bride was the recipient of a number of handsome and valuable presents, of which the following is a partial list:

Chas. Picker and D. E. Lawrence, tea set.
Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hite, berry set.
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jones, water set.
Mr. and Mrs Alfred Jones, tea set.
Mr. and Mrs. Fletch Bond, tea set.
Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Jones, fruit dish and berry spoon.
Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Ball, silver cake dish
Mr. and Mrs Freed, china bread plate.
Miss Ethel Graves, tea set.
Miss Maud Hamlin, glass fruit dish.
Little Allen Hamlin, jelly dish.
Mr. and Mrs. Hamlin, two pairs towels.
Mrs. Ashby, lamp.
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Francis, pair linen towels.
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Doop, stand cover.
Mrs. Chas. A. Picker, sofa pillow cover.
Mr. and Mrs, Ashby, full bed room set.
Grandma Ashby, bed spread.
Lee and Lydia Moore, silver napkin rings.
Maudia Ashby, wash bowl and pitcher.
Mr. Frank Wisden and Miss Polly Holman, lamp.
Mr. and Mrs Mahan, souvenir spoon.
Mr. and Mrs D. E. Moore, silver tea spoons.
Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Smith, water set.
Mr. and Mrs. Picker, dinner set.

Ashbys Celebrated 60th Anniversary

The big city was no place for six young daughters just off a Kansas farm, felt Mother and Dad Ashby 35 years ago when they came West to Dixon to visit a cousin. So here they have stayed and reared, in addition to six girls, two sons.

Sixty years ago Wednesday, the couple were married at Coffeyville, Kansas, and the diamond jubilee of that event was the occasion for a gathering of the family Sunday at the home of daughter Beulah (Mrs. R. W. McGrew) near Woodland. On hand to congratulate their parents, in addition to Mrs. McGrew, were sons Milt of Richmond and Lee of Sacramento, daughters Florence Duncan of Martinez, Margaret Joy and Helen Forden of Dixon, and Jessie Lee Stephens of Bend, Oregon. Unable to attend was daughter Eleanor Peck of San Mateo.

The couple are still active and enjoying life, although Ashby has been retired for some time from the city's department of public works. He was also custodian at the elementary school for many years.

In fact, they are away this week, daughter Jessie Lee having driven them home to Oregon with her for a brief stay.

ASHBYS CELEBRATE 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ashby arrived at their 50th wedding anniversary yesterday and will have a family party at their home on east A street Sunday.

Mr. Ashby, a native of Illinois, and Mrs. Ashby, native of Iowa, were married in Coffeyville, Kansas. They came to Dixon thirty years ago. Mr. Ashby recently retired after 20 years as caretaker of Dixon grammar school.

Those who will be at the happy party are: Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ashby and George and Shirley, of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ruthrauff (daughter) of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Duncan and children, Diane, Rex and Marc, Walnut Creek; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McGrew and Barbara of Woodland; Mrs. Gordon Stephens and children, Philip and Ross, Bend, Oregon; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forden, Henry Lee and Sharon, Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashby and Jim, Sacramento; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Joy, Jean, Bob and Patricia, Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Art Peck, Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burns and Mrs. Margaret Johnson, Oakland, nieces of Mrs. Ashby; Mrs. Arthur Graham, Oakland; Mrs. Charles Brader, Berkeley, niece of Mrs. Ashby.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashbys' 45th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ashby, who were married in Kansas, celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary at their home on East A Street Saturday. All the children and grandchildren were at the dinner table and taking part in the good time. It was the first time that the couple had all their children and grandchildren at the same time in their 45 years of a happy home life. Those at the gathering were:

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ashby and children, Shirley and George, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ruthrauff, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Duncan and daughter, Diane, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McGrew and daughter, Barbara, of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brader and Russell Kletzling, of Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stephens and sons, Ross and Phillip, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashby, Jr., and son, Jimmy, of Sacramento; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Joy and children, Jean, Patricia and Bob, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forden and children, Henry Lee and Sharon, Mr. and Mrs. Art Peck, of Dixon.

ASHBY FAMILY GATHERED AT A. R. PECK HOME

It was a happy occasion for the Ashby family Sunday when all the daughters and sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ashby with their families gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Art Peck for a family party. It was potluck, with everyone contributing to the dinner.

Those enjoying the gathering with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ashby, who are the proud parents of six daughters and two sons, were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ashby, Mr. and Mrs. Stacy Dalby, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Joy and children, Jim and Lynne of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ruthrauff and son Larry, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Duncan (Florence Ashby) and children, Diane, Rex and Marc of Walnut Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon (Jessie Lee Ashby) and sons, Phillip and Ross of Eugene, Ore.; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McGrew (Beulah Ashby) and daughter, Barbara, of Woodland; Mrs. Henry Lee Forden of Davis; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashby, Jr., and children, Jim and Linda of Sacramento; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Joy (Margaret Ashby), Mrs. Ben Horn and daughter, Zandra, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forden (Helen Ashby) and daughter Sharon, and Mr. and Mrs. Art Peck (Eleanor Ashby).

The Ashbys, who will celebrate their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary July 31, have 20 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

All were present but Henry Forden, who is stationed at Camp Roberts, George Ashby, son of Milton Ashby, who is in the air force in Washington, and Pat Joy Kropp, who is living in Illinois.

In 1868, a town called Coffeyville, was built on the banks of the Verdigris River in Montgomery County. It became a trading center for a wide adjoining section of Kansas and for the diminished Osage Nation, three miles over the line in the Territory.

A bad, rough place wa: Coffeyville-one that just missed attaining the notoriety of Tombestone and Tularoma. But Lewis Dalton, the instable wander, felt an odd affinity for it.

Dixon Man Recalls Days Of Notorious Dalton Gang

J. L. Ashby, long a resident of Dixon, brought a recent issue of the Coffeyville, Kansas, Journal to the Tribune desk, saying "You will recall the notorious Dalton Gang of 61 years ago. Like the James-Younger gang they caused a lot of terror in their numerous robberies. I was living in Coffeyville at the time the gang was wiped out.

"My father and I had come in from the country to Coffeyville, which was about 12,000 at that time, 20,000 now, and tied up at a hitching rail. Shortly, we were startled by shooting with many guns, and people began running toward the banks. We saw three of the bandits come out the front of the Condon Bank and run to the alley to join the other robbers. The battle was on, fast and furiuus. In three minutes it was over and 7 men were on the ground, four of whom were civilians and an officer."

From the journal we gather the main facts: Five men, armed to the teeth, rode into town, tied their horses at the rear of a judge's office, and walked to the banks, being seen by a number of people as they did so.

Three entered the First National Bank, two the Condon Bank. Cashier Bell delayed operations about the vault being under time lock, but only for three minutes. Before the time had expired, a shot outside was heard. Into the alley they hurried. Then for three minutes or less it was a hot battle. At the end of it four bandits were dead and four brave civilians. One wounded robber was able to mount his horse and, with a bag of $21,000, fled. In a half mile he fell and expired. One bandit, desperately wounded, was taken to a doctor's office. It was Emmet Dalton, who recovered, was sen to jail for life, paroled, finally pardoned, came to California and died.

But Emmet had a close call. He was followed to the doctor's office by an angry mob. They demanded he be turned over for hanging. The doctor replied: "No need, fellows, he'll die anyway, is dying now." The mob persisted, asking, "Are you sure he'll die?" "Hell, yes," said the doc. "Did you ever hear of a patient of mine getting well?"

spring following he came to Illinois, and worked in this neighborhood. He has lived here since, with the exception of the time spent in a few short trips east and to Chicago. In 1832 he volunteered in Major Sloan's regiment to fight Black Hawk. He has teamed to Chicago a number of times, and sold wheat as low as thirty-seven and a half cents per bushel. He married Miss Annie Brown, of Tennessee. They had sixteen children, fourteen of whom are living, viz: Hiram, Jacob, Thomas, William, Alleck, Catharine, Eliza, Jamina, Nancy, Victoria, Lucinda, Lilly, Elmyra and Julia. After his marriage Mr. Yoho engaged in boating to New Orleans. He owns two hundred and eighty acres of land in this county, which he has earned by his own labor. He came to Illinois in company with James and Thomas Pribble and N. Henthorn. They had two boats, and at the Falls of Ohio had to pay $10 to be piloted through. Mr. Yoho accompanied the first boat, and concluded he would save the $10 on the second, and so piloted the same through in safety, though greatly opposed by the native pilot.

James Pribble, Georgetown, farmer and stock-raiser, was born in Monroe county, Ohio, on the 21st of September, 1826, and lived there three years. In 1829, with his parents, he settled in Vermilion county, Illinois, near his present place, and lived with his parents until their death. In 1853 he began farming on his own account, farming part of his father's place. He married Miss Susannah Haines. She was born in Virginia, and died in the fall of 1860. They had four children,—three living, viz: Mary E., Deborah V. and Flora L. His present wife was Miss Catharine Yoho. She was born in this county, and married on the 4th of May, 1861. They had nine children, six of whom are living, viz: Richard, Andrew, Robert, Ellen, Rachel and Justin. Mr. Pribble owns one hundred and twelve acres in this county, located three and a half miles east of Georgetown. His parents, Thomas and Deborah Dickinson, were natives of Pennsylvania and Virginia. He moved to Ohio when young, and followed keel-boating. He died on the 10th of September, 1872, and she departed this life on the 13th of September, 1851.

James Ashby, Westville, farmer, was born in Bourbon county, Kentucky, in September, 1817, and lived there until 1829, when, with his parents, he came to Illinois, and settled in Vermilion county. He lived with his parents twenty-eight years, and then rented a farm and worked for himself. In 1863 he came to his present place, which contains sixty-four acres. On the 3d of April, 1845, he married Miss Sarah J. Blakeney; she was born in Bourbon county, Kentucky. They had nine children, seven of whom are living: Milton, Liza Ann, Martha E., Paulina J., Pleasant, Emma L., and Medora L. Mr. Ashby has hauled apples to Chicago as early as 1851. His parents, Joseph and Nancy Cloe Ashby, were natives of Stafford county, Virginia; they were married there, and came to this county in 1829; he died in the fall of 1845, and she in 1861.

Thomas Pribble, Georgetown, farmer and stock-raiser, was born in Ohio on the 1st of March, 1828, where he lived one year. He then, with his parents, came to Illinois and settled on his present place, coming down the Ohio and up the Wabash to Eugene, settling on his present place in 1829. In 1854 he took the management of the farm. In 1862 he enlisted in the 125th Ill. Regiment, and was in service until the close of the war. He was in the battles of Perryville, Chattanooga, Chickamauga, Mission Ridge and Dallas, Georgia, where he was wounded and confined to the hospital until his discharge. He returned to the farm and has lived here since. He owns eighty-two acres of land, located three miles east of Georgetown. On the 25th of December, 1866, he married Miss Cynthia Morgan; she was born in this county. They have four children: Commodore, Hamilton, Snowden H. and Minnetta. His parents were James and Flora (Cree) Pribble.

Levi Long, Georgetown, farmer and stock-raiser, was born in Nicholas county, Kentucky, on his father's farm, on the 20th of October, 1810, and lived there until the fall of 1830. He then, with his brother-in-law, Mr. Jones, came to Illinois, and settled in Vermilion county, and, after living here one year, went to Kentucky and assisted in moving his brother-in-law's family to this county. On the 15th of December, 1831, he married Miss Celia R. Jones; she was born in Nicholas county, Kentucky, and died here on the 5th of June, 1876. After his marriage he rented a place, and farmed it one year; he then went to Elwood township, and farmed three years. On the death of his father-in-law he bought out the heirs and moved to the place, and has lived here since. He assisted in laying out the roads of this township, and served as road commissioner for some time. Of the ten children, seven are living: John E., William L., Charles F., Nancy J., Josiah S., Sarah F. and James P. Mr. Long owns five hundred and forty-eight acres of land in this county, which he has earned by his own labor and management. As early as 1833 he hauled potatoes to Chicago for twenty-five cents per bushel, and he has made a number of trips since.

Gabriel Pribble, Georgetown, farmer and stock-raiser, was born in Monroe county, Ohio, on the 14th of June, 1826, and lived there four years, when, with his parents, he settled near his present place in Vermilion county, Illinois, and lived with them until he was twenty-eight years of age. He then farmed a portion of his father's farm for one

Dear Zandra,

There is no one in our society that does this type of work of which you ask for at the present time (to my knowledge).

Miss Mary Dee Carter did such researching during her life time but she passed away sometime ago. She was very good and we miss her terribly.

I have checked in two of my books and found some information for you, two books I have has nothing concerning this family. The other two ~~nothing~~ some.

The following is what I have found in my 1879 History of Vermilion Co., Illinois, by Dan Beckwith. We had these books reprinted and sold a lot of ~~7~~ them, I purchased mine as did many other members in our Illiana Gen. Soc. All have been sold.

James Ashby, Westville, Illinois, farmer, was born in Bourbon Co., KY., in Sept. 1817 and lived there until 1829, when with his parents he came to Illinois & settled in Vermilion County. He lived with his parents 28 years and then rented a farm & worked for himself. In 1863 he came to his present place, which contains 64 acres. On 3d of April, 1845, he married Miss Sarah J. Blakney; she was born in Bourbon Co., KY. They had 9 children (7 of whom were living , in 1879): Milton, Liza Ann, Martha E., Paulina J., Pleasant, Emma L., and Medora L. Mr. Ashby has hauled apples to Chicago as early as 1851. His parents, Joseph and Nancy Clee Ashby, were natives of Stafford Co., Virginia; they were married there & came to this county in 1829; he died in the fall of 1845, & she in 1861.

In the 1850 Vermilion County Federal Census book of which we have copied and published and,I made the stencils for it, we still have several editions left and they are for sale at $7.50 each. [All the work we members do for nothing].

Page 545 ALSO:In my 1879 Ver. Co., IL History by Beckworth I copied the following names too but doubt this is of much benefit to you. Olive AShby married S.J. Cook, 15 of October 1873, she was born in Clark Co., Illinois; they had three children: Benjamin F., and Sylvester J., (1 died) He was born 24th of August 1843; he was the proprietor of "Cook House" in Georgetown, Illinois, 12 miles south of Danville, and had farmed previously. He was in the Civil War. Enlisted June 1861 and served 3 years and 3 months. Always made his home in this county. His father was in the harness business. He died 11th of September 1877 and she lived with their son Sylvester, he took over his father's business after his death. (No date for her death).

Page 937 John Ashby is listed as a preacher in Newell Township, Vermilion Co., Illinois-apparently he was one of the circuit preaching riders, altho it states his name with several others, nothing more. Newell Twp. is in the north part of Danville and extends several miles north. Georgetown is south of Danville, Illinois.

Page 529 Miss Sarah Ann Ashby, was born in Bourbon Co., Ky., married O.S. Graves, Sept. 21, 1843, she came to Illinois with her parents in 1829. (Birthdate not given). He was born in Clark Co., KY on 5th of May 1818 and lived there until he was 10 years old. He came to Illinois with his parents and settled in Vermilion Co. O.S. and Sarah Ann had 6 children,(5 living) as follows: James L., Henry C., Martha E., Isabell, and Orval D. He died in July 1857, and she was living with her son, after O.S. Graves death.

Also in my 1850 Vermilion Co., IL Federal Census book, I see a list of a Groves- perhaps this should be Graves, some of the Census takers hand writting was very difficult to read and this description fits the above paragraph.

GROVES (GRAVES?)		born in		Worth
Orvel	31 M	KY	Farmer	$1500.00
Sarah Ann	28 F	KY
James L.	5 M	IL
Amanda E.	2 F	IL

. . . . . .

Page 508 A T.W. Blakeney is listed (in 1879 Hist. book) as one of the deacons of the Christian Church, which was organized in April 1870, known as Brooks Point Church. Evidently this in what is now the Westville or Georgetown, Illinois, community.

Page 524 The Georgetown, Ill. Lodge, No. 62, I.O.O.F. was reorganized in 1872, a [illegible] J.A. Blakney is listed as a member.

Page 335a A Hugh Blakney is listed as among those in the Coal Mining Business in the Grape Creek region, just south of Danville about 3 miles and 1 mile east.

Page 378 A Miss Henrietta Blakeley (maybe misspelled) is listed as marrying a Joseph Peters, a lawyer. She was a native of Christian Co., KY. They had four children: Anna B., Mary E., Prier G., and Willie.

I have found so many different spellings of my REESE and I have copied all of these names thinking it just might help you somehow. Also, I will run this request in the Query section of our Spring Quarterly. However, it is to late for the Winter edition, which will be received as soon as the mail delivery continues. This is the worst winter we have ever had in this section of the country. No mail delivery for two days due to the deep snow, I hope tomarrow it comes through. The traffic is much better today. 9 below this morning and 2 below at 7:30. The sun has been shining bright all day and some snow melted where the cold wind didn't hit it.

Sincerely,

Notes

- He lived on a farm between Cherryvale and Independence for 58 years, coming to Kansas in 1879.

  The Doops seem to have emigrated together from Illinois following the civil war. In part, apparently, because William's uncle, John, received land near Drum Creek, Kansas as partial payment of his army pension.

THESE JORDANS WERE HERE

These Jordans were here --
Even as you and I,
Ambitious vibrant souls,
Casting shadows --
Sometimes dim ones,
On paths we their Descendants are treading.

CHAPTER V

JORDAN'S JOURNEY OR BEGGAR'S BUSH

According to the Dale Laws, Samuel Jordan was an "Ancient Planter" and entitled to 450 acres of land, the record of which is in the following quote:

> "By the Governour and Capt. Genll. of Virginia
> "To all to whom these presents shall come etc. Greeting in our Lord God Everlasting. Know yee that I George Yardley Knight, Governor and Capt. Genll. of Virginia etc. by vertue of the great Charter of orders and lawes concluded on in a great and Genll. Quarter Court by the Treasurer Councill and Company of Adventurers and planters for this first Southern Colony of Virginia (according to the authority granted them by his Majtie. under the great Seal) and by them dated at London the Sixteenth of November 1618 and directed to myself and the Councill of Estate here resident, do with the approbation and consent of the same Councill who are joyned in Condicon with mee Give and grant to Samuel Jourdan of Charles Citty in Virga. Gent. an ancient planter who hath abode ten years Compleat in this Colony and performed all services to the Colony that might any way concern him etc. and to his heirs and assignes for ever for part of his first genll. dividend to be augmented &c., 450 acs. in his own personall right etc., and out of the rules of Justice, equity and reason and because the Company themselves have given us president in the like kind in the personall claim of Cecily his wife an ancient planter also of nine years continuance, one hundred acres more and the other 250 acs. in recompence of his trans. out of England at his own charges

In 1622, tobacco was usually rated in Virginia at three shillings per pound, and when the different values of currency was considered, it was a good price. About this time, tobacco smoking was becoming very popular in England, and during King James I's time, there were four brands of it obtainable in London--Trinidado, the Nicotine, the Cane, and the Pudding--and the discussions at the ordinaries were: "Whose pipe had the best bore? Which would turn the blackest? Which would break in the browning?!"

After Samuel Jordan acquired the 450 acres of land in the territory of Great Weyonoke (Charles City County), he named his plantation Jordan's Journey, and built a manor house on it which he spoke of as Beggar's Bush. Samuel Jordan was a family man with three known sons but no records about his wife, who she was or where she was. The fact that this is not known is not unusual for in those days and times, records of a wife were considered of little concern, and anything about them was seldom recorded. That he had three sons, though, is recorded; but nothing about them is known until his son Robert Jordan was killed on March 22, 1622 in the Indian massacre. He was killed at Berkley's Hundred, some five miles up the river on the other side of Jordan's Journey. Robert had gone there by boat to warn the inhabitants on the plantation of the ensuing Indian massacre which Mr. Pace of "Paces Pains" had heard about through a converted Indian employee of his—Chanco.

On the night before this horrible Indian massacre took place, Chanco had heard two of his brothers, who were visiting him at his home known as Burrow Hill, discussing their orders from King Powhatan to murder Mr. Pace and Captain William Perry the next day. Hearing about these plans greatly disturbed Chanco; so, as soon as possible, he slipped from his house and went to warn Mr. Pace of Powhatan's plans.

This advance word made it possible for Mr. Pace and Captain Perry to escape being murdered. It also made it possible to warn the colonists at James Towne and several of the nearby settlements about the planned attack, but not enough time to warn all of the colonists for fully a third of the English people in Virginia were killed at this time. Besides the mass massacre of the people, all of the university buildings on the college land were burned to the ground, and every man, woman, and child among the artisans and workmen living there were killed.

The remaining terrorized colonists grew jittery. It was necessary to do something in a hurry for their protection. Samuel Jordan sensed this, so with the consent of Governor Wyatt, he got together a number of the straggling survivors and ortified Beggar's Bush. After this first hurried fortification of his home, Samuel Jordan, with the approval of Governor Wyatt, continued to fortify it. Then, just a month later, in April of the year 1622, Governor Sir Francis Wyatt wrote the council in London telling them that he thought it would be fitting to hold a few fortified outlying places, including the plantation of Mr. Samuel Jordan, but to abandon other places and concentrate the protection of the colonists at James Towne.

The massacre of 1622 upset the plans for opening the university in Virginia--the university which King James I had dreamed of and sponsored so enthusiastically. In a few years, King James I died and his son, Charles I, succeeded him to the throne. He, King Charles I, was not interested in the spiritual or cultural welfare of a colony overseas, nor was anyone else in authority interested in the university or in the sending of ministers to the colonial parishes. King Charles I was only interested in the political crosscurrent that was sweeping England and in the self-seeking of a royal court.

Just when Samuel Jordan's first wife died is not known, but it is known that before the year 1620, he was considered a special catch for any eligible woman in the colony to get. Sometime around the early part of the year 1620, Cecily Baley, a widow with a three-year-old daughter, Temperance Baley, married him.

Cecily Baley, whose surname is not known, came to the James Towne Colony on the Swan in 1611. At the time she arrived, she was only eleven years of age, but legend says that soon after she arrived, she married. While her surname is not known, it is assumed that it was Greene, for in Hakluyt's List of Immigrants to Virginia before 1624, there was the name of a Cecily Greene.

There is a legend sometimes told that Samuel Jordan was Cecily's third husband. How-be-it in 1619, it is a known fact that she was a Widow Baley with a three-year-old daughter and was spoken of in the colony as "the glamor girl."

By Samuel Jordan, Cecily Baley Jordan had two daughters--Mary, born in 1621, a babe in arms at the time of the Indian massacre; and Margaret, born after her father's death.

Some genealogists claim that Cecily was closely related to Samuel Jordan, and that he was instrumental in her coming to Virginia in 1611, but there is sufficient evidence to refute such a belief. Baley, her husband, was in some way closely connected with other Jordans who early emigrated to Virginia.

Soon after the Indian massacre of 1622, Samuel Jordan received a share of company stock from Mary Tue and also 100 acres of land in Diggs His Hundred, and in the records of these deeds, he was listed as "Samuel Jordan of Charles Hundred, Gentleman."

In April of the year 1623, Captain Samuel Jordan of Jordan's Journey died. When he did, interesting things began to happen, which are recorded in the Library of Congress, Vol. CCLXXVII, pages 219 and 220, and run something like this:

Three or four days after Samuel Jordan's death, the Reverend Grivell Pooley went to see Captain Isaac Madison touching on a match with Mrs. Jordan. Captain Madison did not want to meddle in such a delicate affair so refused, but being urged, finally consented to broach the subject to Mrs. Jordan. When he did, she laughed and answered that she would as willing have the Reverend Pooley as any other, but she would not marry again until she was delivered. Captain Madison thought that this was right, so he gave Mr. Pooley the message. Mr. Pooley was not willing to accept what he had said so went to see Mrs. Jordan himself.

After his visit, the Reverend Pooley told Captain Madison that he had contracted himself to Mrs. Jordan and asked him and his wife to go with him to be a witness to the contract.

Soon after the three of them were at Mrs. Jordan's, Mr. Pooley asked her for a dram.

rs. Jordan called a servant and told him to fetch im one, but Mr. Pooley testily replied, "I will have it of your fetching or not at all." Mrs. Jordan left the room followed by the Reverend Grivell Pooley, and as he went he turned and beckoned for Captain Madison and his wife to follow him.

After Mr. Pooley received the dram from Mrs. Jordan, he told her he was going to contract himself to her, so spoke these words: "I, Grivell Pooley, take thee, Cecily, to be my wedded wife, to have and to hold till death do us part, and there to plight thee my troth." Then taking hold of her hand, he spake these words: "I, Cecily, take thee, Grivell, to be my wedded husband, to have and to hold till death do us part."

Captain Madison nor his wife, Mary Madison, said that they heard Mrs. Jordan repeat the words, nor did they hear Mr. Pooley ask her if she did consent to the words, but they did say that Mr. Pooley and she drank to each other and that he kissed her and said, "I am thine and thou art mine till death do us separate." Mrs. Jordan then requested that the pledge of her love for another man, so soon after the death of her husband, not be revealed at once. When she did, Mr. Pooley protested that before God he would not do such a thing until she thought the time fitting.

Although Mr. Pooley had taken this vow, he was so excited over his good luck that he immediately spread around the word that Cecily Jordan and he were contracted to marry. Mrs. Jordan resented the Reverend Grivell Pooley's doing this and soon contracted herself to Captain William Farrar, who was Captain at "Jordan's Journey" at the time of her husband's death. On June 14, the Reverend Grivell Pooley called Cecily Jordan into court and instigated against her the first breach-of-promise suit ever made in English America.

The breach-of-promise case came before the Council of State (the court) which was composed of Governor Wyatt, Sir George Yardley, Mr. George Sandys, Mr. Roger Smith, Mr. Ralph Hamor, and Mr. John Pountes. These men were greatly disturbed over the case and, not knowing how to decide whether it was a formal or legal contract, referred the case to the Virginia Company in England, asking for the resolution of the civil lawyers there in as speedy a return as possible.

To prevent such an occurrence again, the court in England issued the following proclamation: "Whereas the great contempt of the Majesty of God, and ill example of others, certain women within the colony have of late, contrary to the laws ecclesiastical of the realm of England, contracted themselves to two several men at one time, whereby much trouble doth grow between parties of the government and Council of State much disquiet.... that what man or woman so ever shall use any words or speech tending to the contract of marriage, though not right and legal....shall be censured."

The ensuing dissolution of the Virginia Company ended the proceeding of the Jordan-Pooley case, and the Reverend Grivell Pooley married another lady of his liking, and for about six years seemingly lived in a happy state of matrimony until he and his wife were killed in the Indian massacre of 1629.

In the census taken a short time after Samuel Jordan's death, it was revealed that the population at "Jordan's Journey" stood at 55 persons--36 men and 19 women. The corn and fish supplies there were listed as adequate, and there were some cattle and hogs as well as numerous poultry. In the matter of houses, the total was quite large, being 22. This plantation also boasted three boats and substantial amounts of small arms--38 in number--besides 36 various other types of armour.

Samuel Jordan had died sometime around April of the year 1623, and the following November, a warrant was issued for Mr. Farrar to bring in the account of Mr. Jordan's estate, and at the same time "another warrant was issued to Mrs. Jordan for Mr. Farrar, who was soon to become her husband, to be put in security for the performance of her deceased husband's will."

From the Adventure of Purse and Persons in Virginia 1607-1625, we read: "The muster of inhabitants of "Jordan's Journey" and "Chaplain Choice" taken the 21st of January, 1624, were: William Farrar, age 31 years, who came to Virginia in August, 1618; Cecily Jordan, age 24 years, who came to Virginia in the 'Swan' in 1611; Mary Jordan, age three years; and Margaret Jordan, age one year—both born at Jordan's Journey--and Temperance Baley, age seven years, a daughter of Cecily Jordan by a previous marriage. Servants at 'Jordan's Journey' were: William Dawson, age 25, who came to the colony March, 1621 in the 'Discovery;' and Robert Turner, age not known, who came in the 'Tryall' in 1619."

In the muster of Virginia taken in 1625, it is shown that at that time, there were many goats thriving in the colony, descendants of those brought over, soon after 1607, to clear away the underbrush - preparatory to cutting down the trees - and grubbing up the stumps in the surrounding wilds.

CHAPTER VI

SONS OF SAMUEL JORDAN, ANCIENT PLANTER

Samuel Jordan had three sons who emigrated to Virginia--Robert, Thomas, and Samuel. Robert is the first one to be recorded as living in Virginia, and the only record of him is when he was killed by the Indians in the Indian massacre of March 22, 1622. At that time, Robert was living with his father and stepmother, Cecily, at Beggar's Bush, and had gone to Berkley Hundreds to warn the inhabitants there of the approaching Indian massacre and was killed.

Samuel Jordan's next son found living in Virginia was Thomas Jordan. He was born in England in the year 1600 and emigrated to Virginia on the Diana in 1623, perhaps just before the death of his father. In the year 1624-25, he was listed as living in Pashebaighty (James Cittie) where his name headed the list of the governor's (Sir George Yardley) men. Thomas Jordan's name being in this list indicated that he was one of the governor's guards. In the year 1629, he was made a commissioner of Warresquioake (Isle of Wight County, Virginia), and in this office he served until the year 1632.

On July 2, 1632, Thomas Jordan applied for a land grant of 900 acres of land in Warresquioake County and was granted this request because he had transferred, at his own expense, eighteen men as colonists to Virginia. The location of this land granted to Thomas Jordan was at the head of the Warresquioake River—"beginning on the westerly side of an old Indian town, at an oak tree marked with three notches.... running west-northwest into a mile or so down the river to Cross Creek where there was another oak marked with two notches.... adjacent to Thomas Butler's acreage."

Just who the wife of this Thomas Jordan was is another genealogical enigma. He could have brought her over from England, or he could have married one of the eligible girls living in Virginia at that time. While we do not have an answer to this question, we do know that he had one child, a son named Thomas. This Thomas Jordan was born in the year 1635 and later was spoken of as Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck.

While records only accredited one child to Thomas Jordan, son of the first Samuel Jordan, it stands to reason that there must have been other children; for at the time of his son Thomas' birth, the first Thomas Jordan was 35 years of age and had been living in Virginia for more than ten years. Perhaps his eldest son was Richard Jordan, Sr., who married Elizabeth Reynolds, and died on May 3, 1687. Then there is a possibility that he had a daughter, Margaret, who married James Davis; for a Margaret Davis signed the marriage bonds of three of the sons of Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck as "Aunt Margaret and husband, Uncle James Davis." (Then, more than likely, there was another son, Matthew, who had a son, Matthew, who married Susannah Bresy just about two years after) Matthew Jordan, the son of Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck, married Dorothy Bufkin. Then there was yet another unclassified Jordan of this period who could have been the first Thomas Jordan's son. He was Joseph Jordan of North Carolina who married Akehurst's daughter. Justifying the foresaid surmizing, that these were children of the first Thomas Jordan, it is further substantiated that they were because, according to tradition, the same names of children were often handed down from one generation to another; and Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck had children by all of these names.

On July 7, 1635, the same year that Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck was born, Benjamine Harrison patented 200 acres of land in Warresquioake County, on Warresquioake Creek, and soon thereafter, this land was in the tenure of Thomas Jordan, gent-son of Samuel Jordan.

CHAPTER X

THOMAS JORDAN OF CHUCKATUCK

Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck, Nansemond County, Virginia, was the grandson of Samuel Jordan, ancient planter, who came to Virginia in 1610, and the son of Thomas Jordan, Samuel Jordan's son who came to Virginia on the Diana in 1623.

Nansemond County, Virginia, is one of the oldest counties of Virginia. The first attempt to settle this section of Virginia was in 1610 when John Martin was sent out into the wilderness looking towards establishing a settlement just below James Towne on the South side of the James River.

There is no record as to who the mother of Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck was; how many brothers and sisters he had; but it is recorded that he was born in Virginia in the year 1635.

In 1659 Thomas Jordan married Margaret Brashere, the daughter of Robert Brashere, a French Huguenot, who on April 12, 1653, received a patent for one-thousand two-hundred acres of land on the southern branch of the Nansemond River in Virginia--land granted him for transporting himself, his wife, and his children, together with nine other would-be colonists to Virginia. At the time of Robert Brashere's application for this patent, Margaret was not listed as a headright because she was not born until after the family reached Virginia. b 7th mo 1642 d 10/7/1708

Margaret not dau of Robert who d 4/12/1653

At the age of sixteen Margaret Brashere, the wife of Thomas Jordan, united with The Truth (Quakers or Friends) and was no doubt responsible for leading her husband "into the light." At the time Margaret became a Quaker, there were only a few of this sect living in Virginia; for it was not until the year 1656, after Elizabeth Harris came to Virginia and remained there for several months, that this Society began to grow.

In March, 1660, the General Assembly of Virginia passed strict laws prohibiting Quakers from coming into the Province of Virginia. This adverse legislature extended into the Albemarle region equally, along with other sections of the province. This law had been passed because there was a great movement among the settlers to rebel against the established usage of society and government in Virginia. Quakerism seemed to be just what these rebellious settlers needed, so there had been a great movement to join the Friend's Society.

After Thomas Jordan embraced this new faith, he began being spoken of, in the Lower Monthly Meeting, as Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck. For this new faith Thomas Jordan had accepted, he endured all the persecutions that were visited upon the Quakers, both in Virginia and in England. He was imprisoned six months for being taken in a meeting at his own house. From this imprisonment he was released by the King's Proclamation, only to be taken a second time at a meeting at Robert Lawrence's home, and bound over to court. At court he refused to "swear" so was sent to James Towne and held a prisoner for ten months.

While Thomas Jordan was imprisoned at James Towne, the sheriff took three servants from his home and kept them for nine weeks. He also took by distress beds and other goods amounting to three-thousand nine-hundred and seven pounds of tobacco. Then he took a serving man and ten head of cattle valued at five-thousand five-hundred and seven pounds of tobacco (the preceding information found in Week's Southern Quaker and Slavery page 26).

"In spite of all the persecutions Thomas Jordan had to endure, he abode faithful to his religious belief until ye end of his days which came October 8, 1699, in ye 6th day of ye week, about ye second hour in ye afternoon, and was buried ye 1st day of ye said month in ye third day of ye week in 1699."

On March 26, 1656, Thomas Best and Christopher Ashley patented three-hundred acres of land in Nansemond County, beginning at Mile End, Thomas Jordan's land (This proves that previous to the year 1656, Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck had patented land in this county.)

In the year of the Ranter Spirit, among the Quakers, 1660, eight years before William Penn became a Quaker and a year after New England and Virginia began frowning on this new religious sect, Thomas Jordan patented land near his home at Chuckatuck. At that time the Quakers were attracting much attention because of their stubborn opposition to some of the established laws in the New World.

Thomas and Margaret Jordan lived a good life and were blessed with ~~twelve~~ children--ten sons ~~and two daughters~~. These children and the dates of their birth are as follows:

* Thomas Jordan III born January 6, 1660 m Elizabeth
* John Jordan born June 17, 1663 m Margaret
James Jordan born November 23, 1665
Robert Jordan born July 11, 1668
Richard Jordan born June 6, 1670
Joseph Jordan born July 8, 1672
Benjamine Jordan born July 18, 1674
Matthew Jordan born November 1, 1676
Samuel Jordan born February 15, 1679
Joshua Jordan born June 1681
Elizabeth Jordan no date of birth given } wives of Thos + John Margaret Jordan no date of birth given }

* Elizabeth & Margaret probably the wives of Thomas & John

Margaret Brashere Jordan, mother of the above listed children, was an elder in the Friend's Meeting at Chuckatuck; and after the death of her husband, on January 25, 1701, the high sheriff of the Isle of Wight County, Virginia, took one-hundred-and-twenty pounds of tobacco from her.

Apparently all of the children of Thomas and Margaret Jordan continued in The Faith except the eldest--Thomas Jordan III. In the Records of the Monthly Meeting of Chuckatuck, it is recorded that Thomas Jordan allowed his worldly ambitions to lead him out of the straight and narrow path his mother and father had trod.

In the year 1698, Thomas Story, a follower of William Penn, came to Virginia. In his Journal he records how, on this first visit, he lodged with Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck and how, on his second visit May 27, 1705, he lodged at the home of the old widow of Thomas Jordan and how the next day had gone with her son Robert across the river for a visit with his brother Thomas.

Story says that Thomas was courteous and polite when they had talked with him about his departure from the Way of the Truth, and how this faith had become too narrow for him, as his desires for the ways of the world had increased. But, with a heavy heart, after much talking, they realized that they had made no progress in bringing him back into the Way of the Truth; so with a prayer on their lips for the recusant Thomas, they recrossed the river.

In the year 1708, in her sixty-third year, Margaret Brashere Jordan was "taken with an indisposition of the body" which continued for three years until her life came to an end on October 7, 1708--nine years, lacking eighteen hours, after her husband Thomas had died.

Margaret Brashere Jordan had lived an exemplary life; and just the day before her death, when all of her children were gathered around her, she was still concerned over the soul of her oldest son Thomas, so talked with him. When she realized that she was making no progress in converting him back into the Way of the Truth, she asked her son Benjamine to go fetch Elizabeth, Thomas' wife. Benjamine went across the river and brought Elizabeth back with him. When Elizabeth came into the presence of her mother-in-law, Margaret made an earnest and passionate appeal to her about coming back into the Quaker Meeting. Elizabeth listened to her mother-in-law's tearful appeal but was adamant--even the death-bed appeal of Thomas' mother could not change her religious views.

CHAPTER XVI

RICHARD JORDAN, SON OF THOMAS JORDAN AND OTHER RICHARD JORDANS

Richard Jordan, the fifth son of Thomas Jordan of Chuckatuck and Margaret Brashere Jordan, was born June 6, 1670, and died October 29, 1739. On June 22, 1706, he married Rebecca Ratcliffe of Nansemond County, Virginia, daughter of Richard Ratcliffe and Elizabeth Parr Ratcliffe. No proof

At the Quaker wedding of Richard Jordan and Elizabeth Ratcliffe, the following signed the marriage certificate as witnesses: John Jordan, Robert Jordan, and James Jordan, all brothers of Richard; Margaret Jordan, mother of Richard; his sisters Elizabeth and Margaret Jordan; Richard Ratcliffe, father of Rebecca; and her mother Elizabeth Parr Ratcliffe; her uncle John Ratcliffe; William Scott; and many others.

Richard Jordan was a prosperous planter in the Parish of Newport, Isle of Wight County, Virginia; and in 1718 was sheriff of his county. On October 4, 1769, Richard Jordan of the Parish of Newport and County of Isle of Wight, received from John x Pope and Sweeteng x, his wife of said parish and county, twenty-eight pounds and fifteen shillings, for a tract of land in Parish of Newport and county of Isle of Wight.

Richard and Rebecca were the parents of six children: Rebeccah; Richard,① who married Unity; Joseph; Patience; and Elizabeth, who married Thomas Parr. Little else is recorded about Richard① except that found in his will which was made February 3, 1781. In this will there is, in part, the following: "to son John Jordan 250 acres, which John Ratcliffe bought of William Westray, also to him one other tract of land which formerly belonged to his grandfather Richard Jordan, which Nicholas Godson now lives upon, also one Negro Rose and her increase; to son Robert Jordan tract of land which I purchased of John Read, whereon I now live, also land lying on Cook's Swamp whereon Ephram Pope now lives, also one acre which I purchased of Henry Applewaite, adjoining my mill, also a Negro Andrew; to my sons John and Robert my still, worm, cap, and my blacksmith tools to be divided between them; to daughter Lydia land where on William Parr now lives, also a Negro boy David (Dennis) and a Negro girl Betty; to daughter Elizabeth Outland a Negro boy Part; and to each of my three grandchildren the sum of twenty shillings."

Because of the land and slaves he owned, it is known that Richard Jordan, the son of Thomas and Margaret Jordan, was an affluent planter. In his will he ordered that his slaves be divided among his children, and that the division of these slaves be made by his sons Richard, Joseph, and Matthew, along with James Jordan, the husband of his daughter Patience. And, in his will Richard Jordan even went farther by instructing them how this division should be made. The slaves were to be divided into equal lots, and the lots given a number. Then, in turn, each of his children, except Elizabeth, was to draw a number.

The division of these slaves was not made immediately, in fact not until some seven or eight years later, when in February 1746/47, Richard's sons and son-in-law, gave bond of five-hundred pounds currency for the privilege of dividing this parcel of slaves.

After the division of these slaves was made, and the drawing held, and it was noted Richard's daughter Elizabeth had had no part in the drawing of these slaves, the brothers and sisters, with the consent of their mother, Rebecca, gave Elizabeth the title to a Negro Kate, along with her increase.

Richard, the eldest son of Richard and Rebecca Ratcliffe Jordan, married Unity (surname not known) and had issue: John Jordan, who married Elizabeth (surname not known) and had the following children: William, John, Robert, Lidda, who married in 1729, William Lear Campbell, Mary, Nancy, Rebecca, and Betsy, who married a Mr. Wainright.

Robert Jordan, the son of Robert and Unity Jordan, had issue: Edmund, Ann and Elizabeth; but the name of his wife is unknown. Elizabeth Jordan married Mr. Outland.

Richard Jordan, the husband of Unity, was appointed a surveyor of a road in the Isle of Wight County, Virginia, in room of Robert Brown, and ordered to keep same in repair (Order Book 1746-1752, page 114).

On October 5, 1752, Richard Jordan and Unity conveyed to Joseph Atkenson,' for fifteen pounds currency, fifty acres of land in the Isle of Wight County.

Patience Jordan, daughter of Richard and Rebecca, married James Jordan and had issue: Sarah who died 1768/69; Ann Jordan; Elizabeth Jordan; and James Jordan who married Mary (surname unknown) and had issue: Sally, Robert, and Mary.

Patience Jordan, after the death of her husband James Jordan, who died intestate, was granted a certificate for administrating his estate; and at the same time a certificate was granted the following: Nicholas Wale, John Newman, Robert Driver, and John Jordan to act as appraisers and bring to the next term of Court, September 3, 1761, the appraisal of the deceased James Jordan's estate (O.B. Isle of Wight County 1753-1756, page 256).

No worthwhile data has been recorded concerning Joseph Jordan, the son of Richard Jordan and Rebecca Ratcliffe Jordan. And the only information concerning their son Matthew Jordan is that he married and had one son who was given the name of Richard for his grandfather.

This Richard Jordan, son of Matthew Jordan and grandson of Richard and Rebecca Ratcliffe Jordan, left a will dated January 28, 1791; and in it he says: "to daughter Peggy Drew my best feather bed. The plantation where my father Matthew Jordan died shall be rented out until my son Belson Jordan arrives to age twenty-one, and the money arising from the rent shall be applied towards paying the balance now due for said plantation; to son Richard the plantation I now live on. All the rest of my estate I lend to my wife Honour Jordan; and to sons Richard and Belson Jordan my still, after my wife's widowhood."

Executors—wife Honour, Friend Robert Marshall, and Matthew Jordan.

Witnesses--John Sck Wills, Pleasants Jordan, and Ansulm Hargrove.

Cities

Montgomery County is located in Southeastern Kansas, on the southern Kansas border, the third county west of the eastern border with Missouri. Montgomery County was created out of Wilson County in 1867. The County Seat, Independence is near the center of the county. Coffeyville is the largest city and is located about 15 miles to the southeast of Independence. Some other cities in Montgomery county are Caney, Cherryvale, Liberty, Havana, Tyro, Dearing and Elk City. Clicking on the underlined city names will take you to a short history of each city. There's a lot of local color here, not just longitude and latitude, famous bad guys and good guys, cowboys and indians.

The Montgomery County Genealogical Society is now 'on the net!'

Some nice folks that have offered to do lookups in material they have access to or have in their personal libraries.

William Inge, Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright, was born and grew up in Independence. Each year, Independence Community College hosts a four-day William Inge festival and conference honoring the man and his works, including the play, "Picnic" and the Academy Award winning movie, "Splendour in the Grass". The William Inge collection, housed at the college, is the most extensive collection in existence.

Just south of Independence, "Little House on the Prairie" is an authentically recreated log cabin on the site where Laura Ingals Wilder's family lived for a time. Her family history and genealogy can be found at Family History of Laura Ingalls Wilder Also, there are other internet site about Laura Ingalls Wilder. My Little House on the Prairie Home Page of Laura Ingalls Wilder , is a site devoted to Laura Ingalls Wilder's books, it also accesses a map of the Ingalls family's journeys. Laura Elizabeth Ingalls is a site where you can learn about her life and times.

Kentucky, respectively. Mrs. Page was born in Johnson county, Indiana, Sept. 28, 1850, and is the mother of Robert J., who married Cora A. Mills and has a child, Helen B.; Elmer E., who married Minnie V. Higgins, is a clerk in Scott's store at Independence, Kansas; Homer W., and Oren E., who married Tula F. Greer, are both with the parental home.

As an instance of what determination and perseverance, coupled with ample physical vigor, will accomplish, it is in place to state that when Mr. Page reached Poweshiek county, Iowa, he had but "fifty cents to his name." His property acquirements have all resulted from the individual efforts of himself and his devoted wife and modestly stand as an achievement worthy to be emulated. In politics Mr. Page was first a Democrat and then a Populist. He was township Treasurer two terms in Rutland and member of the school board twelve years. He is a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

MILTON ASHBY is a leading farmer and old soldier of Cherokee township and was born in Vermillion county, Ill., on the 27th of October, 1846. His father's name was James Ashby, a native of Bourbon county, Kentucky, and his mother was Sarah J. Blakeney of the same state. When small children, their parents moved to Illinois—in 1829—where James lived and died in Georgetown township, Vermillion county, within half a mile of where they first settled. His death occurred at the age of seventy-two, but his wife is still living and is seventy-six years old.

Five of the children of James and Sarah Ashby are living. Pleasant Ashby, traveling agent; Eliza Milner, resident of Indiana; Martha Doop and Emma Smith, both of Montgomery county, and Milton, the subject of this sketch, who is the first born. Milton Ashby was reared in Vermillion county, Ill., and his education was received in the old fashioned log school house. In this school house there were not the new patent seats of today, but those made of split logs, whose polish was not attained at the factory, but by contact with "jeans and homespun" for many years.

When the war was on he enlisted, February 4th, 1865, in Company E, 150th Ill. Vol. Inft., and served till after the close of the war. He would have entered the army sooner, but his age prevented, and he was held over until the 2nd of February, 1866. After the war was over he returned home, and stayed with his parents on the farm.

His marriage occurred August 28, 1870. His wife was Mary M. Graves, a native of Vermillion county, Ill., and a daughter of Levi H. and Matilda (Cook) Graves. After his marriage, he bought eighty acres of land and cultivated it for ten years. In 1884, he sold his farm and came to Kansas, and bought eighty acres, three miles northeast of Cof-feyville, where he now resides. There was only a small frame house on the farm where they lived till the new house was erected, which they now occupy. This is large and commodious, with modern conveniences and contains eleven rooms, heated and lighted with natural gas. Besides this beautiful home, there is a large barn and good out buildings, also lighted by gas. This whole farm is an up-to-date one, everything being kept in good repair. Land has been added to the original eighty, until now the estate comprises three hundred and sixty acres.

Mr. Ashby has in his possession the first tax receipt he ever received, which amounted to sixty cents, a sum somewhat less than his present annual tax. On the farm he keeps a variety of stock—cattle, horses and hogs.

In politics Mr. Ashby is a Republican, and has served successively as treasurer of the township two terms, and trustee one term.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashby have four children living: Lillie A., wife of D. A. Jones, of Coffeyville; James L., a farmer; Alva M., also a farmer in the county; Maud, the wife of Edwin Peterson, living at home with her parents, and Bertie, who died at three years of age.

JOSEPH S. HAMER, manager of the Cherryvale Grain and Live Stock Association, and one of the energetic and enterprising citizens of that progressive borough, is a native of the "Buckeye State," born in Logan county, October 7, 1854. His father, Joseph Hamer, was a native of Pennsylvania and at maturity married Elizabeth Clingerman, a native of the Keystone State. The father was, during life, a well-to-do and successful farmer and stock shipper. He passed the greater portion of his life in Ohio, but in 1889, came to Kansas and settled in Wilson county, near Lafontain. Here he resided and engaged in farming until 1896, when he became an inmate of the home of our subject in Cherryvale, and during a visit to a son in Ohio, sickened and died at the age of sixty-nine years. His wife still resides with our subject and is a woman of strength and spirit at seventy-three years of age. To these parents were born six children, but two of whom are now living; a son, Daniel A., residing in Ohio, and Joseph S., of this sketch.

Mr. Hamer, being the son of well-to-do parents, was given a liberal education. After the country school he attended the Ada Normal School and from there went to the National Normal School of Lebanon, O. To this literary training was then added a course at a commercial college in St. Louis. Mr. Hamer did not, as is too often the case with young men who are favored in matters of education, connect himself with city life, but returned to Ohio and engaged in farming, an occupation which he followed with success in that state until 1883, when he came out to southern Missouri and continued there quite extensively in the raising of stock. In 1889, he accompanied the fam-

Alexander. She was born at Eugene, Indiana. They had three children, one living,—Johnnie. Mr. Frazier's parents, Abner and Mary (Millican) Frazier, were natives of Tennessee and Indiana. He came to Vermilion county in 1830, and has been prominently identified in the general merchandise business at this point. Mrs. Frazier died on the 22d of August, 1868. Mr. Frazier is living here on the old homestead, which adjoins the village.

Bluford J. Smith, jr., Georgetown, farmer and stock-raiser, is a native of Vermilion county, Illinois. He was born on his present place, on the 26th of September, 1843. He lived with his parents until he was twenty-four years old, when he went to Missouri and engaged in farming, living there seven years. He then returned to his present place, retaining his farm of one hundred and eighty acres in Jackson county, Missouri. He married Miss Diana Sigler on the 8th of October, 1867. She was born in this county. They have one child,—Elmer M. Mr. Smith and his brothers, James B. and Thomas J., own and farm the old homestead here, which consists of two hundred acres, located four miles east of Georgetown. His father, B. J. Smith, now deceased, was born in Tennessee, on the 6th of July, 1806, and moved from there to Kentucky; thence to Indiana, and to Illinois, entering the present place. He worked on his farm, clearing and improving, during the winters, and in summers he worked in the lead mines at Galena. He married Miss Rachel Pribble. She was born in Ohio. He was in the Black Hawk war, under Captain Sherman. They had eight children: America, Sarah, Debra, Bluford J., Jackson, Richard, James B. and Thomas J. Mr. Smith died on the 16th of December, 1877, and Mrs. Smith died on the 15th of August, 1870.

S. J. Cook, Georgetown, proprietor "Cook House," is a native of Vermilion county, Illinois. He was born on the 24th of August, 1843, and has always made his home in this county, with his parents, and assisted in their business. In June, 1861, he enlisted in the 25th Ill. Reg. Inf., and served three years and three months. He was in the battles of Pea Ridge, Missouri; Stone River, Perryville, Atlanta campaign, etc. On his return from the army he engaged with his father in the harness business. On the 15th of October, 1873, he married Miss Olive Ashby. She was born in Clark county, Illinois. His parents, Enos and Malinda (Harris) Cook, were natives of Union county, Indiana, and Hamilton county, Ohio, where they were born in 1817 and 1820, respectively. They were married in Louisville, Henry county, Indiana, on the 3d of July, 1839, and came to Vermilion county, Illinois, in 1840, where he carried on farming. He also engaged in the harness business, locating in the country and also in team, and has since made the trip in all kinds of weather, and in some cases suffering extreme hardships and privations.

A. B. Smith, Danville, farmer and stock-raiser, is a native of Washington county, Tennessee. He was born on the 25th of December, 1817, and lived there eleven years. He then, with his parents, came to Illinois, and settled near Georgetown. He lived with his parents until he was twenty-three. On the 8th of October, 1840, he married Miss Eliza Lockett. She was born in Wythe county, Virginia. After his marriage he settled on his present place. He is no office-seeker, and has held no offices except those connected with the school and roads. He owns five hundred acres in this county, principally located nine miles southeast of Danville. In early days Mr. Smith made journeys by team to Chicago, making his first trip in 1832, and he has sold wheat there as low as forty-two cents per bushel. His parents, Joseph and Sarah (Brown) Smith, were natives of Tennessee, where they were married on the 15th of August, 1812. He was born on the 7th of March, 1793, and she was born on the 29th of May, 1793. Both died in this township.

O. S. Graves, Westville, farming and stock-raising, was born in Clark county, Kentucky, on the 5th of May, 1818, and lived there until he was ten years of age. With his parents he then came to Illinois, and settled in Vermilion county, near the present place. He lived with his parents until he was thirty years of age. He then came to his present place. On the 21st of September, 1843, he married Miss Sarah Ann Ashby. She was born in Bourbon county, Kentucky, and came to Vermilion county, Illinois, with her parents, in 1829. Mr. Graves has made a number of trips to Chicago by team, taking wheat, stock, etc. His first trip dates back to 1838, and he has sold wheat there at from forty-four to sixty-four cents per bushel. They had six children,—five living, viz: James L., Henry C., Martha E., Isabel and Orvil D. The two former are married, the latter live at home. Mr. Graves owns four hundred and forty acres in this county, located on the main road from Danville to Georgetown, seven miles south of the former place. His parents, James and Margaret (Blackburn) Graves, were natives of Kentucky. They were married there, and came to Illinois in 1828. He died in July, 1857, and she is living with her son.

Charles Yoho, Georgetown, retired farmer, was born in West Virginia in the spring of 1807, and lived there eighteen years. He then went by water to Eugene, and from there to his present place, where he lived one year. He then went back to his home, and in the following winter went down the Ohio to Rising Sun, and cut wood. In the Christians held meetings in an early day at William Cunningham's. Some of the earliest preachers in that denomination were Dr. Hall, Walters, Hibbs, Watson Clark, Solomon McKinney, John Ashby, Sears, Law and Thurman.

In 1834 or 1835 the christian society called Walnut Corners church was organized, and held meetings at the house of William Cunningham and at the Eckler school-house. Several years later the place of worship was changed to the Cunningham school-house, a very good frame building for those days. In the summer of 1850 the meeting-house at the Corners was built, Frank Stevens and Samuel Mussulman being employed to do the work. It is a low-post building 30×40 feet. Its cost cannot be known. Money was subscribed and work given by the people, regardless of church or other affiliations. It was erected as a Union house, though its control has either been assumed by the Christians or left to them by general consent. Its pulpit has been freely used by ministers of all denominations. About nine years ago the larger part of the Christian society settled in State Line City, and built an edifice there, but the brethren remaining in the vicinity of the old church preserved their membership with the majority. After standing unused, and in a dilapidated state, for some time, the house was lately repaired, receiving fresh coats of paint and plastering, and it is now in a condition for indefinite use. The repairs were made by the community at large. This was the first frame church ever erected in Newell township. At present the pulpit is not regularly supplied. A flourishing Sunday-school is maintained in the summer-time.

The Asbury church building is Methodist property, and was erected in 1851. The community contributed the timbers and hauled all the material. The work was done by Frank Stevens and a man named Wilson. About $700 in cash were distributed by the society in its construction. It is 26×36 feet, low-posted, and what would be called an old church. The frame is of the old-fashioned kind, and consequently substantial. Should the building be kept in repair there can be no doubt that it will outlast many more imposing structures. It is situated on land given for the purpose by William Current, sr., in section 36, town 20. The house was consecrated on the 4th of April, 1852, Elder Fairbanks preaching the dedication sermon. Religious services are held once every three weeks. Rev. G. B. Goldsmith is the preacher in charge the present year. A Sunday-school is kept up through the summer season.

The Christian church, called Pleasant View, is located in the Leonard settlement. The society was organized at the Nauvoo school-house

Dear Mrs. Horn:

As I check the census records about the Ashby/Canaday family, I wonder if the 1850 census is correct. I think only William R., Sarah J., and George W. belong to Ellen Canaday Ashby. Evidently Stepehn also had been married before and had some children. A history of Bowater and Ellen states that he died early in life, leaving her with three small children, that she later remarried and had six more children. Bowater died in 1844 and she married Stephen Ashby in 1846, so Emeline would be an Ashby..an Emeline Ashby married in 1866 to Henry C. Leach.

I have noticed in the marrige records that a Polly Canady married John Ashby, but I do not know what Canaday that would be. I suppose her name was Mary...As in 1846 my ancestor Mary Evvins Canaday re-married and on the records she is listed as Polly Canaday.

I am sorry that I cannot give you a more definite answer to your problem, but I have not been able to follow this family through. I do know that George W. Canaday married May Jane Smith. I found no records on William R. Canaday and have records of at least 2 marriages for a Sarah J. It seems that every Canaday had a child named Sarah J.

I hope you have a good Holiday Season.

Mary Jane Smith

Grace Canaday

Dear Zandra,

Please forgive me for being so amiss in answering your letter. This has been a busy spring.

You are correct in your asumption that most of the records from Stafford County were lost or destroyed during the War Between the States. There are no marriage bonds prior to 1854, and many of the deed books and will books are missing. I can find no reference to Joseph Ashby in any of the records that are there. If he left with the rest of the family in 1816, it is possible that he never owned land in Stafford, tho he is listed in the 1810 census.

As for John and Sarah: According to the Register of Overwharton Parish, Stafford County, Virginia, 1723-1758, John Ashby and Sarah MacCullough were married 26 Feb. 1756. There are also two other entries which seem to be the same family:

b. Ashby, John, son of John Ashby, 6 June 1756
b. Ashby, Balley, son of John and Sarah Ashby, 22 Nov. 1758

According to a deposition recorded 14 Oct. 1811, John Ashby and Bailey Ashby enlisted as common soldiers for 2 years in Capt. William Washington's company of the 3rd VA Regiment and they died in the service . Signed by William Mountjoy. Following this is a statement dated 27 Dec. 1810: "John Ashby the father and Beiley Ashby the son both died in the hospital at Philadelphia, either Nov. or Dec. 1776. Robert Ashby is the eldest son of the above named John Ashby. Signed Valentine Peyton.

This is all I can tie in directly. There are other Ashby entries, of course, and some references to Sarah receiving a pension, but the names of her children are not given. Joseph could of course be the youngest, born after 21 years of marriage. Possibly you could get the desired information by checking into the pension. If there is anything specific I can look into further, please let me know. There is no charge. I am far from being a professional, and with all three of my children in school, time is not a problem.

Do you happen to know the names of the other two sisters of James Cloe (the ones who married Daniel Simms and Elijah Abbott.)? Let me know in there is anything else I can help with.

Sincerely,

Jane

of the Baums and Baumes in Continental Europe in early times. It is evident that they were in general of the landed and noble classes, possessed of considerable wealth, and of ancient lineage.

Among the earliest emigrants of the name to America were Johann Henrich Baum, who came in 1732 to Pennsylvania; Johannes and Jacob Baum, who came in 1737 from Rotterdam to Pennsylvania; Matheus or Mathew Baum, who came to Pennsylvania in 1743; Johan Philip Baum, who emigrated in 1748 to the same colony; Johan Jacob Baum, who came in 1750; George Simon Baum, who came in the ship Shirley to Pennsylvania in 1751; Johan Christian Baum, who emigrated in 1751 in the ship Neptune; Hans Jacob Baum, who came to Pennsylvania in 1751 in the ship Duke of Wirtenburg; Bertram Baum, who came over in 1752; Bolthas Baumm, who emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1752; Michael Baum, who came over in the following year; Johann Baum, who emigrated in 1764; Henrich and Carl Ludwig Baum, who came from Rotterdam to Pennsylvania in 1764; and Johann George Baum, who emigrated to the same colony in 1772. The records of these early emigrants are incomplete; and nothing has been definitely ascertained concerning their immediate families or descendants.

Another early settler in America was Adam

James Simpson Baum (1851-1919), American judge.

Alexander Robert Baum (b. 1865), ... the West, lawyer.

Frank George Baum (b. 1870), of Missouri and California, electrical engineer.

Ernest W. Baum (b. 1872), of Arizona, physician.

The coat of arms of the Baum family of Austria is described in heraldic language as follows (Rietstap, Armorial General, 1884):

> Arms.--"Coupe: 1, azure four lances of the tournament argent, placed in saltire (two in bend and two in fess), accompanied in chief of one mural crown or; 2, or, a wall embattled proper, touching the flanches, pierced in two places, roundles of the field, opening, argent, an eagle displayed sable in the doorway."
> Supporters.--"Two lions regardant or, armed ...d langued gules."

...Baum the First was born in Wurttemberg, ... of Bucks County, Penn. He and his brother, Heinrich (later changed to Henry) came over in the boat "Hope". [illegible] Forster, Master [illegible] from Rotterdam by way of [illegible], arriving at Philadelphia, October 27, 1764. Here they took the oath of allegiance to the English Crown as at that time the colonies were under British government. The name of the ship list was Carl Ludwig Baum and it is not known why he changed it to Charles. Probably the oath of allegiance had something to do with it. After the year [illegible] all male foreigners had to take this oath. It is presumed that his brothers, Michael and Phillip and sister Susanna, later Mrs. John Landis came on a later boat. A brother Samuel and another sister stayed in Germany.

Charles Baum was in the Revolutionary army and served under Capt. Douglas in the 2nd Battalion, Cumberland County, Penn. Militia. His record is in D.A.R. Lineage Book, Vol. 91, page 155.

He married Miss Barbara Youngken (not McDonald) as some historians have it.

During his stay in bucks County, Penn. his nine children were born. After some time he moved to Cumberland County and Northumberland County. In the year of 1798 he moved [illegible] family in a boat of their own, down the Ohio [illegible] creek enters the Ohio and started the first [illegible] that part of the Ohio Territory. The spot is not far from where the present little village of Chilo now stands. Wayne's treaty with the Indians was Aug. 3, 1795 and this gave the pioneers the opportunity to settle in this country. The county was called Clermont. What a wilderness it was, and their principal food supply was what they could obtain with the old flint lock muzzle loading rifle, and it behooved the head of the family to be a good shot in order to keep the larder filled.

There were very few families in the entire county of Clermont and neighbors were few and far between. Corn was planted and raised as one of the essentials of food. It was ground between stones by hand, until at a later date the old grist mill came into use. Charles Baum the First and his good wife Barbara lived here until their deaths. She died in the year of 1811 and he in the year of 1817. The records at the county seat of Batavia show that the estate was settled Feb. 28, 1818. It was located in the forks of Bullskin Creek. Michael, the son, buying out all the rest of the family.

Children of Charles Baum the First and Barbara Youngken Baum were as follows:

1. Samuel Baum. Born in Bucks county, Penn. Moved to Ohio with his father, but returned to Union County, Penn. and died there Oct. 2, 1842.
2. Elizabeth Baum. Married Peter Emery. In Penn.
3. Michael W. Baum. Married Elizabeth Richy.

4. Margurite Baum. Married Conrad Metzgar.
5. Charles Baum the Second. Married Susanne Boyer.
6. Catherine Baum. Married Benjamine Sells.
7. Mary Baum. Married Peter DeWitt.
8. Susanne Baum. Married Thomas Jones.
9. Barbara Baum. Married Leonard Metzgar. On the old deeds her name is written Barberry.

Charles and Catherine were twins.

Thus ends the history of Charles Baum the First. The man who was the progenitor of the Baum Family of Vermillion County, Illinois.

Charles Baum The Second, had a middle name William which will be used in this biography from now on. He came down the Ohio River with his parents, brothers and sisters in the year of 1798. He was born in Bucks County, Penn. in the year of 1775. This was the year of the beginning of the Revolution and as this war lasted eight years, he was a good sized boy of eight years of age when the conflict ended. He often told the story of an experience that was indelibly written on his memory. During the last year of the war, he came in contact with a British officer who threatened to stick him with his sword. He was so badly frightened that it was days before he was able to overcome his scare.

In the year of 1803, September 26, he was married to Susan Moyer of Germantown, Ky. To this union were born ten children. (Names all listed on the following pages.) In 1839 he moved to Indianola, Vermillion County, Illinois. Most of his children had preceded him by several years.

Susan Moyer was the daughter of John Moyer, one of the soldiers of the Continental Army under the direct command of General Washington. After the conflict he moved from Pensylvania to Germantown, Ky., where his wife died and was buri[illegible] After her death he moved to Clermont County, Ohio, where he died in difficult stalk, his brother shot at an owl and frightened the deer away. He said he never went hunting again with him.

As I grew up around Indianola, I heard many of the old timers speak of him, and it was always words of praise for his integrity and honesty. Mr. Clark W[illegible]s once told me that he never went into his gun shop witho[illegible]rning something constructive and fine. What a wonderful reputation to pass out of this world with. Let us hope in the Happy Hunting Ground, where he is now has good hunting and that the guns he is turning out shoot better and truer than ever.

Anyone so interested can very easily look up the family tree of Spessard, and if they are descendants of the Weaver family can well be proud of the name of Spessard.

Michael E. Baum, older brother of Charles Baum the second was born in Jan. 17, 1772. Died June 18, 1875. Aged 103 years, 5 months and 1 day. He was married twice. First wife was Elizabeth Richey, second wife was Mrs. Rhoda (Plank) Constant. There were nine children by the first marriage. None by the second.

Michael E. Baum was a hard worker. The following was taken from the Liberty Hall newspaper of Cincinnati, June 15, 1815. "Arrived June 1, the barge "Nonesuch," Capt. Michael Baum, from New Orleans. Cargo, cotton and sugar; also two large keel boats. Cargo same. He was the founder of Point Isabelle, Ohio. (Formerly called Pekin.) In the year of 1845. Most of the village was part of his farm. His home was about a quarter mile west of the [illegible]

Children of [illegible] E. Baum.
1. Isabelle. Married Richard Jackson.
2. Matilda. Married Chas. Lorge.

Lela. Deceased.
Maggie. Deceased.
Charles. Deceased.
Minnie. Living.
Ethel. Deceased.

John C. Baum.
Birch. Deceased.
Joseph. (Wid). Deceased.
Pearl. Deceased.
George H. (Tommy). Deceased.

This entire Family History of Michael E. Baum should be written up completely. It would be worth reading. But as I am interested only in the descendants of Charles Baum the Second his brother, I was not in a position to follow thru on the entire biography of this most interesting branch of the family. I hope some of his posterity will run across this biography and get busy and complete it.

CONCLUSION

I have had a great deal of pleasure out of tracking down the history of the Baum Family of Vermillion County, Illinois. And I want my readers of this biography to be considerate of the fact that I have tried to stay with the Baum name entirely. You will note that where marriage took place and the name Baum passed out I have stopped right there, as it is only the Baum name that I am interested in. Any one can carry on from there as they know their family history.

On one of the last pages of this manuscript I have inso they could be classified and know who was who. So if any of the Baums coming from the family tree of Charles Baum of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and Clermont County, Ohio, are ever asked what their origin is, they can answer straight forward and without any mental reservation that they are of German extraction on the Baum side and pure Scotch and Dutch from the Kenner and Spessard families. If there is such a thing as a one hundred per cent American, well, I guess we are it.

A very interesting thing to know, that there is a reunion of the Baum Family in the state of Pennsylvania each year and if you care to meet a few Baums, just look up the date and you will not only find them by the hundreds but by the thousand.

This autumn I spent quite a little time in Clermont County, Ohio, going over the old records in the court house and visiting the properties and old grave yards on Bullskin creek, and it was with a feeling of sadness that I left these places, realizing the hardships that my ancestors had gone thru that we might all live and have the many conveniences that we have in this day. I just wonder if we all appreciate their sacrifices in the manner that we should.

Just down the Ohio river from Bullskin Creek stands the birthplace of Gen. U. S. Grant and the site of the old tannery of Jesse Grant, his father. Gen. Grant was born in 1822 so there is no doubt that he and some of my ancestors played together and enjoyed the sports of children of that day and age.

I wish to thank Mr. Frank John Fisher of Danville, Ill., for his many helpful suggestions. Gideon T. Baum, my father, for the time he gave me. Also Mrs. Belle Baum Baldwin for the loan of Mr. Joe Baum's manuscript on the Sandusky Family. Mr. Fisher is now eighty-two years old and his mind is as clear as a bell. My father is eighty-seven and apparently in the best of health. So endeth the story.

Respectfully submitted,

Earl L. Baum

BARNETT

This James Barnett and wife Jane attempted to move from Pennsylvania to Kentucky in 1763 but sickness overtook them at Cumberland Maryland where they died in 1798. The family joined other relatives in Virginia. Later these boys builded a flat boat and floated down the Ohio River and settled in Bourbon county Kentucky near Millersburg. Of these boys, Robert and John died in Indiana and George and Moses died in Vermilion county, Illinois.

Below is another version of the ancestry of the Indianola Barnetts:

Robert E. Barnett's great grandfather was a native of Ireland (or born soon after the arrival of the family in America.) It is thought he only raised one son James, the grandfather of Robert E. He married a Miss O'Connell, also an Irish lady and they were the parents of ten children, as follows:

1. Robert
2. George
3. James, father of Rob't E.
4. Moses
5. John
6. Jane
7. Susan
8. Nancy
9. Rachel
10. Margaret

The home of this family was in Pennsylvania where the father , James, died and after his death, the mother and all the children moved into Bourbon County, Kentucky. George married while in Pennsylvania to Delila Davis of Welsh descent. They with part of their children came to Vermilion county, Ill. in 1828, settling near Indianola.

****

Frank V. Barnett was born Aug. 30, 1845 near Mary's Lick Ky. He was 10 years old when the family moved to Illinois. His father was Ambrose Barnett, son of John T who was the son of a John Barnett, a native of Maryland. In 1855 they migrated to Paris, Illinois later coming to Vermilion county, about 1863. Ambrose died in 1874, age 63 and the mother in 1882, age 69. There were six children in the family:

1. Frank V
2. Elizabeth J, wife of Robert Anderson, Kansas
3. Nancy, wife of William Spicer
4. Mary A., wife of Tillman Smink, and mother of George Schmink
5. John, died in childhood
6. James (Long Jim) a carpenter and blacksmith.

The men in the Barnett families for several generations have been mechanics. Mr . Barnett was in the Civil War, but not in any active engagement. In 1868 he married Isabel Stark, daughter of John Stark. They had seven children:

1. Carrie E., married Charles Wright
2. Sissie, died in infancy
3. Ella)
4. John) twins, Ella died in infancy; John married Mable Knipe.
5. William deceased in infancy
6. Melissa (Laura) born Apr. 8, 1876, died Apr 3, 1908
7. Rubilla (Arillie) wife of Ray McDowell.

Mr. Barnett was a builder and contractor, superintending the building of the Indianola and Sidell schools, among others.

Frank Barnett bornAug..30, 1845 died Oct. 5, 1917
Isabel Stark Barnett born Oct. 1, 1839 (1859 ?) died Mar. 28, 1905
Tombstone of Ambrose Barnett reads died July 16, 1875, age 94 yrs. 1 mo.

Note difference in the dates of Ambrose.

BAUM

The Baum family trace their ancestry back to the Royal Blood of Poland where one Charles Baum was banished from his country and fled to Germany. According to the published record of Earl Baum, Charles was born in Wurttenberg, Germany. He and his brother Heinrich (later changed to Henry) came to America on the boat "Hero" sailing from Rotterdam by way of Cowes, England, arriving at Philadelphia Oct. 27, 1764. His name on the ship list was Carl Ludwig Baum. It is not known why he changed his name. Two brothers and a sister emigrated later, Michael, Philip and Susanna,(Mrs. John Landis). One brother and a sister remained in Germany. The children of the first Charles, all born in Bucks county Pennsylvania were:

1. Samuel Baum died in Pa. in 1842
2. Elizabeth Baum married Peter Emery in Pa.
3. Michael Baum Elizabeth Richey
4. Marguerite Baum Conrad Metzgar
5. Charles Baum, 2nd Susanna Boyer
6. Catharine Baum Benjamin Sells
7. Mary Baum Peter Dewitt
8. Susanna Baum Thomas Jones
9. Barbara Baum Leonard Metzgar

One record states that Charles had married Barbara McDonald. Earl Baum says his wife was Youngken. Charles Baum, 2nd and Catharine Baum were twins. In 1798 the family migrated to Ohio, near Bullskin Creek and the river town of Chilo. The ancestor of the Vermilion county Baums was the son Charles 2nd.

Charles Baum, son of the immigrant Charles was born Sept 18, 1775. He was a gunsmith and volunteered in the War of 1812. He was religiously inclined and well respected. His home was in Claremont, Ohio. Sept 26, 1803, he married secondly, Susan Moyer of Germantown, Ky. In 1839 they moved to Vermilion county, Illinois. He died in 1871. Their children were:

1. Samuel Baum, married Sarah Weaver, 2nd Mary Watkin
2. Sarah Baum, married Leonard Van Trees, they had one son, moved to Iowa.
3. Susan Baum, married Harvey Sandusky, had a son Gilbert and daughter, named Louise.
4. Catharine Baum, married Leonard Patterson
5. Eliza Baum, married Abraham Carter, had sons Charles, Frank and Will.
6. Mary Baum, married John Weaver and had 12 children.
7. Dr. John Baum, married Miss Bonser, 2nd Harriet Wendall.
8. Charles William Baum, married Catharine Weaver.
9. Gideon N. Baum, married Ann Elizabeth Smith
10. Elizabeth Baum, died in infancy.

We shall take these men as the heads of a line and devote a chapter to each where available.

Samuel Baum, son of Charles was born in Clermont county, Ohio, Feb. 15, 1805. He married Sarah Weaver in 1823 while still in Ohio. Oct. 12, 1827, Samuel in company with the Michael Weaver family started westward in a Dearborn wagon and arrived in Parke county, Indiana. In 1828 they came to the banks of the Little Vermilion where Indianola now stands among the Alexanders, and the McDonalds, who had arrived before them. Samuel was the first to come west. After the death of his wife Sarah he married Mary Watkin: Children:

BAUM GENEALOGY

From Ely and Jordan's "History of Bucks Co., Pa." Vol. 3, pages 234-5, published 1905.

William Baum, deceased, one of the best known and respected citizens of Bedminster township, was born in Springfield township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, March 30, 1841 and was a descendant of early German settlers in that township. Heinrich or Henry Baum, the great grandfather of William, was one of a family of five brothers and two sisters, born in Wurttemberg, Germany, of which four of the brothers and one sister emigrated to America and settled in Bucks county, viz:

1. Carl or Charles
2. Heinrich or Henry
3. Michael
4. Susanna
5. Philip

Carl and Heinrich came together in the ship "Hero" arriving in Philadelphia, Oct. 27, 1764 and settled in Springfield township.

1. Carl or Charles, the eldest of the family, married Barbara Youngken, and after a residence of several years in Springfield, removed with his family to Carlisle, Cumberland Co., Pennsylvania and later removed to what was then Northumberland County, and from thence in 1798 to Northwestern Territory, now the state of Ohio, where he died. His son--

(1) Samuel, born in Springfield, Bucks County, Aug. 16, 1769, died in New Berlin, Union County, Penn. Oct. 2, 1842.
His other eight children, most of whom lived and died in Felicity, Ohio, were:
(2) Elizabeth wife of Peter Emery.
(3) Catherine " " Benjamin Sells.
(4) Mary " " Peter DeWitt.
(5) Susanna " " Thomas Jones.
(6) Margaret " " Conrad Metzger.
(7) Barbara " " Leonard Metzger.
(8) Michael
(9) Charles

2. Heinrich Baum, the second of the emigrant brothers, as before stated, arrived in this country in 1764, and almost immediately after his arrival located in Springfield township, where he took up a tract of land on which he resided until his death in 1803. His wife's name was Elizabeth but her maiden name is unknown by her descendants. They were the parents of eleven children, all of whom were born and reared in Springfield, viz:

(1) Abraham
(2) Anna married John Landis and removed to Warren Co., New Jersey.
(3) Susanna married Isaac Meyer of Springfield.
(4) Elizabeth " Henry Ackerman.
(5) Henry--the grandfather of William, the subject of this sketch.

The Baum Family Record

Carl or Charles Baum—born in Wurtemberg, Germany, the eldest of five brothers and two sisters. Five emigrated to America: (1) Carl or Charles; (2) Heinrich or Henry; (3) Michael; (4) Susannah; (5) Philip.

Charles and Henry Baum came first—on the ship "Hero." Ralph Forster was the Master. The "Hero" sailed from Rotterdam, thence to Cowes, England, and from Cowes, England, to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where she arrived on October 27, 1764. Charles and Henry Baum took the oath of allegiance, as was required of all male immigrants who were not British citizens and who arrived at the Pennsylvania port after 1727. They settled in Springfield, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, where Michael, Susannah and Philip settled later. There were two other children who lived and died in Germany whose names are unknown. (Reference: Strausburger and Hinke, "Pennsylvania German Pioneers," Vol. 1, p. 698.)

The name of Carl or Charles Baum appears on the ship's list as Carl Ludwig Baum. It is not known why he changed his name to Charles, except, perhaps, that Charles appeared to be a more American name.

Charles Ludwig Baum served in the Revolutionary War, beginning his service in 1781. He was a member of the Captain James Douglas Company, 2nd Battalion, Cumberland County, Pennsylvania Militia. The military record of Charles Ludwig Baum will be found in "DAR Lineage Book", Vol. 91, page 165. (His place of birth and maiden name of wife—Poland and McDonald—are errors.)

Charles Ludwig Baum married Barbara Youngken and after residing several years in Springfield moved with his family to Carlisle, Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, and later to what was then known as Northumberland County. In 1798, he and his family moved to the Northwest Territory, now the State of Ohio. There, he bought land on the Fork of Bullskin Creek, Clermont County, Ohio, where he lived until his death in 1817 and where he is thought to be buried. His wife, Barbara, died in 1811. She was a native of Germany and both Charles and Barbara were Lutherans. The last known owner of the farm on which Charles and Barbara lived was William Tolin.

Charles and Barbara had nine children. Some of the nine children were born in Pennsylvania and others in Ohio. Those who were born in Ohio lived and died in the vicinity of Felicity, Ohio. These nine children were: (1) Samuel, the eldest, born in Springfield, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, August 16, 1769, died in New Berlin, Union County, Pennsylvania, October 2nd, 1842; (2) Elizabeth, wife of Peter Emery; (3) Catherine, wife of Benjamin Sells, married January 11, 1802; (4) Mary, wife of Peter Dewitt; (5) Susannah, wife of Thomas Jones; (6) Margaret, wife of Conrad Metzger; (7) Barbara, wife of Leonard Metzger; (8) Michael E., married Elizabeth Richie January 6, 1806; (9) Charles, moved to Illinois where he married, lived and died. The town is now called Indianola.

Michael E. Baum was born January 17, 1772, in Carlisle, Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, and came with his father, Charles Ludwig Baum, to Ohio in 1798 where he was married to Elizabeth Richie on January 6, 1806, by William Fee Justice.

Michael E. Baum was the founder of Point Isabel, Ohio, in 1845, and the history of Clermont County, Ohio, makes frequent reference to him. He was a member of First Calvary M. E. Church, in Washington Township. His will was filed in Batavia, Clermont County, Ohio, on July 19, 1875. Family Bible records of Michael and Elizabeth were destroyed when the home of his son, Joseph, burned, so there is no known complete record of his children. It is known positively that there were five children, but beyond that, there are no known records. After the death of Elizabeth (date unknown), Michael married Rodah (last name unknown). She was born in Maryland in 1794 and died in Ohio September 2, 1867. There were no children by Rodah. Both Michael and Rodah are buried in Point Isabel, Ohio.

The five known children of Michael and Elizabeth were: (1) Benjamin Baum; (2) Isabella, married Richard Jackson, January 3, 1826; (3) Barbara, married Rezin (Reason) Tevis, July 17, 1834; (4) Joseph, married Elizabeth Ann Swope, August 7, 1831 or 1832; (5) Susannah, born 1813, married John Hill, 1832. Married again to her cousin, John Wood, in 1879-80. Buried in Esgate Cemetery, Jackson County, Iowa.

Joseph Baum, son of Michael E. and Elizabeth, and grandson of Charles, married Elizabeth Ann Swope, August 7, 1831 or 1832. She was born in 1818 and died in Point Isabel. Joseph was Trustee of Washington Township in 1854.

They had twelve children: (1) Benjamin Wesley (1833-1905); (2) Henry (1834-1838); (3) Margaret (1838-1842); (4) Josephus (1839-1893); (5) Michael (1842-1852); (6) John C. (1844-1906); (7) Josephine B. (1847-1879); (8) Clarabelle (1848-1852); (9) Fletcher White (1851-1933); (10) Elizabeth B. (1854-1905); (11) Susannah (1856-1934); (12) Mary Olive (1858-1884).

Elizabeth B. Baum, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Ann Swope, was born in Point Isabel, Ohio, on September 28, 1854. She married Edwin Canter on September 28, 1880. They had three children: (1) Orlando Estle, born July 12, 1881, died May 29th, 1939, buried in Williamsburg, Ohio; (2) Ethel Adonna, born August 11, 1886, died February 8th, 1953, buried in Williamsburg, Ohio; (3) Birch E., born August 19, 1881, died November 20th, 1960, buried in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida.

Elizabeth Baum, after the death of Edwin Canter, was married to George Holmes, on October 3, 1897. They had no children.

Ethel Canter, daughter of Elizabeth and Edwin Canter, was born August 11, 1886, and married Ben Fencher on August 27, 1905. They had one daughter, Thelma, born June 7, 1907, who married Joseph J. Leary, June 15, 1940.

Historical references can be found in: "History of Bucks County, Pennsylvania", by Ely & John W. Jordan, published 1905, Vol. 3, pages 234-5; "History of Brown County, Lewis Township, Ohio"; "History of Clermont County, Ohio."

Susanah Baum, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Ann Swope Baum, was born in Pt. Isabel, Ohio, November 20, 1856, married Marcus Harvey Purkhiser at her home in Pt. Isabel, Ohio, October 12, 1876.

Marcus Harvey was the son of William Page and Eliza Rush Purkhiser, born at Laurel, Clermont County, Ohio, died December 19, 1923 at Ridgefarm, Illinois. (Rush Medical College of Chicago was named for Eliza's father who was an early and well-known surgeon.)

Susanah and Marcus Harvey Purkhiser had six children: (1) Harry Fletcher and (2) Howard Harvey both died in infancy and buried at Calvery; (3) Eugene Raymond, married Mildred Radake; (4) Claire Adonna, married William T. White, born October 17, 1882, died December 1, 1952; (5) Edward Grant, married Marie _____; (6) Louise, married Burton R. Cannon.

Carl Ludwig Baum arrived at Philadelphia on Saturday, October 27, 1764 aboard the Ship Hero from Rotterdam along with his brother Heinrich (Henry). His family was of noble blood in the community of Wurtenberg (Formerly West Germany). The boat trip was fatal for almost one-third of the immigrants. Many of those who died were women and children. When he arrived in the US he changed his name to Charles. He fought as a militia man on the reserve force in Washington's Army under the command of General McDonald. He married Barbara McDonald, his commanding officer's daughter. They moved to Bucks County, PA and later helped to settle Clermont Co., Ohio. His children were Samuel, John, Mary, Sarah, Catherine, Charles, Susan, Elizabeth, Gideon and Eliza. I would appreciate any information about the Germany ancestors of Carl and Heinrich. I have Baum info to share re: Vermilion Co., Illinois Baums.

Yes, I'd be interested in sharing information regarding the Baum family line. Which direction did your husband's take? Ours became merged with the Richey's and then the Sells' ... did yours? They wound up primarily in Ohio from PA. Please email me directly if you wish at nlange@foothill.net

Look forward to hearing from you.

The story that my family tells is that Carl (Charles) and Heinrich (Henry) were involved in the partition of Poland during the late 1700s. Carl was the eldest child of "noble" blood. He was able to sign his name on the register of the Ship Hero and Heinrich was only able to make his mark (X). I was told by Chester Baum, my grandfather, that Carl's parents were titled (baron? I think). Carl was in enough trouble with the government and his family that a passage to America was a great escape. He was a revolutionary and loved excitement! I have other stories.

Her parents were CHARLES (or CARL) LUDWIG BAUM and BARBARA YOUNGKEN. Date & Place of m. not known. Both d. in Clermont Co.OHIO; he in 1817; she in 1811. They had many children. The History of Clermont Co.OHIO (1980) has a large article written by RUTH E. TREES, Box 167, Warrington IN 46186. She notes that she will share info on BAUM/TREES Family. (Baum is Germ. for Trees) Her article says (in part): CARL (or CHARLES) BAUM-b.in Wurtemberg, Germ., the eldest of 5 bro.s & 2 sisters. Five emigrated to Amer: Carl/Charles, Michael, Heinrich/Henry, Susannah, Philip. Charles & Henry came 1st on ship "Hero"; arrived Philadelphia 27 Oct.1764. They settled in Springfield,Bucks Co.PA; where Michael, Susannah, & Philip settled later. There were 2 other children who lived & died in Germany whose names are unknown. (Mrs.Trees cites Reference: Strausburger & Hinke, "Penn.Germ.Pioneers"; Vol.1, p.698) Charles Ludwig Baum served in the Rev.War, beginning his service in 1781. He was a member of Capt.James Douglas Comp, 2nd Batt, Cumberland Co.PA Militia. The military record of Charles Ludwig Baum will be found in "DAR Lineage Book", Vol.91, Pg.165. (His place of birth & maiden name of wife-Poland & McDonald-are errors.) Charles married BARBARA YOUNGKEN and after residing several yr.s in Springfield moved w/his family to Carlisle,Cumberland Co.PA and later to what was then known as Northumberland Co.PA In 1798 they moved to the Northwest Territory (now st.of OHIO). There, he bought land on fork of Bullskin Creek, Clermont Co where he lived until his death in 1817 & where he is thought to be buried. His wife, Barbara Youngken, died in 1811. She was a native of Germany; both were Lutherans. They had 9 children: Samuel (b.PA 1769, d.PA 1842); Elizabeth wife of Peter Emery; Catherine wife of Benj.Sells (m. 11 Jan.1802); Mary wife of Peter De Witt; Susannah wife of Thomas Jones; Margaret wife of Conrad Metzger; Barbara wife of Leonard Metzger; Michael E. m. Elizabeth Richie (m. 6 Jan.1806); and Charles moved to Indianola, IL where he married & died. ....Mrs. Trees wrote a lot more about Michael's children etc I think you may want to contact Mrs. Trees with any direct line you've traced so far to see if she can help. I'm pretty sure she still lives at that address; there was a note in the Clermont Co.OH Genel. Society newsletter last summer about a Baum/Trees Family Reunion (I think it is 4th of July each year). Other research I've done shows a lot of Baum's in PA in 1750-1800 period; tax lists, censuses, etc.

I'll be trying to find more on this line. Hope this helps someone.

Pa. Arch. - 3rd ser., V. 24. Warranties of Land in Bucks Co. and Cumberland Co. No Carl, Charles, or Ludwig Baum there.

GIDEON BAUM

Mr. Baum's grandfather, Charles Baum, was born in Poland, and after the partition of that unfortunate country, it is probable that he with other patriots spent some time in Germany. While yet comparatively a young man he made his way to the American Colonies, where he married an English lady by the name of Barbara McDonald, a relative of the dashing and gallant young McDonald of General Marion's army, the war of the Revolution, which soon afterwards followed, and in which Mr. Baum was appointed on the reserve force, for the protection of the settlements and special duty. After the close of the war he continued to reside in Bucks County, PA, where his children, nine in number, were born and raised. The year following Wayne's treaty with the Indians the entire family proceeded down the Ohio River in a small boat, till they reached the mouth of Bullskin Creek, near where Chilo, a small river village, now stands. Here they landed and commenced the first settlement made in the Territory of Ohio. This town is is now a steamboat landing opposite Augusta, on the shore of the Ohio River, then a small trading post from which the hunters obtained their ammunition, and the few white families bought the most necessary household articles, in exchange for the skins of the game then abounding in the country, deer, bear, & c. Their sole dependence for meats were the fruits of the rifle, and one of the most essentail qualifications in the head of a family was to be a good shot. There were at the time very few white families in what is now known as Clermont County, and the wild game and equally wild Indians abounded on every hand. They ground their corn in hand-mills, made from boulders taken from the creeks and river shores, until the horse-mill was introduced at a later day. In this County, Mr. Baum and his wife lived till removed by death, she in 1811 and he some six years later.

The father of the subject of this sketch, also named Charles, was born in 1775, and died in 1871 in Vermilion County, ILL. He married Miss Susan Moyer, of Germantown, KY Sep 26, 1803. He continued his residence in Clermont County, OH, till 1839, when he followed his children to this County. He settled in what was then known as the McDonald neighborhood, buying a farm containing an orchard that he might enjoy the luxury of fruit in his old age. In selecting a home he made a location more with reference to church and school privileges than to make money, his mind in his old age turning almost exclusively to the intersts of the future world. His house was the place where the weary itinerant generally hitched his horse and stopped to enjoy the free and hearty Christian hospitality of a wetern home. After the death of his wife which occurred in 1861, he remained among his children up to the time of his decease. They both died in the fellowship of the M.E. Church, in which they had for many years preserved a constant Christian standing. They raised ten children, born in the following order; Samuel, John, Mrs. Mary (Jno.) Weaver, Mrs. Sarah (Squire) Vantreese, Charles, Mrs. Catherine (Leonard) Patterson, Mrs. Susan (Harvey) Sandusky, Elizabeth, Gideon N., and Mrs. Eliza (Abram) Carter. Four of these yet reside in Vermilion County, viz., Gideon, Charles, Susan and Eliza. Mary resides in Lyon County, KS. The other are dead. These children were raised up to be honorable, industrious, and useful citizens, and those living are in good circumstances.

Mr. Baum's grandfather on his mother's side, John Moyer, was an old Continental soldier during the Rev War, and served throughout the whole struggle, and a part of the time under the immediate command of General Washington. He married a Miss Catherine Moyer, of no known blood relationship, though of the same name. They moved from PA to KY, at an early date, where she died and was buried at Germantown. After her death the widowed husband continued his way to Clermont County, OH where he died in 1824.

Mr. Baum, whose name stands at the head of this history, was born in Clermont County, OH, Jan 10, 1824. He arrived in Vermilion County, ILL, in the spring of 1839. In 1845, he entered and improved an eighty acre tract now included in the farm of Mr. Lewis Greene. August 1, 1847, he married Miss Ann E. Smith. About 1849 he sold his farm and moved to what is now Elwood Township, where he farmed four years. He then sold out again, and bought a little south of Ridge Farm, where he again remained some four years, when he again sold and next bought the old homse place formerly occupied by his father, where he resided till 1860, when he moved to Indianola, where he has since resided engaged in farming and merchandising. He now owns a farm of 100 acres, joining up to this town, in which he operates a flourushing dry goods store. He has a family of four sons and three daughters, born as follows: John, a young man ehgaged in the management if the store with his father, Mrs. Mary (Frank) Miller, Tilghman, Charley, Melissa, Oliver, and Emma Smith, the eldest, who died at the age of three years.

Mr. Baum has never been an aspirant for political preferment, but has chosen the quiet enjoyment of private life. In politics he has been a life-long Democrat, and, with the exception of Horace Greeley, has voted for every Democratic nominee for the Presidency, from the time he was old enough to exercise the right of the civil franchise of this country. He emphatically belongs to a pioneer family, which for the past three generations has been found on the frontiers of the westward march of civilization, first in PA, then in OH, and last in ILL.

Allison of Paris, of that State. This lady e some three months. A short time after the loss of band directed his course to Monroe County, Indiana, irst settlers. He made a location on the present site n, and assisted in the erection of the first house put was instrumental in the organization of the first County, which met for worship some time at his ng after becoming a citizen of this County he married laughter of William and Hannah Millikan. In 1825 they left Indiana and came to Vermilion County, Illinois, and settled on the present site of Georgetown, where he lived till removed by death, April 6, 1854. His widow is yet living in this town. They had a family of thirteen children —five sons and eight daughters, eight of whom are still living.

William, the eldest, and only child born in Indiana, is engaged in the mercantile business in Georgetown, and is its oldest living inhabitant. Elijah is a retired farmer, and resides in the same town. Juletty and husband, Dr. A. G. Porter, reside in Lebanon, Indiana. Eliza J., the wife of David L. Peck, resides in Vermilion County. Louzena and husband, Judge Oliver Gleanor, reside in Shelbyville, Indiana. Lorena is the wife of Dr. J. Blanchard, and resides in State Line, Indiana. Lucinda and husband, Winfield Baum, reside in Collusa County, Cal. Melissa, the wife of Dr. Frizell, resides in Butler, Bates County, Missouri. Jacob served his country as a soldier in the Mexican War, and died about three years after his return home. Carroll enlisted into the United States service at the beginning of the late Civil War, and was killed at the battle of Peach Tree Creek, after doing duty as a soldier some three years. George W. was also a Union soldier of the same war, and Second Lieutenant of the old 25th Illinois Volunteers. He served through the whole war, returned home, then went to Montana Territory, where he was killed by the Indians. Mahala married Dr. Walton Rogers of Shawnee, Kansas, and died in June, 1874. Nancy, the second child, died in infancy, which completes the family list.

GIDEON BAUM.

MR. BAUM'S grandfather, Charles Baum, was born in Poland, and after the partition of that unfortunate country, it is probable that he with other patriots spent some time in Germany. While yet comparatively a young man he made his way to the American Colonies, where he married an English lady by the name of Barbara McDonald, a relative of the dashing and gallant young McDonald of General Marion's army, in the war of the Revolution, which soon afterwards followed, and in which Mr. Baum was appointed on the reserve force, for the protection of the settlements and special duty. After the close of the war he continued to reside in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, where his children, nine in number, were born and raised. The year following Wayne's treaty with the Indians the entire family proceeded down the Ohio River in a small family boat, till they reached the mouth of Bullskin Creek, near where Chilo, a small river village, now stands. Here they landed and commenced the first settlement made in the Territory of Ohio. This town is now a steamboat landing opposite Augusta, on the other shore of the Ohio River, then a small trading post from which the hunters obtained their ammunition, and the few white families bought the most necessary household articles, in exchange for the skins of the game then abounding in the country, deer, bear, &c. Their sole dependence for meats were the fruits of the rifle, and one of the most essential qualifications in the head of a family was to be a good shot. There were at the time very few white families in what is now known as Clermont County, and the wild game and equally wild Indians abounded on every hand. They ground their corn in hand-mills, made from boulders taken from the creeks and river shores, until the horse-mill was introduced at a later day. In this County Mr. Baum and his wife lived till removed by death, she in 1811 and he some six years later.

The father of the subject of this sketch, also named Charles, was born in 1775, and died in 1871 in Vermilion County, Illinois. He married Miss Susan Moyer, of Germantown, Kentucky, September 26th, 1803. He continued his residence in Clermont County, Ohio, till 1839, when he followed his children to this County. He settled in what was then known as the McDonald neighborhood, buying a farm containing an orchard that he might enjoy the luxury of fruit in his old age. In selecting a home he made a location more with reference to church and school privileges than to make money, his mind in his old age turning almost exclusively to the interests of the future world. His house was the place where the weary itinerant generally hitched his horse and stopped to enjoy the free and hearty Christian hospitality of a western home. After the death of his wife which occurred in 1861, he remained among his children up to the time of his decease. They both died in the fellowship of the M. E. Church, in which they had for many years preserved a constant Christian standing. They raised ten children, born in the following order; Samuel, John, Mrs. Mary, (Jno.) Weaver, Mrs. Sarah (Squire) Vantreese, Charles, Mrs. Catherine (Leonard) Patterson, Mrs. Susan (Harvey) Sandusky, Elizabeth, Gideon N., and Mrs. Eliza (Abram) Carter. Four of these yet reside in Vermilion County, viz., Gideon, Charles, Susan and Eliza. Mary resides in Lyon County, Kansas. The others are dead. These children were raised up to be honorable, industrious, and useful citizens, and those living are in good circumstances.

Mr. Baum's grandfather on his mother's side, John Moyer, was an old Continental soldier during the Revolutionary war, and served throughout the whole struggle, and a part of the time under the immediate command of General Washington. He married a Miss Catherine Moyer, of no known blood relationship, though of the same name. They moved from Pennsylvania to Kentucky, at an early date, where she died and was buried at Germantown. After her death the widowed husband continued his way to Clermont County, Ohio, where he died in 1824.

Mr. Baum, whose name stands at the head of this history, was born in Clermont County, Ohio, January 10th, 1824. He arrived in Vermilion County, Illinois, in the spring of 1839. In 1845, he entered and improved an eighty acre tract now included in the farm of Mr. Lewis Greene. August 1st, 1847, he married Miss Ann E. Smith. About 1849 he sold his farm and moved to what is now Elwood Township, where he farmed four years. He then sold out again, and bought a little south of Ridge Farm, where he again remained some four years, when he again sold and next bought the old home place formerly occupied by his father, where he resided till 1860, when he moved to Indianola, where he has since resided engaged in farming and merchandising. He now owns a farm of one hundred acres, joining up to this town, in which he operates a flourishing dry goods store. He has a family of four sons and three daughters, born as follows: John, a young man engaged in the management of the store with his father, Mrs. Mary (Frank) Miller, Tilghman, Charley, Melissa, Oliver, and Emma Smith, the eldest, who died at the age of three years.

Mr. Baum has never been an aspirant for political preferment, but has chosen the quiet enjoyment of private life. In politics he has been a life-long Democrat, and, with the exception of Horace Greeley, has voted for every Democratic nominee for the Presidency, from the time he was old enough to exercise the right of the civil franchise of his country. He emphatically belongs to a pioneer family, which for the past three generations has been found on the frontiers of the westward march of civilization, first in Pennsylvania, then in Ohio, and last in Illinois.

MICHAEL FISHER.

MR. FISHER is a native of Carroll Township, Vermilion County. He was born Nov. 6th, 1835, and with the exception of four years spent in Kansas and Missouri (from 1857 to 1861) has resided all his life within his native township. During his early days he had about such advantages for education as were common to the pioneer times of the County, going to school during the winter seasons and working on the farm in the summer seasons. He afterwards attended the Georgetown Seminary, where he acquired a knowledge of Latin and higher mathematics, and afterwards commenced the work of a teacher, and was, we believe, teaching in Missouri at the time the late Civil War broke out, when he returned to Vermilion County, and made his home with his parents up to the time of his marriage to Miss Maryette Baum, daughter of John Baum by his wife, formerly Miss Harriet Davis, of Indiana. They were old settlers of this County, and of fine family and social standing. After the death of Mrs. Fisher's father, in or about 1863, her mother took another husband, Mr. John Gomel, and they now reside in Coles County.

After his marriage, Mr. Fisher settled down to farm-life, and has also done something in the live stock trade. For a number of years past he has made himself useful to his township in the discharge of the duties of a number of town offices. In the Spring of 1866 he was elected Assessor and Collector, which position he filled for a term of four years. In 1867 he was elected Justice of the Peace and Town Clerk, and has filled the former office ever since. In all these positions he has proven himself capable and honest. He has not been heretofore, nor is he now, an aspirant for official preferment, and the various little offices which he has held, have been accepted more to accommodate his immediate community than for any other purpose; but it is our candid opinion, as well as that of his many friends, that his qualifications fully constitute him efficient for any office of his County within the gift of the people. He has been prosperous, at least, to an average extent. He owns considerable farming land, and a nice property joining up to the town of Indianola, on which stands a good and substantial two-story brick residence. Two promising children constitute the fruits of his marriage, viz.: John H. and Maud C. His father and mother are both living, and are well known throughout the County as old settlers and wealthy citizens. His father, David P. Fisher, was born in Brown County, Ohio, August 29th, 1809, where he lived till about eighteen years old, then spent some six years in Park County, Indiana. In 1834 he arrived in Vermilion County, Illinois, and settled where he now lives, near Indianola. He commenced operations as a farmer on 160 acres of unimproved land, and by hard work and good management has pushed up his possessions to about 1500 acres of good land. Two years after his arrival in this County he married Miss Jane Weaver. Five children constitute the fruits of this union —four of whom are living, Michael, John, George, and Lucinda, the wife of L. C. Greene. Mary J., the third heir in order of birth, married Wm. Hill. They both died residents of this County. With the exception of George, who lives in Edgar County, the surviving children all reside in Vermilion County.

The Fisher family are of German descent, and the ancestors of the present generation arrived in this country while the States were British Colonies. The great-grandfather of the subject of this sketch came over from Germany when a young man, and during the American Revolution took sides with the Colonies, and after the acknowledgment of the Independence of the States, moved to Ohio, and died and was buried in Brown County, of that State. He raised twelve children by two wives. George, John, Jacob, William, Sarah, and Elizabeth by the first, and Daniel, Frederick, Mary, Susanna, Fanny and Abigail by the second. William, Mr. Fisher's grandfather, served two distinct campaigns during the war of 1812. He married a Miss Cynthia Lear, a native of Kentucky. He lived the principal part of his days in Ohio, then moved to Indiana, and died at Rockville, Park County. He raised a family of six children: Mrs. Merinda (Jesse) Baker, David P., George, Mrs. Lucinda (Robert) McMillan, Mrs. Livona (Archie L.) Wishard and Wilson. George lives at Puget Sound, Washington Territory, Livona in Oregon, and Merinda in Park County, Indiana. The others, with the exception of David, are dead. Mr. Fisher's grandfather, Michael Weaver, is still living, the oldest inhabitant of the County. If he lives till the 18th of August, 1875, he will have completed his hundredth year. He was born August 18th, 1775, the year before the declaration of our National Independence. He was a soldier of the war of 1812, and was born near Hagerstown, Maryland, where he married a Miss Mary Spessard, a German lady. After his marriage he went to Pennsylvania, but not liking the country he went on to Kentucky, where he stayed about three years, and then crossed over into Clermont County, Ohio. After spending several years in that County he moved to that of Brown, where he lived ten years. From Brown County he emigrated to Vermilion County, Illinois, where he landed in 1828, where he has resided ever since. He now lives with Mr. Fisher's father, his wife having died some four years ago. He has raised nine children: Mrs. Sarah (Samuel) Baum, John, Mrs. Mary (Benjamin) Baum, Mrs. Fisher, Elijah, Mrs. Catharine (Charles) Baum, Mrs. Clara (Isaac) Fisher, Mrs. Nancy (John) Cole, and Mrs. Louisa (James) Gains. Mr. Weaver's first Presidential vote was cast for Thomas Jefferson, and we believe he has voted at every Presidential election since. He has had a constitution like iron. In all his transactions his life has been characterized by the strictest honesty, and he is not conscious of ever having wronged a man out of a cent. He has never taken more than six per cent. on money, and (he has been a money loaner for years) has never turned the needy from his doors hungry. All his early life was spent on the frontiers, and he has passed through many dangers, and is yet spared,—the man older than our nation.

JOHN W. DALE.

MR. DALE was born in Clark County, Ohio, January 15, 1842. In 1856 the family moved to Warren County, Indiana, and after a brief residence came on to Vermilion County, Illinois, and settled about six and a half miles southeast of Rossville, where the parents still reside, well known and respected citizens of the community.

Mr. Dale was about eighteen years of age when he arrived in this County, and has made it his home ever since. In 1861 he entered the Union Army in response to the second call of the Government for troops, and enlisted for a three years' term. He was severely wounded at the battle of Chickamauga, from the effects of which it became necessary to amputate his left arm. After the close of the war he returned home and attended school two years, completing a common English education. At the November election of 1860 he was elected County Clerk, and was re-elected in 1873, and is therefore the present incumbent.

June 26, 1873, he was joined in marriage to Miss Hattie I. Hicks of Perryville, Indiana, where her father still resides.

Mr. Dale's recollections only extend definitely back to his grandfather, Jacob Dale, who was a native of Maryland, where he died. He raised quite a large family of whom John J., Mr. Dale's father, and a brother Benjamin of Cincinnati are the only survivors. Mr. Dale's father was born in Maryland, in 1809, and moved to Clark County, Ohio, where he married Miss Elizabeth Davisson, by whom he has raised eight children. One, Daniel B., fell in the battle of Stone River during the late war; Isaac, a Methodist minister, is located in Indiana; Sarah and husband, Isaac Near, are residents of Clark County, Ohio. Jacob, Mrs. Martha (Wm. M.) Ross, and Miss Maggie and Emma are citizens of this County, and the latter two are at home with their parents.

JACOB C. SANDUSKY.

AMONG the prominent and enterprising young farmers of Catlin Township we give a space in our pages to a short notice of Mr. Sandusky and family. He was born, January 12, 1841 in what is now Georgetown Township, near Brooks' Point, and on the farm originally settled by his grandfather, Isaac Sandusky, a prominent and early settler of the County. During his early days Mr. Sandusky only received a common-school education, after which he immediately settled down to farm life and stock raising.

September 28, 1864, he married Miss Mary J., the daughter of Charles Goins of Catlin Township. In 1865 he bought an improved forty acre tract, a part of Section 24, and near the little town of Catlin, on which he settled and commenced operating as agriculturist and trader. This place has grown in his hands until it now embraces one hundred and seventy-five acres, all under cultivation and contains good improvements. He also owns three hundred and sixty acres about a mile south west of Fairmount, a property inherited from the estate of his father, the late Josiah Sandusky. Mr. Sandusky proposes to sell his farm near Catlin, in order to get his property together, and we call attention to the fact, that it is a number one farm, and a fine opening for an energetic man having at command a little capital.

The farm near Fairmount is a choice piece of land, is well stocked, and under fair improvements; for a view of which see our illustrations.

Catlin was laid off from a portion of Mr. Sandusky's premises, and he has largely assisted in building up this neat and thriving village. He was in the dry goods business in Catlin some five years in co-partnership with G. W. Tilton; retiring from the firm in 1873, Mr. Kiger taking his place in the business.

Mr. Sandusky is now devoting his exclusive attention to the interests of his farms, and we predict for him a brilliant future as a trader and farmer.

His mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Sandusky is yet living near Catlin, on a dowry of three hundred acres, a part of the fine estate accumulated by her husband. They raised a family of four children; Jacob, Mrs. Morning (J. D.,) Culp, Guy and Sy; all living in this County. The Sandusky family is of Polish extraction, and the name was originally spelled Sodowsky. The ancestry came to this country after the partition of Poland, from which they were exiled. They were early settlers in both Virginia and Kentucky. Mr. Sandusky's grandfather, Isaac, was in the war of 1812, was captured and held a prisoner at Detroit, but finally making his escape, he passed on his way home to Kentucky, through Vermilion County, to which he even then took a fancy, and to which he finally returned.

WILLIAM BAUM

WILLIAM BAUM, deceased, one of the best known and respected citizens of Bedminster township, was born in Springfield township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, March 30, 1841, and was a descendant of early German settlers in that township. Heinrich or Henry Baum, the great-grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was one of a family of five brothers and two sisters, born in Wurtemberg, Germany, of which four of the brothers and one sister emigrated to America and settled in Bucks county, viz: Carl or Charles, Heinrich, Michael, Susanna, and Philip BAUM. Carl and Heinrich came together in the ship "Hero,' arriving in Philadelphia, October 27, 1764, and settled in Springfield township. Carl, the eldest of the family, married Barbara Youngken, and after a residence of several years in Springfield, removed with his family to Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, and later removed to what was then Northumberland county and from thence, in 1798, to Northwestern Territory, now the State of Ohio, where he died. His son Samuel, born in Springfield, Bucks county, August 16, 1709, died in New Berlin, Union county, Pennsylvania, October 2, 1842. His other eight children, most of whom lived and died in Felicity, Ohio, were: Elizabeth, wife of Peter Emery; Catharine, wife of Benjamin Sells; Mary, wife of Peter DeWitt; Susanna, wife of Thomas Jones; Margaret, wife of Conrad Metzger; Barbara, wife of Leonard Metzger; Michael and Charles Baum. Michael, the third of the emigrant brothers, also settled in Bucks county and reared a family of ten children, as follows: Samuel, who settled in Montgomery county; Elizabeth, the wife of John Trumbore, of Milford; Mary, wife of John Trumbore; Ann, wife of John Gregg; Catharine, wife of Jacob Werhold, of Rockhill; Susan, wife of Jacob Willauer; Michael, of Milton, Pennsylvania; Henry, of Montgomery county; Hannah, wife of William Grafley; and Sarah, Phillip, the youngest of the emigrant brothers, married Mary Moyer, settled in New Britain township, where he died at an advanced age, on March 1, 1841, without issue. Susanna, the sister, married John Landis, of Milford township, and had two sons: Samuel and Henry. Another brother Samuel and a sister lived and died in Wurtemberg.

Heinrich Baum, the second of the emigrant brothers, as before stated, arrived in this country in 1764, and almost immediately after his arrival located in Springfield township, where he took up a tract of land on which he resided until his death in 1803. His wife's name was Elizabeth, but her maiden name is unknown by her descendants. They were the parents of eleven children, all of whom were born and reared in Springfield, viz: Abraham, Anna, who married John Landis and removed to Warren county, New Jersey; Susanna, who married Isaac Meyer, of Springfield; Elizabeth, who married Henry Ackerman; Henry, the grandfather of the subject of this sketch; Catharine, who married Samuel Bleam; Hannah, who married John Shelly; Margaret, who married Henry Bleam; Barbara, who married Michael Huddle; Philip, who died in 1814, without issue; and Mary, who married Joseph Moyer, and died in 1815.

Henry Baum, second son and fifth child of Heinrich and Elizabeth Baum, was born and reared in Springfield township, Bucks county, and spent his whole life there, dying in 1823. He married Magdalene Moyer, daughter of William Moyer, born in Springfield, June 17, 1707, died there February 12, 1848, son of the Reverend Peter Moyer, one of the early Mennonite ministers of Bucks county, who was born in Switzerland about 1723 and settled in Springfield in 1752. The mother of Magdalene (Moyer) Baum was Barbara Overholt, who was born December 27, 1767, and died September 1, 1850. The children of Henry and Magdalene (Moyer) Baum were William, Joseph, Henry, Elizabeth, wife of Henry Focht, of Lehigh county; and Mary, who married Samuel Detweiler. After the death of Henry Baum, his widow married * John Shantz and had three children: Abraham, Lydia and Sarah.

Joseph Baum, second son of Henry and Magdalene, was born in Springfield, September 26, 1810. Left and orphan at the age of thirteen years, he learned the trade of a shoemaker with Christian Moyer, of Hilltown township, and followed that trade until his marriage, when he settled in Springfield township. After a few years spent in agricultural pursuits in Springfield he removed to Bedminster township, where he resided for a few years; returned again to Springfield, but later again removed to Bedminster where he purchased the farm on which his son William lately resided and passed the remainder of his life there, dying April 28, 1892. He was an active and prominent man in the community, filling the office of school director in Springfield township, and that of supervisor for eighteen years in Springfield and ten years in Bedminster. He also served as township auditor. He was a member of the New Mennonite church. He married in 1828 Esther Moyer, born August 3, 1808, daughter of Christian and Barbara (Landis) Moyer, and they were the parents of six children: Hannah, widow of Jacob K. Overholt, of Bedminster; Sarah, who married Christian F. Meyers: Henry, who married Hannah Moyer and resides in Philadelphia; Joseph, who died in the army in 1863; William, the subject of this sketch; and Magdaleana, who died at the age seven years.

William Baum, third son and fifth child of Joseph and Ester (Moyer) Baum, born in Springfield township, March 30, 1841, received his education at the public schools. Reared to the life of a farmer he took charge of the home farm at his marriage and cultivated it for his father until 1873, when he purchased the farm; his parents continuing to reside with him until their death. He was one of the directors of Souderton National Bank at the time of his deceased, and had been for ten years a director of the Bucks County Fire Insurance Company. He was also a director of the Dublin Mutual Insurance and Protective Company from its organization in 1892 to the time of his death. He served a number of years in different local offices, filling the position of assistant assessor for nine years, and was census enumerator in 1890. He was elected to the office of director of the poor for Bucks county in 1897, and reelected in 1900, serving in all six years. He was a member of the Mennonite congregation at Deep Run, and politically was a Republican. Mr. Baum stood deservedly high in the regard and confidence of the people of Bucks county, and of the community in which he lived. He was a faithful and conscientious public servant, an earnest patriotic citizen, a devoted husband and father and an honest consistent Christian gentleman. His loss is keenly felt in the community. He died June 7, 1905, buried at Deep Run. Mr. Baum married, October 5, 1865, Maria Hunsicker, daughter of Jacob and Barbara (Moyer) Hunsicker, of Hilltown, Bucks county, granddaughter of Rev. Isaac and Anna Hunsicker, great-granddaughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Hunsicker, who came from the Skippack to Hilltown township in 1757, and a great-great-granddaughter of Valentine Hunsicker, who emigrated from Switzerland in 1717, and settled in Montgomery county. She is also a descendant through her mother, Barbara Moyer, born July 26, 1813, died August, 1890, from Heinrich Baum, the pioneer ancestor of her husband, her grandmother Susanna Bleam, wife of Samuel Moyer, of Hilltown, being a granddaughter of Heinrich and Elizabeth Baum. The children of William and Maria (Hunsicker) Baum are: Hannah, wife of Samuel H. Moyer, of Blooming Glen; Harvey H., who married Mary Shaddinger, and lives in Perkasie; Ida, wife of Edwin F. Stover, of Blooming Glen; Jacob, deceased; Joseph H., who married Lizzie Detweiler and lives on the homestead; Edwin, deceased; William Garfield married Mary Overholt; and Nora, who resides at home.

chased a farm of one hundred and seven acres in Springfield township, formerly the property of Joseph Green, which he cultivated to a high state of perfection, and whereon he resided. By his marriage to ——— ———, which occurred May 28, 1752, the following named children were born; John, Jacob, William, Abraham, Henry, Isaac, Mary, and Barbara. William Moyer, son of the Rev. Peter Moyer, was born in Springfield township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, June 7, 1764. His occupation was that of farmer, and in connection therewith he preached the gospel. He married Mary Overholt, who was born December 27, 1767, and who bore him six children, as follows: Magdaline, Nancy, Hannah, Kate, Mary, and Abraham D. The deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Moyer occurred February 12, 1848, and September 1, 1850, respectively.

Abraham D. Moyer, son of William and Mary (Overholt) Moyer, was born on the old Peter Moyer farm in Pleasant Valley, June 6, 1798. He followed in the footsteps of his forefathers, devoting his time and attention to the tilling of the soil. He was the possessor of a fine voice, and was the leader of the choir in the Monnonite church. In 1832 he married Mary Geisinger, a native of Upper Milford, Lehigh county, born September 18, 1811, daughter of Philip and Fanny (Hestand) Geisinger. Four children were born to them: William G.; Fanny, who became the wife of Nathaniel Bechtel; Mary; and Abraham. Abraham D. Moyer (father) died September 15, 1871; his wife survived him many years, passing away December 9, 1900.

William G. Moyer, eldest son of Abraham D. and Mary (Geisinger) Moyer, was born in Springfield township, Bucks county, February 14, 1834. His first occupation was that of teacher, which vocation he followed for ten years (1855 to 1865) and from the latter year until 1872 he was engaged in farming in Springfield township, after which he removed to New Britain township, and purchased a farm in the borough of Chalfont. He was the recipient of several public offices which were in the gift of his fellow-citizens, and during his incumbency of the same rendered valuable service. He was township auditor for six years, secretary of the school board for a similar period, jury commissioner for Bucks county, and first president of the council of Chalfont. For a number of years he served as correspondent and reporter for the government agricultural department. He is an active and consistent member of the Monnonite church, in which faith he was reared, and his political allegiance is given to the Republican party. In 1860 he married Mary Swortley, born in New Britain township, 1835, daughter of John Swortley. Their children were as follows: Emma, born December 17, 1861, died January 9, 1881; Levi S., born May 22, 1864, mentioned hereinafter; Abraham S., born November 7, 1866, married Susie M. Fretz, and they are the parents of one child, Alvin, born October 18, 1900; William, born November 29, 1868, a merchant of Chalfont; Menno S., born November 18, 1870, a member of the firm of Moyer Bros., merchants of Lansdale; he married Annie Souder, and their children are: Evelyn and Elizabeth; Harvey, born March 16, 1877, married Mary Johnson. The mother of these children died January 2, 1888. Mr. Moyer married for his second wife Mrs. Hannah (Sleifer) Weis, who was born near Quakertown, Bucks county, daughter of Philip Sleifer.

Levi S. Moyer, eldest son of William G. and Mary (Swortley) Moyer, was born in Springfield township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, May 22, 1864. He obtained a practical education in the public schools of New Britain township, and since the completion of his studies has devoted his time and attention exclusively to agricultural pursuits. He is an active and public-spirited citizen, keenly alive to everything that pertains to the welfare of the community in which he resides, a faithful member of the Mennonite church, and a stauch Republican. January 6, 1887, Mr. Moyer was married to Anna B. Detwiler, daughter of Enos and Sarah (Sherm) Detwiler, whose family consisted of five other children, namely: John F., William H., Irvin S., Alfred S., and Lizzie S. Detwiler. Eight children were the issue of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Moyer; William D., born December 25, 1887; Sarah Amelia, born July 27, 1889; Theresa, born October 23, 1891; Mary, born April 17, 1894; Irene, born February 2, 1897; Enos, born July 5, 1898; Eva, born February 9, 1900; and Norah, born June 25, 1901.

WILLIAM BAUM, deceased, one of the best known and respected citizens of Bedminster township, was born in Springfield township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, March 30, 1841, and was a descendant of early German settlers in that township. Heinrich or Henry Baum, the great-grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was one of a family of five brothers and two sisters, born in Wurtemberg, Germany, of which four of the brothers and one sister emigrated to America and settled in Bucks county, viz.: Carl or Charles, Heinrich, Michael, Susanna, and Philip Baum. Carl and Heinrich came together in the ship "Hero," arriving in Philadelphia, October 27, 1764, and settled in Springfield township. Carl, the eldest of the family, married Barbara Youngken, and after a residence of several years in Springfield, removed with his family to Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, and later removed to what was then Northumberland county and from thence, in 1798, to Northwestern Territory, now the State of Ohio, where he died. His son Samuel, born in Springfield, Bucks county, August 16, 1769, died in New Berlin, Union county, Pennsylvania, October 2, 1842. His other eight children, most of whom lived and died in Felicity, Ohio, were: Elizabeth, wife of Peter Emery; Catharine, wife of Benjamin Sells; Mary, wife of Peter DeWitt; Susanna, wife of Thomas Jones; Margaret, wife of Conrad Metzger; Barbara, wife of Leonard Metzger; Michael and Charles Baum. Michael, the third of the emigrant brothers, also settled in Bucks county and reared a family of ten children, as follows: Samuel, who settled in Montgomery county; Elizabeth, the wife of John Trumbore, of Milford; Mary, wife of John Trumbore; Ann, wife of John Gregg; Catharine, wife of Jacob Werhold, of Rockhill; Susan, wife of Jacob Willauer; Michael, of Milton, Pennsylvania; Henry, of Montgomery county; Hannah, wife of William Grafley; and Sarah, Phillip, the youngest of the emigrant brothers, married Mary Moyer, settled in New Britain township, where he died at an advanced age, on March 1, 1841, without issue. Susanna, the sister, married John Landis, of Milford township, and had two sons: Samuel and Henry. Another brother Samuel and a sister lived and died in Wurtemberg.

Heinrich Baum, the second of the emigrant brothers, as before stated, arrived in this country in 1764, and almost immediately after his arrival located in Springfield township, where he took up a tract of land on which he resided until his death in 1803. His wife's name was Elizabeth, but her maiden name is unknown by her descendants. They were the parents of eleven children, all of whom were born and reared in Springfield, viz: Abraham, Anna, who married John Landis and removed to Warren county, New Jersey; Susanna, who married Isaac Meyer, of Springfield; Elizabeth, who married Henry Ackerman; Henry, the grandfather of the subject of this sketch; Catharine, who married Samuel Bleam; Hannah, who married John Shelly; Margaret, who married Henry Bleam; Barbara, who married Michael Huddle; Philip, who died in 1814, without issue; and Mary, who married Joseph Moyer, and died in 1815.

Henry Baum, second son and fifth child of Heinrich and Elizabeth Baum, was born and reared in Springfield township, Bucks county, and spent his whole life there, dying in 1823. He married Magdalene Moyer, daughter of William Meyer, born in Springfield, June 17, 1767, died there February 12, 1848, son of the Reverend Peter Meyer, one of the early Mennonite ministers of Bucks county, who was born in Switzerland about 1723 and settled in Springfield in 1752. The mother of Magdalene (Moyer) Baum was Barbara Overholt, who was born December 27, 1767, and died September 1, 1850. The children of Henry and Magdalene (Moyer) Baum were: William, Joseph, Henry, Elizabeth, wife of Henry Focht, of Lehigh county; and Mary, who married Samuel Detweiler. After the death of Henry Baum, his widow married John Shantz and had three children: Abraham, Lydia and Sarah.

Joseph Baum, second son of Henry and Magdalene, was born in Springfield, September 26, 1810. Left an orphan at the age of thirteen years, he learned the trade of a shoemaker with Christian Moyer, of Hilltown township, and followed that trade until his marriage, when he settled in Springfield township. After a few years spent in agricultural pursuits in Springfield he removed to Bedminster township, where he resided for a few years; returned again to Springfield, but later again removed to Bedminster where he purchased the farm on which his son William lately resided and passed the remainder of his life there, dying April 28, 1892. He was an active and prominent man in the community, filling the office of school director in Springfield township, and that of supervisor for eighteen years in Springfield and ten years in Bedminster. He also served as township auditor. He was a member of the New Mennonite church. He married in 1828 Esther Moyer, born August 3, 1808, daughter of Christian and Barbara (Landis) Moyer, and they were the parents of six children: Hannah, widow of Jacob K. Overholt, of Bedminster; Sarah, who married Christian F. Meyers; Henry, who married Hannah Moyer and resides in Philadelphia; Joseph, who died in the army in 1863; William, the subject of this sketch; and Magdalena, who died at the age of seven years.

William Baum, third son and fifth child of Joseph and Esther (Moyer) Baum, born in Springfield township, March 30, 1841, received his education at the public schools. Reared to the life of a farmer he took charge of the home farm at his marriage and cultivated it for his father until 1873, when he purchased the farm; his parents continuing to reside with him until their death. He was one of the directors of Souderton National Bank at the time of his decease, and had been for ten years a director of the Bucks County Fire Insurance Company. He was also a director of the Dublin Mutual Insurance and Protective Company from its organization in 1892 to the time of his death. He served a number of years in different local offices, filling the position of assistant assessor for nine years, and was census enumerator in 1890. He was elected to the office of director of the poor for Bucks county in 1897, and re-elected in 1900, serving in all six years. He was a member of the Mennonite congregation at Deep Run, and politically was a Republican. Mr. Baum stood deservedly high in the regard and confidence of the people of Bucks county, and of the community in which he lived. He was a faithful and conscientious public servant, an earnest patriotic citizen, a devoted husband and father and an honest consistent Christian gentleman. His loss is keenly felt in the community. He died June 7, 1905, buried at Deep Run. Mr. Baum married, October 5, 1865, Maria Hunsicker, daughter of Jacob and Barbara (Moyer) Hunsicker, of Hilltown, Bucks county, granddaughter of Rev. Isaac and Anna Hunsicker, great-granddaughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Hunsicker, who came from the Skippack to Hilltown township in 1757, and a great-great-granddaughter of Valentine Hunsicker, who emigrated from Switzerland in 1717, and settled in Montgomery county. She is also a descendant through her mother, Barbara Moyer, born July 26, 1813, died August, 1890, from Heinrich Baum, the pioneer ancestor of her husband, her grandmother Susanna Bleam, wife of Samuel Moyer, of Hilltown, being a granddaughter of Heinrich and Elizabeth Baum. The children of William and Maria (Hunsicker) Baum are: Hannah, wife of Samuel H. Moyer, of Blooming Glen; Harvey H., who married Mary Shaddinger, and lives in Perkasie; Ida, wife of Edwin F. Stover, of Blooming Glen; Jacob, deceased; Joseph H., who married Lizzie Detweiler and lives on the homestead; Edwin, deceased; William Garfield married Mary Overholt; and Nora, who resides at home.

CHRISTIAN TREICHLER CLYMER. Bucks county has no more useful citizen than Christian Treichler Clymer, of Quakertown. The Clymer family is of German origin, the name having been formerly spelled Klemmer. It was brought to this country by two brothers, one of whom was Christian Clymer, or Klemmer. He was born in 1697 in Germany, and is thought to have emigrated to America prior to 1730. He settled in what is now Lower Milford township, and in 1734 his name appeared on the record as a petitioner to divide the township. His wife was Barbara ———, and they were the parents of seven sons and five daughters. Among the sons was Jacob, mentioned at length hereinafter. Christian Clymer died in 1759, and some of his descendants are yet living on the land which he settled. His wife passed away January 14, 1776.

Jacob Clymer, son of Christian and Barbara Clymer, was born in 1729, and was the father of a numerous family, among whom was Henry, who married Maria, daughter of Peter and Maria (Zeingenfus) Shaffer, of Northampton county. They were the parents of seven sons and two daughters. Among the sons was Henry Shaffer, mentioned at length hereinafter. All the descendants of Christian Clymer were born in the region in which that pioneer ancestor made his home.

Henry Shaffer Clymer, son of Henry and Maria (Shaffer) Clymer, was born in 1819, on his father's farm, near Milford Square. He attended the subscription school, also the Friends Richland Meeting, and learned the shoemaker's trade, which he followed in connection with farming. In politics he was an old line Whig, and later became a Republican. He was a member of the Lutheran church, which he served as deacon and was active in religious work. He married Lavina, daughter of Jacob and Sarah (Trumbauer) Treichler, and ten children were born to them, among whom was Christian Treichler, mentioned at length hereinafter. Mrs. Clymer, the mother of the family, died in 1859, and her husband passed away in January, 1863.

Christian Treichler Clymer, son of Henry Shaffer and Lavina (Treichler) Clymer, was born February 10, 1846, on his father's farm, near Milford Square, Milford township. He attended the public schools of his native place, and remained on the farm until his eighteenth year, when he was apprenticed to learn the shoemaker's trade with Isaac Groff, near Quakertown. At the end of two years he became a journeyman, and for six months worked near Zion's Hill. In the autumn of 1866 he moved to Quakertown, where he engaged in business as a custom shoemaker on Main street, near the Friends' meeting-house. He carried on a flourishing trade until April, 1903, when he retired from business. Mr. Clymer has always taken an active interest in local political affairs, and for thirteen years was a member of the board of education, serving two terms as president and two as treasurer. He has also acted as delegate to the county convention. On March 18, 1903, he received the appointment of postmaster of Quakertown, an office which he still holds, discharging its duties with credit to himself and satisfaction to the government. His political principles are those advocated and upheld by the Republican party. Since 1864 he has been a member of St. John's Lutheran church, to

who came from Ireland to Pennsylvania in 1736.

JOHN BLACKBURN
of Loughgall, County Armagh, Ireland

The surname BLACKBURN appears in Loughgall as early as 1667. In an old history containing accounts of the sufferings of the Quakers, the authors, Holme & Fuller, recount an episode of that year in which "John Blackburn being sued for Tythe to the value of 2s. 1d. 2q. in the Mannor Court of Loughall, by Humphrey Pettard, Priest, the said John produced the Statute against all proceedings in Temporal Courts for Tithe; notwithstanding, the Jury said" etc. John Blackburn's horse, worth 2 pounds was taken for the tithe of 2s. 1d. 2q.

This is no doubt the same John Blackburn who is recorded in the Richhill Meeting records of Co. Armagh in Ulster Province, Ireland, as having resided at Loughgall in Co. Armagh. He is presently the earliest known paternal ancestor of the family of Blackburns recorded in these pages. There is mention in the same records of one Elizabeth Blackburn, together with evidence that indicates she was the wife of John Blackburn.

The question as to when, how and why the Blackburns came to be in Ireland remains unanswered. But history reminds us that in 1611, James I began implanting a Protestant population in Ireland. From the citizenry of the northern counties of England and from the Lowlands of Scotland (primarily of English origin) a picked company of Presbyterian men and women, yeomanry and skilled craftsmen, were transported into Ulster Province in northern Ireland. There they took up estates which had earlier been confiscated from the Irish rebels by the crown of England.

About the middle of the 17th century the confiscation of still more Irish land, under Cromwell's regime, served to increase the migration to Ulster. It is generally believed that the Blackburns appeared in Ireland sometime during the Cromwellian implantation of Ulster, but whether John Blackburn arrived there as one of the settlers, or as one of the Cromwellian army is still undetermined.

That the first John Blackburn was a Quaker by 1667 is evidenced by his refusal to pay a tithe to the church of England, and by the inclusion of this incident in an account of the sufferings of the Quakers of that period.

A soldier's commitments to the violence of warfare obviously do not go hand in hand with peaceable Quaker principles, but we find that in Ulster, some of the Cromwellian soldiers who took up land in Ireland, did join the Quaker movement and henceforth refused to bear arms.

While there seems to be nothing to preclude the possibility that John Blackburn was one of the Cromwellian army, there is an equally good possibility that he was, instead, a farmer or skilled craftsman, and as such could have been among the party of yeomen and craftsmen transported to Ireland. Whatever his status, soldier or settler, the immediate ancestry of John Blackburn stems from the northern English or the Lowland Scots, and is therefore basically English in origin.

There is no definite information as to when John Blackburn became a Quaker. The first settled meetings of the Quakers in Ireland began in 1654 and two years later there were one or two meetings in Ulster Province.

Information from Ireland confirms that there were two Quaker meetings in Co. Armagh at the time the Blackburns are known to have resided there. The earliest of the two was Ballyhagen Meeting, and the other, an offshoot of Ballyhagen, was Richhill Meeting. These two meetings were about six miles apart with Richhill Meeting being the one nearest to Loughgall.

From records preserved in the minutes of these two Quaker meetings, the following inferences have been drawn:

John Blackburn, b. ca 1643, probably in England; d. ca 1723 at age 80; m. Elizabeth _____; d. 6 mo.-11-1713. Both died at Loughgall, Co. Armagh, Ireland; exact burial site unknown, but one burial ground used by the Quakers of Ballyhagen Meeting was located at Ballymony.

There is no definitive proof as to the children of this early John Blackburn, but there is circumstantial evidence of considerable import, which implies that John and Elizabeth Blackburn were the parents of at least four children, probably five, all of whom were probably birthright Quakers:

(i) John Blackburn, m. (1) 8 mo.-2-1701, Mary Winter, who died ca 1713; m. (2) 3 mo.-16-1717, Rachel Morton.

Both marriages of John Blackburn and the births of most of the children born of each marriage, are recorded in the Richhill Mtg. transcript.

(ii) Hannah Blackburn, witnessed marriages at Ballyhagen Mtg. in 1697, 1698, 1699 and 1700; was admonished in 1705 for marrying out of the church by a priest (i.e., marriage to one not a member, by a minister of some other religion). The first inscribed name on the admonishment was that of John Blackburn, who, according to custom, would be Hannah's father.

(iii) Joseph Blackburn, witnessed a marriage at Ballyhagen Mtg. in 1699. No marriage or disownment found.

(iv) William Blackburn, witnessed a marriage at Ballyhagen Mtg. in 1699. No marriage or disownment found.

(v) ? Anthony Blackburn, witnessed the marriage of Thomas Blackburn (s/o John (i) and Mary) to Alice Hewitt in 1742. Anthony's name appeared in the column of witnesses usually reserved for relatives. No marriage or disownment found. If Anthony was a son of John and Elizabeth Blackburn, he may still have been unmarried in 1742, and may have remained single.

Apropos of the parents, John and Elizabeth Blackburn, the records show that Elizabeth appeared as a witness to marriages at Ballyhagen Mtg. in 1690, 1699, 1700, 1701 and 1708. John Blackburn appeared in the same capacity at Ballyhagen Mtg. in 1692, 1694, 1696, 1699, 1703, 1710, 1716, 1717, 1721 and 1729. The very earliest dates in the latter list, no doubt refer to John Blackburn, the father; whereas some of the latter dates could be equally applicable to his son, John. The 1717 marriage certificate had the names of both "John Blackburn, Sen." and "John Blackburn, Jun." (father and son). The witness to the 1729 marriage was definitely the younger John Blackburn, since his father died ca 1723.

After the establishment of Richhill Mtg., near Loughgall, the Blackburns appear in records of that meeting. Births and deaths of members of the family are found in the Richhill Mtg. register.

Apparently the recording of the deaths of Mary (Winter) Blackburn and Elizabeth Blackburn, was initiated by the younger John Blackburn, as the record of Mary's death with no date given, has a notation "wife of John." Immediately following is the record of Elizabeth Blackburn's death in 1713, with the notation "mother of John."

By way of substantiative evidence, the Public Record Office, Belfast, Ireland, provided a list of Blackburns (compiled from Quaker records) who were resident in Ireland between 1690 and 1742. This list is comprised of adults who, at some time during that period, participated in or attended Quaker functions in Ireland. Alphabetically listed they are: Alice, Ann, Anthony, Elizabeth, Hannah, John, Joseph, Mary, Rachel, Thomas and William.

Most significantly, all except one of these Blackburns can be accounted for in the foregoing records. The one exception is Ann Blackburn. Later records reveal that Thomas Blackburn (s/o John and Mary (Winter) Blackburn) was twice married and that his first wife and children died in Ireland, so it is quite possible that Ann Blackburn was Thomas Blackburn's first wife.

During his father's lifetime, John (i) was denoted as John, Junior, but after the death of his father he was the only John Blackburn in the records and no designation as Junior or Senior was needed. When John Blackburn (i) became the father of a son, John, some distinction between the two was again necessary. John (i) became John Blackburn, Sr., while his son became John Blackburn, Jr. Both carried this designation with them when they migrated to America in 1736.

John Blackburn (i), hereafter denoted as John Blackburn, Sr., is the ancestor with whom we begin the numerical genealogical descent of this line of Blackburns in America.

Author's note:

Searching for records in Ireland is difficult at best. Since so many public records have been destroyed, even the archivists there have difficulty trying to assemble old records that have some degree of continuity. The dearth of records leaves some gaps in family histories which can only be bridged by inductive and/or deductive reasoning. This is what has been attempted in the presentation of the records of John and Elizabeth Blackburn and their probable children.

The Public Record Office at Belfast has no Blackburns listed between 1690 and 1742 other than the Quaker Blackburns. Since the Quaker Blackburns were all found in County Armagh, and all appear in the records of Ballyhagen and Richhill Meetings, it seems a logical conclusion that all of them, either by birth or by marriage, belonged to the same Blackburn family. Admittedly, the only evidence of weight bears on the two children, John Blackburn and Hannah Blackburn.

Addendum:

The previously mentioned Holme and Fuller book contains reference to a second indignity suffered by John Blackburn. In an action brought in 1668 by Robert Smyth, who was connected with the Temporal Court at Armagh as a Farmer (Collector) of Small Tythes, . . . "John Blackburne being sued for Tythe and Clark's wages, in the Sheriffs Court, for the value of about 6 s. by the said Smyth, had taken from him (by the Sub-Sherrifs and Bailiffs) as much Yarn as was worth 2 l."

FIRST GENERATION

THE JOHN BLACKBURN FAMILY IN AMERICA

1. JOHN BLACKBURN, SR., farmer and probably a weaver; son of John and Elizabeth Blackburn, both of whom died in Loughgall, County Armagh, Ireland. The designation of "John, Sr." is used hereafter since it so appears in the Quaker records in Pennsylvania, and in deference to this man's status as head of the family and progenitor of this line of Blackburns in America.

The date of birth of John Blackburn, Sr. remains unknown; born probably at Loughgall in Co. Armagh, Ireland, and is known to have resided there before his migration to America in 1736; died between 1 mo.-14-1752 (date his will was signed) and 8 mo.-23-1752 (date will was probated in York (now Adams) Co., Pa.); said to be buried at Old Menallen Burying Ground.

John, Sr. was married twice, both times by Quaker ceremony at Ballyhagen Mtg., Co. Armagh, Ireland. He married (1) 8 mo.-2-1701, the widow, MARY (COURTNEY) WINTER of Muloughdroy, Ireland. Mary died, probably in childbirth, ca 1712/13, certainly before 1717. Records in Ireland do not state the date of her death but do confirm she was the wife of John, Sr. at the time of her death.

John, Sr. married (2) at Ballyhagen Mtg., "the sixteenth day of the third month called May"-1717, RACHEL MORTON, b. 10 mo.-18-1694, d/o William and Elinor Morton of Creanogh, Co. Armagh. (A transcript of the Richhill Mtg. records lists the year of this second marriage as 1716, but the marriage certificate bears the date 1717.)

The birth register of Richhill Mtg. in Co. Armagh lists in the following order, these children born in Ireland as issue of John and his first wife, Mary (Courtney) (Winter) Blackburn:

2. Elizabeth Blackburn, b. 6 mo.-4-(no year given). Her parents' marriage date indicates her birth ca 1702 or later; d. 6-12-1763, Chester Co., Pa.; m. 2 mo.-6-1728, Samuel Morton, s/o William and Elinor Morton of Creanogh, Co. Armagh, Ireland. (Samuel Morton was a brother of John, Sr.'s second wife.) Elizabeth and Samuel were the first of the family to migrate to America.
3. Mary Blackburn, b. 11 mo.-7-(no year given).
4. Sarah Blackburn, b. 12 mo.-14-(no year given).
5. Thomas Blackburn, b. 8 mo.-13-17__ (no definite year given); d. 1794, York (now Adams) Co., Pa.; married twice; first wife unknown; m. second, 4 mo.-17-1742, Alice Hewitt, d/o Benjamin Hewitt of Clondroet, County Armagh, Ireland.
6. Joseph Blackburn, b. 7 mo.-16-17__ (no definite year given); d. 1 mo.-21-1712/13; buried in Ireland.

The birth register of Richhill Mtg. lists in the following order, these children born in Ireland as issue of John and his second wife, Rachel (Morton) Blackburn:

7. John Blackburn, b. 6 mo.-30-172_ (no definite year given); d. 8-24-1767, Menallen Twp., York (now Adams) Co., Pa.; m. ca 1739-40, Rebecca Harlan, d/o Moses and Margaret (Ray) Harlan.

FIRST GENERATION

8. Samuel Blackburn, b. 1 mo.-1-17__ (no definite year given); d. 11 mo.-7-1723; buried in Ireland.
9. William Blackburn, b. 4 mo.-30-17__ (no definite year given).
10. Elinor Blackburn, b. 12 mo.-24-17__ (no definite year given).

Research done for the author by the Society of Friends in Dublin, Ireland brought this report: "We were informed a few years ago that John and Rachel Blackburn had the following children: John, Joseph, Rachel and Anthony. All appear in Ballyhagen between 1720 and 1726." This author has been unable to discover any valid reason as to why the names Joseph, Rachel and Anthony do not appear in the Richhill birth register, but they are additional children, so we have no choice but to add:

11. Joseph Blackburn, b. after 1720 and before 1726; d. 1787, Westmoreland Co., Pa.; m. 7-5-1758, Deborah McGrew, d/o James and Mary (Finley) McGrew.
12. Rachel Blackburn, b. after 1720 and before 1726; m. 8-29-1759, Andrew Dennen.
13. Anthony Blackburn, b. after 1720 and before 1726; d. 1802, Westmoreland Co., Pa.; m. April 20, 1752, Deborah Simmons.

The will of John Blackburn, Sr., written in 1752, discloses still another daughter whom he names as "my Daughter Abegill Willson." Thus we must add:

14. Abigail Blackburn, date and place of birth undiscovered, but since Abigail is not listed in the formentioned report from Dublin, it is probable that she was born after 1726; m. ca 1750, _____ Willson.

For purposes of numerical recording, the names of the first 13 children of John Blackburn, Sr. have been listed in the order in which they appear in the original records. A study of the birth dates in the order given, poses a question as to how they all fit into the allotted time span. The children of the first family of John, Sr. appear to have been recorded in the order of birth, but of the second family, the names John, Samuel, William and Elinor appear to have been recorded listing the male offspring first. Therefore the latter births are very probably not listed in their proper sequence.

The possibility that these records might indicate the presence of two very similar yet distinctly different Blackburn families in Co. Armagh, has been thoroughly explored. Diligent research has resulted in conclusive evidence that all of the 14 children listed are indeed issue of the two marriages of John Blackburn, Sr.

Substantiating evidence is found in an old family sketch written by one James Blackburn (a grandson of #5-Thomas Blackburn), in which he states that John Blackburn "came from Ireland and settled at Menallen . . . he was twice married and had two sets of children, his son Thomas, included." Further confirmation is found in the will of John Blackburn, Sr., in which he names his sons, Thomas, John, Joseph and Anthony.

Searchers in Ireland have found no will of record for the earliest John Blackburn, who died at age 80, ca 1723. However, the law of primogeniture prevailed among the transplanted English settlers in Ireland, preserving the system of inheritance by the eldest surviving son. Under this system, John Blackburn (#1), appears to have inherited his father's estate as evidenced by the fact that he is recorded as having been in residence at Loughgall as was his father before him.

Located in Co. Armagh, this estate was in that area of northern Ireland where the climate was peculiarly suited to the growing of flax. To the ultimate advantage of the Ulster settlers, this crop did not thrive elsewhere in Ireland. With an established weaving industry offering a ready market, flax was understandably the most important crop of the Ulster farmers.

In a spirit of enterprise and/or by force of necessity, many Ulster farmers not only produced flax, but learned the weaver's art as well. By this practical expedient they developed two income producing trades. A steadily increasing market not only assured them of a livelihood but also held out the enticing prospect of a possible income beyond their immediate needs.

Ensuing abundant yields of flax and the increasing skill of the weavers gave such impetus to the weaving industry that by 1727 linen had become one of the three leading export products of Ireland. Unfortunately, the rapid growth of Ireland's exports caused the English Parliament to intercede, imposing sundry restrictions on all Irish trade competition in order to protect the native industries of England. This action seriously disadvantaged the economy of Ireland.

The limitation on exports resulted in the coercive curtailment of production, which in turn effected a drastic reduction in income. As a result, the Ulster farmers were faced year after year with increasingly unfavorable circumstances. Large numbers of Ulster farmers consequently decided to divest themselves of their holdings and depart from Ireland. In so doing, they made advantageous use of the "Ulster Custom."

The Ulster Custom, which prevailed only in northern Ireland, was used as an inducement to encourage the incoming settlers to take up land and remain in Ireland. Under the terms of the Ulster Custom, tenants were guaranteed the rights of both tenure and sale; they could never be arbitrarily evicted, yet they had an unimpeded right to sell their vested interests. Ironically, it was this latter stipulation of the Ulster Custom that made possible the very migration it had originally been designed to curtail.

The means by which the Ulster farmers were able to finance their exodus from Ireland, and the importance of dual trades, are quite clearly apparent in the following paragraphs by Solon J. and Elizabeth H. Buck:

> "In Ulster, a tenant, upon his departure from a holding, had the customary right to receive compensation for improvements he had made. This system encouraged improvements, increased profits, and made the Ulster agriculturists more progressive, though their economic situation was still miserable . . . . The right to compensation for improvements, however, furnished many of them with a small capital, and made it possible for them to emigrate to America.

FIRST GENERATION

"Ulster also harbored the most important Irish industry, the manufacture of linens. Most of the farmers there were also weavers, and some, in spite of British restrictions managed to make enough profit to rise above poverty.

"Many found their land rents raised because of their supposed weaving profits and were then able to subsist only because the entire family worked at farming or weaving, but their knowledge of two trades encouraged thousands to collect their small capital and take the risk of emigrating to America."

It seems a logical deduction that John Blackburn, Sr. was both a farmer and a weaver before he left Ireland. Significantly, his eldest son, Thomas, also embraced both trades.

John Blackburn, Sr. left Co. Armagh, Ireland in 1736. He first appeared in America at New Garden Monthly Mtg. in Chester Co., Pa. That meeting recorded on 8 mo.-30-1736: "John Blackburn produced a certificate of removal from Ballyhagen Meeting in ye North of Ireland, bearing date ye 2d of ye 4th mo., 1736, in behalfe of himselfe, wife and children, which recommends him a member, and was read here and accepted."

It is quite probable that John, Sr. first brought his family to the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Samuel and Elizabeth (Blackburn) Morton. Samuel and Elizabeth had preceded John, Sr.'s family to America (arriving ca 1729) and were members of New Garden Meeting. The exact place of residence of John, Sr. and family between 1736 and 1745 is unknown, although they remained members of New Garden Meeting during that time.

On August 20, 1745, a land warrant was issued to John Blackburn, Sr., for 100 acres of land on a small branch of Possum Creek in Menallen Twp. in Lancaster (now Adams) Co., Pa. At a later date, the survey shows this tract of land actually contained 175 acres, 43 perches and an allowance of six percent for roads. This property in Lancaster Co., was located in the north central part of what is now Adams Co. If John, Sr. followed the custom of the times, he may have lived on this land for a time before the land warrant was issued. For some reason as yet unknown, no patent was ever recorded in his name.

At New Garden Mtg., 9 mo.-29-1746: "John Blackburn, Sr. requests a certificate for self and family to Sadsbury Mtg. Certificate to Sadsbury requested for Rachel Blackburn."

These certificates were granted and signed at New Garden Mtg. which met 10 mo.-27-1746 at London Grove. It appears that the two certificates were received as one at Sadsbury Mtg. which recorded 11 mo.-5-1746: "John Blackburn produced a certificate from New Garden Monthly Mtg. for self, wife and children not named."

The transfer to Sadsbury Mtg. was no doubt made because at that time, Sadsbury was the established Monthly Mtg. nearest to John Blackburn, Sr.'s place of residence.

FIRST GENERATION

Blackburn entries next appear in Warrington Mtg. minutes. Warrington, at first a preparative meeting as a branch of Sadsbury, was established as a Monthly Mtg. in 1747. Many of the Quaker residents of Menallen Twp. attended both the Warrington Monthly Mtg. and the meeting at Menallen. Set up as a branch of Warrington in 1746, Menallen became a preparative meeting in 1748 and an established Monthly Mtg. in 1780.

4 mo.-18-1748, at Warrington Mtg.: "John Blackburn was appointed as overseer of Warrington Meeting." There remains some doubt as to whether this was John, Sr. or his son, John, Jr. (see #7).

5 mo.-20-1751, at Warrington Mtg.: Rachel Blackburn was appointed on a committee to inquire into the marriage intentions of Samuel Pope and Elizabeth Stevenson. Presumably the appointee was the wife of John Blackburn, Sr. The Pope-Stevenson marriage, one of the earliest in Menallen records, is of interest because of two names in the right hand column of signatures, the column which was usually reserved for relatives of the married couple. In that column are the names of John and Thomas Blackburn. What relationship, if any, existed between the Blackburns and the Popes or Stevensons, has not been discovered.

John Blackburn, Sr. died in 1752, leaving a will dated that same year in which he named his wife, Rachel, and children: John, Rachel, Abigail Willson, Anthony, Joseph and Thomas (obviously not in the order of their birth).

9 mo.-21-1754, at Warrington Mtg.: "Menallen Meeting proposeth Rachel Blackburn for an overseer in the place of Jane Shepherd, which this meeting (Warrington) approves of."

In the capacity of overseer, Rachel served on various committees until 1768. The last entry found which mentions Rachel is in the records of Warrington Mtg., 6 mo.-1768: "Mary McGrew is appointed as overseer in the place of Rachel Blackburn."

If Rachel were the widow of John, Sr., as it appears, she was nearly 74 years old when replaced as overseer. Perhaps Rachel died prior to the 1768 entry, but no record of her death has been found.

SECOND GENERATION

5. THOMAS BLACKBURN (John, Sr.) weaver; farmer; b. 8 mo.-13-17__, County Armagh, Ireland; d. 1794, York (now Adams) Co., Pa.; son of John, Sr. and Mary (Courtney) (Winter) Blackburn. According to a biographical sketch by James Blackburn, Thomas was married in Ireland (wife's name unknown, but possibly Ann _____) and fathered six children. His first wife and children all died in Ireland. Of his second marriage, the following is of record: Thomas Blackburn of Ballyhagen, Parish of Kilmore, County Armagh, Ireland, was married by ceremony of Friends at Ballyhagen Mtg., 4 mo.-17-1742, to ALICE HEWITT, d/o Benjamin Hewitt of Clondroet, County Armagh, Ireland.

Thomas is said to have had 15 children by his second marriage. No records have been found to either support or contradict this statement, but identification has been established for these nine children of Thomas and Alice (Hewitt) Blackburn:

(Not necessarily in order of birth.)

21. Mary Blackburn, b. probably in Ireland; m. 6-9-1765, James Hammond, s/o Daniel Hammond.
22. Elizabeth Blackburn, m. 12-16-1772, James McGrail, s/o Owen McGrail.
23. Ann Blackburn, m. 4-15-1778, Jonathan Bowen, s/o Thomas and Jane (Edwards) Bowen.
24. Rebecca Blackburn, m. 10-13-1779, Thomas Oldham, s/o William Oldham.
25. Rachel Blackburn, b. 1759; d. 1841; m. 5-22-1782, Thomas Griffith, s/o Thomas and Eve (Faulkner) Griffith.
26. Alice Blackburn, d. 7-15-1813; m. 8-18-1784, Samuel Garretson, s/o John and Jane (Carson) Garretson.
27. John Blackburn, youngest son, b. 1763 or 1765; d. October 1800; m. 9-17-1788, Mary Morton, youngest dt. of John and Mary (Todd) Morton.
28. Thomas Blackburn, m. 10-16-1793, Sarah Griffith, d/o John and 2nd wife, Lydia (Wilson) Griffith.
29. Isabel Blackburn, m. 10-30-1799, Thomas Jennings, s/o Thomas and Hannah Jennings.

A history of Bedford and Somerset Co.'s, Pa., states that Thomas and Alice brought two small daughters with them to America, the youngest child being but one year old. These two daughters must have been born between the 1742 marriage date and the time the certificate of removal was issued in Ireland in 1749.

Upon arrival from Ireland, Thomas and his family disembarked at Philadelphia and proceeded to Menallen Twp. in York (now Adams) Co., Pa., where Thomas's father and step-mother were settled. Finding the country not at all as he had anticipated it, Thomas was extremely disheartened and felt the first stirrings of regret for having left Ireland. Nevertheless, he purchased an improvement right to a tract of land at the foot of Barrow mountain (a spur of South mountain) for which he is said to have paid the sum of 15 pounds.

There is no record of how much time elapsed before he presented his certificate at Warrington Mtg., but on 3 mo.-19-1750, ". . . Thomas Blackburn produced a certificate to this mtg. from Balahagon Mtg. in Ireland for himself and wife bearing date 18th of 4th mo., 1749, recommending them worthy of Friends notice. As such we receive them."

SECOND GENERATION

Although quickly accepted in a predominantly Quaker community, Thomas was still unable or unwilling to adjust to the circumstances surrounding him. He found it increasingly difficult to accept the differences in the customs and the manner of living in America as contrasted to what he had known in Ireland. As he grew more homesick for his native land his dissatisfaction with his new environment grew apace, until his one hope for the future was the possibility of successfully pursuing his trade.

Thomas was a skilled weaver of fine linens, a trade he had followed with much success in Ireland. Intent on continuing his trade in America, he had brought with him a quantity of his best linen fabrics, supremely confident of a ready market in the colonies. Imagine then, the depths of his despair when he discovered the Pennsylvania settlers wanted only coarse linens and heavy fabrics and had no interest at all in the fine Irish linens his skill had produced.

Being more than a little recalcitrant by nature, his pride would not allow him to debase his skill so far as to produce the coarse linens and woolens the market demanded. Such products he disdained as inferior to his craftsmanship! His petulant indignation plunged him into such sullen despondency that he refused to work at anything. So consumed was he by his bitter regret at having ever left Ireland, there is little doubt he would have returned there had he possessed the means to do so.

Having abandoned his trade, Thomas was forced to rely on the land for his livelihood and needed all his acres could produce to provide for his growing family. Unfortunately, even in this pursuit his morose lethargy inflicted several years of severe hardship on his wife and family before a chance opportunity changed the tenor of their lives.

An itinerant cattle speculator bought a small herd of cattle in the spring of the year in the Menallen area, intending to have them pastured there until fall when he planned to return and drive them to market in Virginia. But when he found the cost of care and pasturing was more than he wanted to pay, he approached Thomas Blackburn with an offer to trade the cattle for Thomas's supply of fine Irish linens. Thomas promptly accepted the offer and the trade proved advantageous to both parties. The erstwhile cattle dealer made a profit selling the linens in Virginia where he knew fine fabrics were much in demand. Thomas turned his newly acquired cattle out to forage for the summer on the lush Pennsylvania hillsides and by fall the onset of the French and Indian war had created such a brisk demand for cattle that he drove his fattened herd to Virginia where the market gave him a substantial profit.

Buoyed by the success of the venture, Thomas decided to go into business raising stock. Summer pasturing was no problem but he needed a steady supply of feed for stock that would be held over during the winter months. As a practical solution he built a distillery. While using the refuse from the distillery to feed his stock through the winter, he also had a steady income from cash sales of the distilled product.

His distillery undoubtedly consisted of one or more pot stills of the kind that were common in Ireland. Pot stills produced good Irish whiskey but the odor during fermentation of the mash was such that the stills had to be housed well apart from living quarters. As business prospered Thomas finally hired a young woman of Dutch ancestry to help tend the distillery. While thus engaged the women "met a misfortune to the injury of her character." Appalled at this turn of events, Thomas immediately discharged her and she found refuge with the Lewis Hutton family. After sheltering her during her pregnancy and the birth of her child, Hutton demanded payment from Thomas Blackburn for expenses thus incurred.

Thomas flatly refused the demand and the matter was promptly referred to Warrington Monthly Mtg. for adjudication. No one in the Blackburn family was charged as father of the child, but under English common law prevailing in the colonies, an employer was held responsible for expenses incurred as the result of an accident or mishap to any employee during the course of employment. Warrington Mtg. adopted the position that Thomas was liable since the circumstances occurred while the woman was in his employ. Again his obdurate nature prevailed and Thomas refused to accept their verdict.

Beginning in July 1762 and continuing month after month, at each meeting Warrington patiently appointed a committee to reason with Thomas in an attempt to bring him into compliance. Although they continued their efforts until January of the following year, they were totally unsuccessful. After the January meeting in 1763, when Thomas still refused to comply, the meeting suspended their conciliatory efforts and in February 1763 testimony was signed against Thomas Blackburn for ". . . refusing to pay a sum of money to Lewis Hutton." The following month Warrington Mtg. recorded ". . . Thomas Blackburn intends to appeal." Another full year elapsed before a final decision was reached 3-10-1764, when testimony against Thomas was read and returned, effecting his disownment.

Any other case of this nature would normally have found its way into a court of law, but by their own precepts Quakers were forbidden to go to law until they had exhausted all other means at hand. In Quaker circles either the overseers or a committee appointed for the purpose heard both sides of a case and arrived at a decision. Once a decision was reached in this manner the entire power of the Quaker society was behind its acceptance. If they could not enforce the decision their only recourse was the disownment of the member involved.

Thomas prospered despite his adversities as evidenced by his tax record. Taxed on 100 acres in Menallen Twp. from 1779 through 1782, he had increased his holding to 300 acres by 1783 and was listed that year as having nine inhabitants in his household. His son, Thomas (Jr.), was also listed that year as a "single man."

Thomas and his surviving half-brothers, Joseph and Anthony, were parties to a deed drawn in 1784, by which the estate of their father, John Blackburn, Sr., deceased, was finally settled in accordance with the terms of his 1752 will. Since the will made no reversionary provision for the heirs of any legatee who died before the estate was settled, the heirs of John Blackburn, Jr., deceased, had no claim to any part of the estate.

The 1790 census of Menallen Twp., listed Thomas with one son over age 16, one son under age 16, a wife and two daughters. The dates of later marriage records indicate that Thomas, Jr. was probably the son over age 16 and one of the two daughters was Isabel. Six daughters and one son were married before the 1790 census enumeration.

In his will signed 1-6-1784 and probated 11-1-1794 in York Co., Pa., Thomas named his wife, Alice; sons, Thomas and John; and daughters Mary Hammond, Ann Bowen, Elizabeth McRayl, Rebecca Oldom, Isabel Blackburn, Alice Blackburn and Rachel Blackburn.

The widow, Alice, survived Thomas by some years as shown by the text of the marriage certificate of their daughter, Isabel, dated 10-30-1799. The certificate identifies Isabel as "daughter of Thomas Blackburn, deceased, and Alice, his wife, of the County of York." The date of Alice's death is presently unknown.

SECOND GENERATION

7. JOHN BLACKBURN, JR. (John Sr.) farmer, Judge of York Co., Pa., County Treasurer, Member of Assembly; b. 6 mo.-30-172_ (probably 1720) in County Armagh, Ireland; appears to have come to America with his parents, John, Sr. and Rachel (Morton) Blackburn in 1736; d. 8-24-1767, Menallen Twp., York (now Adams) Co., Pa.; said to be buried in the Quaker Burying Grounds at Warrington Mtg. House; m. ca 1739-40, REBECCA HARLAN, b. ca 1715, Kennett Twp., Chester Co., Pa.; d. 3-30-1766, Menallen Twp., York (now Adams) Co., Pa.; d/o Moses and Margaret (Ray) Harlan.

Of the following children of John, Jr. and Rebecca, the last nine were born in Menallen Twp., but the birthplace of the first four has not been conclusively determined:

30. Margaret Blackburn, b. 10 mo.-16-1740; m. 10-19-1763, Solomon Shepherd, Jr., s/o Solomon and Jane (Wilson) Shepherd.
31. Rachel Blackburn, b. 9 mo.-1-1742; m. 11-11-1767, (1) Nathan McGrew, s/o James and Mary (Finley) McGrew; m. 4-13-1771, (2) Nathan Hammond.
32. Thomas Blackburn, b. 8 mo.-19-1744; d. 1822; m. 10-11-1768, Elizabeth Griffith, d/o Thomas and Eve (Faulkner) Griffith. Thomas Blackburn served in the Rev. War.
33. Moses Blackburn, b. 9 mo.-16-1746; d. 7-14-1828; m. 11-18-1767, Mary McGrew, d/o James and Mary (Finley) McGrew.
34. Anthony Blackburn, b. 6 mo.-17-1749; d. 1824; m. 5-16-1770, Mary Griffth, d/o Thomas and Eve (Faulkner) Griffith. Anthony served in Rev. War.
35. Mary Blackburn, b. 6 mo.-19-1751; m. 10-19-1768, Alexander McGrew.
36. John Blackburn, b. 6-21-1753; d. 1835; m. (1) Mary _____; m. (2) 9-8-1827, Elizabeth Henderson. John Blackburn served in the Rev. War.
37. Elizabeth Blackburn, b. 10-2-1755; m. 5-22-1783, Jacob Beals, s/o Jacob and Elizabeth Beals.
38. Joseph Blackburn, b. 11-7-1757; said to have married Jane Hatton. Joseph served in the Rev. War.
39. Rebecca Blackburn, b. 12-12-1760; m. 1781, _____ Hendrix.
40. Samuel Blackburn, b. 5-17-1762; m. Hester Foulk.
41. Abigail Blackburn, b. 5-9-1764; disowned by Warrington Mtg. 8-9-1783, for "keeping company with a man improperly."
42. Elinor Blackburn, b. 3-30-1766; m. ca 1786, _____ McGrew.

Quaker meeting records indicate that John, Jr. and Rebecca Blackburn first resided within the verge of Sadsbury Mtg. in Lancaster Co., Pa., as did John, Jr.'s parents.

As a birthright Quaker, John, Jr. was received into membership at New Garden Mtg., Chester Co., Pa., 8 mo.-30-1736, on the certificate of his parents. The marriage of John, Jr. to Rebecca Harlan was not in strict conformity with Quaker principles and they may have been reprimanded. Minutes of New Garden Mtg. in 1744 inform that "Rebecca Blackburn and her husband appeared and condemned themselves for misconduct." On 3 mo.-26-1744, John

SECOND GENERATION

Blackburn produced an acknowledgment for "marriage out." Since Rebecca was also a birthright Quaker, the words "marriage out" are construed to mean that theirs was not a Quaker marriage. This conclusion is substantiated by the fact that no marriage certificate is recorded at any of the Quaker meetings for John and Rebecca.

At New Garden Mtg., 12 mo.-23-1744, John Blackburn, Jr. requested a certificate "for self and family" to Sadsbury Mtg. in Lancaster Co. This certificate was granted 1 mo.-30-1745 but was not recorded at Sadsbury until 11 mo.-5-1746. It is highly likely that John, Jr. established a home and moved his family to Menallen Twp. during that interim. At that time, Menallen Twp. was still within the confines of Lancaster Co. The transfer of membership from New Garden to Sadsbury Mtg. was no doubt made in order that they might attend the Quaker monthly mtg. nearest to their place of residence.

A patent for 855 acres of land on the upper fork of Conewago Creek in Menallen Twp., Lancaster (now Adams) Co., Pa., was issued to Moses Harlan, Oct. 9, 1745. On July 21, 1747, Moses and his wife Margaret (Ray) Harlan, conveyed 258 acres of this tract to their son-in-law, John Blackburn, Jr. (Menallen Twp. was laid off by surveyors between 1740 and 1744, and became part of York Co. when that county was established from Lancaster Co. in 1749.)

Shortly after the establishment of Warrington as a Monthly Mtg. in 1747, both John, Jr. and his wife, Rebecca, appear in the records of that meeting. By virtue of their association with the worship mtg. at Menallen, they also appear with reference to Menallen Mtg.

Some of the pertinent Warrington Mtg. entries are interspersed here with records of public office in order to establish a chronological record:

4 mo.-18-1748, Warrington Mtg.: "John Blackburn appointed overseer of Warrington Mtg." The Quaker records appear to remove all doubt as to whether this entry refers to John, Sr. or to John, Jr. There is no record of an appointment to replace an overseer after the death of John, Sr. in 1752, whereas there is a record, several years later, of the peremptory dismissal of John, Jr. from the position of overseer.

Oct. 31, 1749: The first Court of Quarter Sessions in York Co., after its establishment from Lancaster Co., convened at the city of York. At this court, for which John Day was the President Judge (presiding Court Justice), John Blackburn was qualified as Township Assessor. John Pope was among the members of the grand jury for this court.

April 25, 1751: At the Court of Quarter Sessions, by a commission from his majesty, King George II of England, April 25, 1751, John Blackburn and John Pope, among others, were assigned as Justices of the Court of Common Pleas. John Day served as the first President Judge, as his name appeared first on the list. John Blackburn, a member of Warrington Mtg., was a successor to John Day. Prior to 1756, Court Sessions were held in the homes of the Court Justices.

Immigration of the Irish Quakers into Pennsylvania
A large number of Irish Friends made their way to the Warrington settlement. Among them were Thomas Wilson, from Grange, near Charlemont, about 1748, a little later removing to Fairfax Meeting, Virginia; Thomas Blackburn, from Ballyhagen, County Armagh, about 1749; the brothers George, John, and William McMillan, from Nantmeal, Chester County, about 1750; John Marsh and sons John, Joshua, Jonathan, and William, also from Nantmeal, about same date; Peter Marsh, brother of John, from same place about same date; William Nevitt, a minister in the Society, from Moate, County West Meath, about 1751; William Hutton, from New Garden, Chester County, about 1751; Samuel Hutton, from Exeter, Berks County, about 1753; Nicholas Steer, from Sadsbury, about 1759; John Boyd and son William, from Sadsbury, the former about 1765 and the latter about 1754; James Love, from Sadsbury, about 1761; Francis and Thomas Wilkinson, with their mother, Elizabeth, widow of Joseph Wilkinson, from Chester County, about 1760; Francis Hobson,1 from Ballyhagen, County Armagh, about 1764; Aaron Coates, from Bradford, Chester County, about 1767; William Pillar, from Grange near Charlemont, about 1767, [p.172] returning to Ireland about 1769; William Chandlee, from Deer Creek Meeting, Maryland, about 1773; and Peter Milhous, from Chester County.

Among the Irish Friends in the van of the movement, as mentioned by Parrish in his Journal of 1773, were Joseph and Anthony Blackburn and Simon and James McGrew, living between the two Sewicklys; Solomon Shepherd and his brother [p.184] John, located near Fort Ligonier,—all from Menallen; and Barnabas McNamee and Thomas Gregg, near Redstone Fort, the former from Nottingham and the latter from Kennett. Joshua Brown, travelling in 1787, speaks of Joshua Dixon, of Fallowfield, in what is now Washington County1; and Peter Yarnall, who made a visit in 1789, mentions Alexander and Finly McGrew, of near the Sewicklys, and Henry Dixon on the Monongahela.2 Other Quaker arrivals of Irish name, as shown by the records of Westland and Redstone Monthly Meetings, were the Huttons, Pennocks, Hobsons, Newlins, McMillans, Whinerys, and Kirks; in fact, few Irish names were unrepresented in this and the later great migration to the Middle West.

The records show that during the several wars in which the Province was involved, not a few Friends departed from their peace principles and enlisted as soldiers. In the period of the French and Indian war, we have an instance in the Warrington minutes. 1 Mo. 17, 1756, "Menallen Meeting informs this meeting that John Blackburn [an Irish Friend, sometime Judge of York County] and John Pope, at a report of Indians doing mischief at a great distance from them went out in a warlike manner to meet them Contrary to out Peaceable principles." For this breach of discipline the offenders finally expressed their [p.232] sorrow and were continued in membership. With the opening of the Revolution, however, Judge Blackburn was reported to the Monthly Meeting, 2 Mo. 10, 1776, as having "inlisted as a soldier" and was subsequently disowned. Other members of the same family also joined the American ranks. 6 Mo. 7, 1777, Joseph Blackburn "hath Enlisted to be a soldier." 7 Mo. 12, 1777, Thomas Blackburn, Jr., and Anthony Blackburn, Jr., have "associated or joined in the Military Exercises."

Creek at Kunkle's Mill, at the northeast end of the township, did not yield its honored position to the flood of 1884. It rests on two stone abutments, one at either end, and at a height of thirty feet above the water, spans the stream at a breadth of 100 yards. A glen, south of this bridge in the Conewago Hills, is a romantic spot and worthy of visitation on account of the natural curiosities. Down the stream a distance from this place, was the home of the noted "cancer doctors," Bull and Anderson, who lived in Dover Township. "Witches" reigned supreme in this region once upon a time, which no one but the noted doctor near York could drive away. It is not known where they went, but they were driven away sure, and it is not many years since they were compelled to take their flight. "Pow-wowing" did it, and it requires nothing but a strained conscience and blind faith to believe in such a remedy or such a disease.

A short distance east of the base of Round Top, at a spot affording a most enchanting landscape view far to the south and west, on one quiet evening of June, 1866, immediately after a thunder shower, was committed the foulest murder known to the annals of York County. The Squibb family, grandfather, grandmother and grandchild, each and all, were the victims. There was no one left to tell the tale of that dreadful homicide. The remains of the victims were interred in one common grave in the southwest corner of the historic burying ground adjoining the Friends' Meeting House. A neat but unpretentious head-stone marks the spot.

According to the religious principles of the Society of Friends, they were opposed to any kind of military display. John Blackburn and John Pope, and many other early settlers of Warrington, were temporarily suspended from meeting in 1758 for "appearing in warlike manner, and going to fight the Indians" during the French and Indian war. The militia law which compelled every voter between the ages of twenty-one and forty-five, to muster regularly, pay a fine or go to jail, was a cause of great annoyance to the ardent followers of the religion of the great founder of Pennsylvania. A few even accepted the last remedy and went to jail, or allowed some personal property to be sold to pay the fine rather than submit to what they considered an unjust law.

The militia muster grounds were at Rossville. Joseph Wright and John Koch were captains of two of these companies.

The "Warrington Rangers" was a volunteer company, started in 1829, commanded at different times by Capt. Black, Baily, James Griffith, Lesley Porter and Martin existed for many years.

acknowledge in public at meeting "his great error for having a fiddling and dancing party at his house."

A certain member was disowned by the Society for failing to pay a debt to Joseph Hutton, in 1758.

Joseph John, a member, was made to apologize for his error in "for running off with and marrying a woman that some one else intended to marry."

John Blackburn and John Pope, in 1755, joined the forces from York County to quell the Indian troubles along the northern and western frontier. They were the first to violate the laws of the Society of Friends. According to the principles of the great founder of Pennsylvania, the Indians were to be treated with, and not quelled by force of arms. A committee was appointed to persuade them "in love and amity that they might see the error of their ways." These two men, however, would not yield. John Blackburn afterward became one of the president court justices of York County, and during the Revolution was one of the first of the Friends to join the American Army.

Thomas Noblet appeared before Newberry meeting, 8—21—1756, and said: "I ask pardon for not keeping the principles of truth, and giving way so far to the enemy, to enlist as a soldier, contrary to the good order kept among the Friends for which I am very sorry."

Abraham Noblet entered the military service during the French and Indian war. A committee was appointed by the monthly meeting, to treat with him and endeavor to bring him to a sight of his error. He acknowledged his error after retiring from service.

"Dear Friends:—Whereas I have been educated in the way of truth among the Society of Friends, but for want of keeping to the principles thereof, in my own heart, have gone far astray, being much surprised as to the reports of the Indians being in the neighborhood, I took my gun in order to defend myself, for which I am sorry, and give this for the clearance of truth. I hope to be more careful of my conduct in the future. ARMAEL FINCHER.

Henry Underwood enlisted as a soldier in 1756. He afterward at meeting acknowledged it to be "a great wrong to bear arms against his countrymen, and kill them."

Henry Clark on 2—18—1758, acknowledged his great wrong in being overtook with strong drink, and got his gun to defend himself against the Indians, "whereof I am sorry and ask to be forgiven."

Abraham Noblet acknowledged his error in being married "by a priest to a woman not a member of the Society of Friends." He appeared at Warrington monthly meeting and made an apology, which by order of meeting was to be read publicly at the Newberry preparative meeting by Joseph Bennett, and Noblett reinstated in meeting, which was done.

Francis Fincher and William Bennett had to submit to a public censure in meeting "for drinking too freely and using bad words." Samuel Underwood and William Griffith were appointed to treat with them.

James McGrew in 1757 acknowledged his error "for taking too much drink while with others and singing improper songs."

John Powell asked permission of Warrington meeting to go to New Garden, Chester County, "to take a young woman for a wife" in 1749. Granted.

John Greist produced a certificate from Concord, Chester County, 1749, and located in Warrington.

John Willis became a member of Newberry meeting in 1756.

John Rankin 10—7—1771, bought a slave, which was contrary to the rules of Friends. Timothy Kirk, William Lewis, William Penrose and John Hancock, were appointed to treat with him, but their report was unfavorable, and he would not concede his error. John Rankin afterward became a colonel in the Third Battalion of York County Associators, during the Revolution, but in 1778 became a Tory. An attempt was made to capture him, but by aid of his slave Ralph, he escaped and went to Long Island. He afterward sent an order manumitting his slave. Col. Rankin and his brother, Col. William Rankin, were quite influential during the early part of the Revolutionary period.

Jedadiah Hussey who lived in Warrington about 1800, could lift a barrel full of cider to his mouth and drink out of it.

BLACKBURN / CRUMP / HAMMER / WARD / IRELAND / CROSTHWAITE / SIMPSON

Posted by Patricia Porter <p1porter@themall.net> on Fri, 12 Jun 1998

Surnames:

Looking for info on Joseph BLACKBURN, b. ca 1740-1750, died before December 24, 1799 in Clark County, KY. He appears on the 1788 Fayette County tax lists. His daughter Priscilla Dianie Blackburn married Halley (Holly) CRUMP 8/Aug/1797 in Clark Co., KY. A listing of his estate inventory was appraised by John Hammer, John Ward and John Ireland. Blackburns and Crumps appear often as witnesses to wills, inventories, dowers, etc. for IRELAND, CROSTHWAITE, SIMPSON. Any information on the spouse and other family members of Joseph Blackburn would be greatly appreciated.

Dear Zerelda Horn,

I do appreciate your letter. I think it is the only reply I had on that query.

Do you suppose we will ever learn who the parents of Joseph Blackburn were?

I now have very serious eye trouble so am unable to further research. However if you are interested in the names of Rebecca Blackburn and John Bruner's children I can give you that information.

In addition the only other information I have that might interest you I found in the Early Marriages of Clark Co., Ky.

8/8/1797 Joseph Blackburn, father of Priscilla, gave consent to her marriage to Halley Crump.

8/10/1801 Olivia Blackburn married John Warren.

According to the 1830 Census of Clark Co., Ky. Rebecca Blackburn was born between 1780 and 1790.. If you ever run across the exact date or if you ever read the Clark Co. Census record for 1850 or 1860, it will be in there.

She died about 1864 (Clark Co. Circuit Court Bk 3, p 409).

Sincerely,

Nell Davis

By the way, one of my mother's first cousins impressed on his children that Rebecca Blackburn was born in the Fort at Fort Boonesboro (Clark Co. Ky)

All ~~to~~ cousins, near or distant, I have contacted share the belief that Joseph Blackburn was a cousin in some degree to Luke P. Blackburn who was governor of Ky. in 1875. I can't find the connection in Ky. It might possibly be found in Virginia.

Dear Zandra,

Did you ever expect to hear from me again ? Youu probably have obtained the information you asked for long ago- it has been four years- but I recently decided to do a lettle more genealogical work by correspondence, so here I am.

First you asked for the children of Rebecca Blackburn and John Bruner. On a separate sheet I have what I found at Salt Lake City on that.

I have no knowledge of the birth of Joseph Blackburn nor of his marriage. From Clark Co.,Ky. Court records I learned that he died in ~~18~~ 1799. If we ever find out whom he married I will not be at all surprised to learn that she is a Hart because one of my mother's first cousins told his children to always remember that he was a second cousin to Governor Luke P. Blackburn, Gov. of Kentucky about 1875; also that he was related, I8ve forgotten just how to Joel T. Hart, Kentucky's greatest sculptor. my mother and I tried chasing down both of those relationships but did not get anywhere. I hope some one else has.

I had some correspondence several years ago with Mrs. Eva Eudaly but because of cataracts and several eye operations which left my vision somewhat impaired I discontinued all genealogical work. Howver the interest never dies and if you can feed me anything new I will appreciate it greatly.

By the way the 1850 census of Clark Co.,Ky. should give the age of Rebecca. Or perhaps the 1860 census would be better. Does it not give seme info the 1850 does'nt ?

Sincerely,

Nell

My mother - Ella Nora Hamilton
Her father - Joseph Blackburn Hamilton
His mother - Catherine A. Bruner
Her parents - John Bruner &

What is your line ?

Dear Zandra,

So glad you are still working on the Joseph Blackburn puzzle. I think you are on the right track, tracing down the daughters.

I am descended from Rebecca who married John Bruner as you know. A distant cousin, now deceased, told me she had a pisture of which was well preserved in a nice frame , and on the back is written the information that she was born in the fort at Boonesborough, Ky. There is a Fort Boonesborough Society that was formed a few years ago but I did not learn of it in time to really trace it out in time to be a charter member so I did not pursue it. Therefore I do not know just what period of time that covered. I mean life in the fort.

I do not believe I ever read the 1850 Census of Clark Co., but I did read the 1840. Rebecca is listed there thusly: M 3(10-15), 1(15-20),1(20-30),1(30-40)---- F 1(15-20),1(20-30), 1(50-60). 5 slaves. 3(of her children,I presume) employed in manufacturing and trade. The female of 50 to 60 is of course Rebecca.

Deed bk 41, p 76,and I am not sure I have the right date for I do not have day and month , only 1964, Rebecca Bruner purchased cemetery lot # 115.

Bk. 21, p.445 of Inventories, Appraisements, & Sales Bills. Joseph B. Bruner, as administrator of his mother, Rebecca Bruner, deceased ------ mentions a note on Henry Bruner Heirs. It was a final account of the estate which amounted to $158.79 nad their being 8 distributors , each one is entitled to $19.84.

Oct. 1874

Would there be a guardian as long as the mother was living and the children were with her ? But do not let me discourage you from following any lead you think plausible.

In Cliff's "Cornstalk Militia", p 11, Blackburn, Joseph- Captain 17th Regiment- 4 Nov. 1793- Clark Co., Ky. Regiment- (First Commissions 1792-1793).

Wish I could help you more but I have gone through my files and this is all I could pull out.

Did you go through the family files in Salt Lake City? I found information there on John Bruner but none on Joseph Blackburn. That was in 1969. Maybe some one has come up with some thing by now.

Good Luck! Nell

As you probably know, before Ky. became a state we were Fayette, Jefferson and Lincoln Counties in Virginia. When we became a state in 1792, ~~soer~~ it was divided into the same three counties in Ky. Clark County was later taken from Fayette Co.

Joseph Blackburn was listed on the tax roll of Fayette Co., Va. (now Clark Co., Ky.) 1787-87, 1788 and January 11, 1790.

The Virginia State Library List of Revolutionary Soldiers of Virginia lists Blackburn, Joseph --- Saf. 281 (which means W. T. R. Saffell's "Records of Revolutionary War" N.Y. 1888). I have always felt this is our Joseph.

Dear Zanda:

Thank you so very much for your response to my query in the Tree Shaker about Simpson Crump.

My maternal grandmother was Nora Belle Clark. Her mother was Louisa Crump Clark, daughter of Simpson Crump and Elizabeth Gastinew who resided in Greenup Co. KY and moved to Illinois in the 1850's. Simpson's parents were Holly Crump and Priscilla Blackburn. This appears to be the family you are researching. I am enclosing a family group sheet for Simpson Crump and a lineage chart for Louisa Crump.

I would greatly appreciate having your data on the Blackburn family as it relates to Priscilla Blackburn and her father Joseph Blackburn.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Jack G. Watt

Hi Zandra,

Just got back from a weekend in San Diego and read your message. Yes, i agree. Those names sure sound like there's got to be some sort of connection. I can't figure out where Joseph came from before he married in Berkely Co., though. I've looked at old Frederick Co. - nothing that looks like our Joseph. That doesn't mean anything, though. As I mentioned before, there's not much here in the library in Visalia. I'm going to have to find out what published resources are available, and stop off in LA next trip to San Diego and look at anything that's available.

I think I already asked you this, but I may have forgotten: You mentioned Joseph Blackburn's "will". Have you actually seen a copy of a will? The only thing I've seen indexed in Clark Co., KY is his inventory. I was going to order a copy of it, but if there's a will available, I'd obviously like to get a copy of that. Or, at least an abstract of what's included in that will. Did you get it from Clark Co.? Or some other source?

I'll see if there's anything in this library on Jefferson, VA. I do know that there was a Blackburn still living in Augusta Co. for 186o Census that was born in Jefferson. You can get all the particulars on him and his family from the " Valley of the Shadow" web site. If you haven't come across that site yet, let me know and I'll send you the address for it. It's really a great site.

Hi Zandra,

Thanks for those old letters. Very interesting.

You mentioned Joseph Blackburn's will. I have only seen a listing for an inventory in Clark Co., - no will. If you have a copy, would you mind sharing it with me? If you have a typed version you could e-mail, that would be helpful.

I have looked through most of the indexes of Rev. War soldiers of Virginia, and never found a Joseph Blackburn. Only one from Pennsylvania, who eventually settled in KY and died in the 1820's, if I remember correctly. I'll have to get a copy of that reference. Thank you.

Halley Crump and Priscilla moved to Cabell Co., VA (now WVA) around 1811 and stayed there until 1817. Halley served in the war of 1812. For some reason, they returned to KY and Halley died around 1822. Priscilla moved to Greenup Co. to live with her sons. I'm not sure why a family would move from Virginia, then west to Clark Co (then Fayette), then back east to Greenup. You would think they would move west on through Ill and MO like everyone else.

Your tale of your driving adventure through the area had me giggling. I was just there about a year ago, and things really haven't improved much. I took a vacation with my parents to Williamsburg, VA. We usually try to go every other year or so. I fly to Chicago from California, pick up the folks and we drive through Ind, Oh, KY, WVA and on to VA. I made them take a slight detour so I could see what Greenup looked like. I found the old courthouse and parked the car, intending to take a picture from the opposite side of the street. in front of the courthouse were about 10 "good ol' boys", all either toting a shotgun or a pistol of some sort. They looked at me as if I were from Mars. I was obviously a "tourist". One quick photo and I was gone.

Just a quick note. I just heard from another Blackburn researcher who found a Joseph Blackburn who may be the right fellow. This Joseph Blackburn married Olive Henerick, Apr 16, 1782 in Berkely Co., VA. That date works for the birth dates of his daughters. What do you think?

Thank you very much for the family group sheet and your note about Joseph Blackburn.

I did not have all of his daughters, so your sheet was a big help. Odd he had so many girls and no boys, isn't it.

I, too, had once heard that Joseph Blackburn may be distantly related t the early Gov. of KY, Luke Pryor Blackburn. But, I've come to the conclusion that it must be pretty distant. I have been unable to find any connection. I'm not sure what I sent to you earlier, but the only Middlesex Co., VA Joseph Blackburn I'm aware of was Joseph Alford Blackburn, married 1769. He was supposedly a descendant of Capt. William Blackburn (d.1714) and his wife Elizabeth.

As for the family name Hart - that is interesting. The Simpsons, Crumps, Halleys, etc. were all neighbors, friends, etc. in Fairfax, Prince William Co., VA. Some of the Simpsons moved to Caswell Co., NC in the mid 1700's. Nathanial Hart (1734-1782) was pioneer, Rev. War Officer, proprietor in and chief negotiator for the Transylvania Co., of KY. He married Sarah Simpson in 1760. Sarah Simpson would be Halley Crump's great-aunt. Halley married Priscillla Blackburn. Nathaniel Hart was born in Hanover Co., VA. This is a pretty distant relationship, but it does show that the families might have known each other or of each other.

I have found a Joseph Blackburn in 1779, Fuaquier Co., VA. Do you have a copy of the R.H. Lee case in which Joseph Blackburn is named Agent? If not, I'll send it on to you.

I'm really not able to add much to the group sheet, other than one child of Henry Puthuff and Polly Blackburn. They had a son, Joseph Blackburn Puthuff,b. 1814, married in 1838, Greenup Co., KY. And, I do have all of Priscilla's children, but you probably have that from Jack Watts.

Thanks again for your help. You've supplied a lot of clues for me. Keep in touch.

Best regards,

-Pat-

Hello Zandra,

I came across your entry for " Blackburn" at the Roots-L web site. You had listed "1790 - Fayette Co.>Clark Co. KY", which caught my attention.
I have started researching a Blackburn family that was in Fayette Co, then Clark Co., Ky about the same time.

Joseph Blackburn, who is listed in the 1787 tax indexes for Fayette Co., KY, gave consent for his daughter, Priscilla, to marry in Clark Co., KY in 1797. She married Halley Crump, son of Turner Crump and Mary Halley, both of Virginia.

Would any of these people connect with your Blackburns?

Regards,

Saw Harry Pontius' response in this digest and his mention of Menallen MM, with various data from that MM. Since I am now to the point of seeking the marriage there 1810-1820 of a John Blackburn to a Jane —, I need to ask how he obtained these records. Was it through the Family History Center or some other way?

Thanks in advance.

Zandra,

The Blackburn genealogy on Joseph Blackburn is inaccurate. Further family data has confirmed (as well as circumstantial evidence related to naming conventions for the family) that the Joseph Blackburn that married Jane Hatton was the son of Anthony Blackburn. (Of Joseph's children, four were named after the grandparents.) The Joseph that married to Olive moved to Kentucky with John Blackburn, his brother - both being children of John Blackburn and Rebecca Harlan.

That being said, I'm thrilled to hear from somebody that descends from this line! How is your connection made? Can you help update me on your immediate family. I look forward to working with you on this line.

BLAKENEY formerly OF CASTLE BLAKENEY

LT.-COL. JOHN EDWARD CHARLES BLAKENEY, late 3rd Bn. Essex Regt., seconded for services with W. African Forces 1895, served throughout operations in Sierra Leone Protectorate 1898-99 (medal with clasp), cmd'd. Sierra Leone Bn. W. African Frontier Force 1900, Res. (2) N. Nigeria 1904, served in World War I 1914-18, O.C. 18th Corps Troops from 1917 to end of war, b. 20 Dec. 1866, educ. St. Peter's Coll. Camb., m. 28 Feb. 1899, Louisa Margaret (d. 20 Feb. 1946), eldest dau. of Lt.-Col. Lorenzo N. Mosse, 67th S. Hants. Regt.

LINEAGE—The Blakeneys came from Norfolk, where they held many manors and took their name from a small coastal port. The first recorded bearer of the name was HENRY DE BLAKENEY, of Lynne Episcopi, in 1285. A Blakeney pedigree, with coat-of-arms and quarterings, is given in the Heralds' Visitations of Norfolk in 1568. The last member of the family in Norfolk was CHARLES BLAKENEY, who on 5 April, 1611, sold his manor of Stewkey Hall, Sparham, to his kinsman, Sir Edward Coke, Kt., Lord Chief Justice of England in whose family it still remains (see BURKE'S Peerage, LEICESTER, E.). THOMAS BLAKENEY, at Hilary, 1597, bought land in Sparham from CHARLES BLAKENEY, and was apparently a yr. son of JOHN BLAKENEY (father of Charles) by either his 2nd wife, Alice Methwold, or his 3rd wife, Elizabeth Everard. The tradition is that a yr. son of the family went soldiering to Ireland at the end of ELIZABETH I's reign and that all the property passed into another family.

Blakeney Family Heritage

THE BLAKENEY FAMILY

The Revolutionary War, The War of 1812, the Black Hawk War, the Civil War, the Johnstown flood, Indiana skirmishes, World War I, and the beginning of the coal industry in Vermillion County are among the historical events in which my ancesters participated.

The Blakeney family traces back to the eighteenth century in Ireland, In the latter half of that century, two brothers, John and Hugh Blakeney left old Erin and came to America where John fought with the colonists in the Revolutionary War. It is quite possible that he fought against some of his English relatives in aiding the colonists in their battle for freedom. He came from a fine old Irish family noted for great strength, courage, endurance, honesty and partiotism. He is described as being a man of more than ordinary intelligence who deeply loved liberty. His sympathies were warmly enlisted in the American cause. At the close of the war, the government owed him considerable for services as a soldier. This he refused to accept, however, claiming that an Irishman could afford to do this much for the sake of citizenship and independence. He was married and became the father of at least 3 sons. One son fought all the way through the War of 1812 and later served in the Black Hawk War.

Another son, John T, my great-great-grandfather, lived for sometime in Bourbon County, Kentucky. He a native of Pennsylvania, was married to Sarah Oliver, who was born in Virginia. They were the parents of twelve children, namely, Martha, William Hezekiah, Nancy, Hugh (my great-grandfather) John, Thomas, Sarah J., Polly A., Verlinda, James and Angeline.

Records state that the Blakeney family was noted for strong men who were almost without exception finely developed physically. Most of them were engaged in agricultural pursuits.

When John and Sarah Oliver Blakeney left Kentucky in 1829, they came to Vermillion County where they settled on a farm near Westville. Here their children grew up amid wild scenes of life on the frontier. They assisted in the development of their father's farm; the boys also followed produce from Danville to New Orleans. One son, Jim, fought with the northern forces during the Civil War. A grandson, T. West Blakeney, made a brilliant war record. He enlisted in the 125th Illinois Infantry, Company K., under the command of Captain Cook. He was in the battles of Chicmauga, Missionary Ridge, and Kenesaw Mountain. He made the famous march to the sea with Sherman and while at Atlanta, was promoted on account of a special act of bravery.

It was during the bitter cold Civil War winter that both John and Sarah passed away at their home near the old Pawnee Mine east of Westville. In fact the weather was so disagreeable that they were buried in the nearby Dukes Cemetery without the usual funeral rites. Later, when the weather became milder, their funerals were held. I have visited this cemetery which is just beyond the old slack pile east of the high school. There, I found several aged markers identifying these and other Blakeney's graves.

John and Sarah's son, Hugh, my great-grandfather, was not a soldier; but he was a Vermillion County pioneer in the coal industry. The real beginning of coal mining in this country dates from the time that my great-grandfather with others opened mines in Grape Creek in 1866. Great-grandfather Hugh owned hundreds of acres of land and operated mines in the area which is still called Blakeney Hollow.

As a young man, he was married to America Hensley, against the wishes of her family. They objected very strongly to this union as they felt that this poor young man would be unable to earn a living for their daughter. From a small beginning of six acres, he eventually accumulated an estate of approximately one thousand acres of good farm and coal land east of Westville. Contrary to the Hensleys' pradiction, he prospered far better than most other young men of the community. He and America had several children; however, only two grew to maturity. They were Harvey and Dock Hawes. The latter, my grandfather, was named for Doctor Hawes, the family physician.

At the same time that these two Blakeney boys were growing up east of Westville, another family, who was later to be their neighbors, was emigrating from England to America. William and Emma Roberts, dissatisfied with the crowded conditions in Manchester, England, decided to bring their children and come to the land of opportunity. As William had worked in the coal mine in England, they settled in the coal fields of Pennsylvania where he found employment. Living at Johnstown, they found conditions to be very satisfactory. Work was plentiful and the family was happy until tradjedy struck. They were trapped in the Johnstown flood; and although their lives were spared they lost practically all of their possessions. They were fortunate, however, as neighbors and friends lost their lives.

As a result of this experience, they turned their eyes westward to the coal fields of central Illinois, where some of their English friends has already settled. In the course of events, the Roberts family settled near Westville and became acquainted with Hugh, America, Harvey and Dock Blakeney. During the latter part of the nineteenth century, the two families became closely associated by the marriage of the Roberts daughter, Eliza to Dock Blakeney. Born to this couple were eleven children, ten of whom survive. They are Val, Dewey, Shirley, Emma, Dock, Katie, Walter, Robert, William, Charlie (my father) and an infant who died at birth.

This family lived a rather quiet, uneventful farm life until World War I was declared. Val, the eldest, served, with the army in Europe as a truck driver. For months at a time, no letters came; and the mother was deeply grieved. Eventually, however, Pal returned unharmed. Not many years later, in 1934, my grandmother Blakeney died rather suddenly. My grandfather, Dock, who is now eighty-one years old, owns a large farm east of Westville which is operated by my two uncles, Dewey and William. A part of this farm was originally owned by my great-grandfather Hugh.

True to the traditions of the family, my father has been both a farmer and a miner. At present he is the state mine inspector for the fifth district, a position he has held for thepast twelve years. Some of my earliest memories I have had with him on trips to the different mines in this locality. For example, I well remember Sugar Williams, a kindly old colored gentleman, who had a small "dog-hole" in the side of a hill in Grape Creek. I recall how he patted me on the head and talked to me. Shortly after we visited him, he was found murdered in his little shack.

Thus, my paternal ancestors came from the British Isles and were engaged in farming and mining.

When I questioned my maternal grandmother as to her nationality, she replied, "Well, my grandfather McArdle ran away from his home in Ireland, came to America on a cattle boat, and settled in Virginia. There, he engaged in farming. His children were born there and it became his home. A German family who lived in the same county were also farmers. Their name was Wagner, but the McArdle family didn't know them."

"Why do you mention this Germ.family if they were strangers" I queried.

"Because", continued my grandmother, "later some of theyoung folks from each family moved westward and settled in Illinois, right here in Vermillion County. Twas here that Uriah McArdle met and married Elizabeth Wagner, both of them newcomers to this area. They later found that they had been born in the same county in Virginia, but they had never known one another until they met in Grape Creek."

"Go on, Grandmother," I prompted. "Where do I come in?"

"Well, Uriah and Elizabeth had three children, Elmer, Charlie and one girl, Mandie. I am that girl grown up to be your grandmother, "she answered.

"Tell me more. Were there wars back then?" I queried.

"Father served with the Union Forces during the Civil War. That was before he was married, but I can well remember the pony he had when I was a child. It was the same one that had served in the war with him."

Next, I questioned my grandfather Stevens in order to find more information concerning my maternal ancestors.

"Well" he said, "I can't tell you too much about the Stevens family except they came very early to Illinois from Maryland where they had settled after coming over from Germany."

"Did they take part in any Indian fights or wars?" I asked.

"I don't know about the Indian fights," he replied, "but your great-great grandfather, Byrd Stevens, was first Lieutenant of Company D of the 125th Regiment of Illinois Volunteers during the Civil War. His son, William, that was my father, also fought in the Civil War. See there on the wall, Mark, hangs a framed record of their company. That sword and gun you have were carried by your great grandfather Stevens during many Civil War battles. Now you see why your mother insisted that you buy a blue, not a gray, Civil War cap when this new fad started."

"Yes, she told me, but didn't you or your father ever see an Indian?, I insisted.

"No, I'm afraid not, Mark" he answered. "But did you know that I once went from Illinois to Nebraska in a covered wagon?"

"Oh, tell me about it," I prompted.

"Well, there's not much to tell. You see we started out on August 24, 1872, this day that I was one month old. We arrived in Nebraska one month later, according to my mother's account. Although the entire family made the trip in three or four wagons and planned to stay permanently, we remained only one winter. Twas a severe one, mother said, and everyone was thankful when spring came and opportunity to return to Illinois."

Back in Vermillion County as a young man, Grandfather Stevens, worked in the mines and the mining companies' stores. At the various social events of the booming Grape Creek mining community, he began courting a young woman, Mandie McArdle. In 1906, after a courtship of buggy rides and revival meetings, the young couple were married.

Born to this couple were two daughters, Ethel and Babe. Both attended Jenkins School and later were graduated from Westville High School. Ethel, the elder daughter, and Charlie Blakeney were married in 1934. I, their first son, was born in St. Elizabeth Hospital on July 3, 1935; Fred, my brother, is twelve years old today.

Thus, my brother and I carry on with the Blakeney name, but with no Indians to fight or covered wagons trails to follow. However, with radio, television, and other inventions the world is much more compact than in these early days, and who knows what lies ahead for us?

A veil covers much of the family tree outside of America.. The Blakeney family was driven out of Alsace, a province of France, during religious prosecution, where they were known as "de Blakeney." They settled in Ireland and became the Blakeney family. The Blakeney name is found in the Encyclopedia Britannica concerning one William Blakeney who became a Baron due to his gallant defense in battle. He was born at Mount Blakeney, Limerick, Ireland, and lived from 1672 to 1761. The persecution by the Catholic church in Ireland caused many to flee to America to seek religious freedom. Among them was young John Blakeney, who came to Maryland. Some settled in the Carolinas. Another John Blakeney, who also served in the Revolution from Carolina, was born about 1732 at Mount Blakeney, Limerick, Ireland, and died in 1832 in South Carolina. His daughter Elizabeth married into the Beaver family of North Carolina, which was the home of my husband's great-great-great-grandparents, Martin Beaver and Susannah Knox Beaver, who came to Lawrence Co., Indiana, before 1817. Other Blakeney families were in Pennsylvania.

Nyal Royce found that the old records of Limerick, Ireland, before 1800, were placed in the paper drive during World War II.

My family history of the descendants of great-great-great-grandfather John Blakeney, who came from Limerick, Ireland, where he was born, begins in the State of Maryland. At the Hall of Records in Annapolis, Md., in the archives of Maryland,

Vol. 18 beginning on page 56, is found the record of his enro ment in the Revolutionary War in the summer of 1776, aged twenty years. Myymother had written in her records that he served seven years. He considered most of his service as a g to the country which could offer him freedom. One Pennsylvar record was found where he, or some other John Blakeney, had b given two payments for service in the Revolutionary War. Joh was born in 1756 and died before 1809. He was short of statu and not up to the heighth of his son John T., who was a very large man.

The next record we found was the census of 1790 in Allegheny-Washington Co., Penn. John had two sons under sixteen years and his wife, Martha. The family left Northumberland C Penn., and moved to Kentucky. In the tax list of 1800 we fin him in Harrison Co., Ky., where the south fork of Licking flows from Bourbon Co. In the tax list of 1807 he was in Bourbon Co. and had three horses. In 1809, Martha Blakeney h three horses and three colts--by this we surmise that John ha died and she was the widow. The census of Bourbon Co. in 181 lists Martha Blakeney as head of household with two sons, one between 10 and 16 years, and another between 16 and 26 years.
Martha was under 45 years of age. John T. Blakeney, her son, was also listed as head of household in the 1810 census. Thi census was finished in 1811 and he was listed as between 16 and 26 years of age, as was his wife. Also listed was a daughter under 10 years.

John T. Blakeney had one mare on the tax list of 1810. In 1811, two horses were listed. William Blakeney also had two horses in the tax list of 1811. His age was given as 21 years. William was evidently the other son mentioned in the 1790 census in Pennsylvania.

The census of 1810 in Bourbon Co., Ky., gave this record of where Martha and John T. lived. The area was that part of Bourbon Co. that lies on the north side of Stoner Creek which flows into the south fork of Licking, and also on the south side of Stoner between said creek and the main road from Paris to Georgetown and the Scott, Fayette, and Clark lines. Listed in the census of 1820, William Blakeney had one son under 10 and two daughters. They were located in the area beginning at Paris and running up Stoner Fork of Licking to the Clark line, then along a line to the Montgomery line, to the Nicholas line, along a line to the limestone road, then north to Paris.

Somewhere in Kentucky lies our soldier, John, and Martha. A genealogist in Paris told me that the burying grounds of early settlers were in their front or back yards, Some are fenced in. As you travel through that part of Kentucky, you may see little islands of trees and bushes fenced in within a pasture which are family grave sites that haven't been plowed up.

In an old history of Bourbon Co., Ky., the writer said that the event that shaped the county was the Cane Ridge meeting that began on Friday, before the third Lord's Day in 1801, in a grove not far from Paris in the vicinity where John T. spent around twenty or twenty-five years. To those who have never heard of it, it was a soul shaking event. The folk in Paris can tell several stories of the meetings. People came from away and camped in the groves during the meetings. People were shook up spiritually. We saw the head stone of Barton Stone's grave, on the old meeting site. He pleaded for denominations to cease and for all to become one in Christ Jesus. It had an impact on the county. Our John may have attended as they were nondenominational Christians.

Many of the families listed in the tax records and the census were later found in the records of Vermillion Co., Ill. near the salt licks. Besides the name of Blakeney were Spicer, Bowen, Black, Scone, Brooks, Ashby.

The 1830 census of Vermilion Co. listed John T. Blakeney and Hugh Blakeney. The 1840 census listed Hugh Blakeney with the following children: two sons between 10 and 15 years of age -- one son between 20 and 30 years of age. Hugh was under 50 years. His girls consisted of one under 5 years, three under 10 years, and one under 15 and one under 20 years. His wife was under 50 years. The 1850 census lists Anna Blakeney as head of household, born in Virginia in 1795, with daughter Emily Frances born in Ill., in 1835. Anna was William's widow.

In the search I found a Mathew Blakeney who paid tax on 150 acres in 1781 in Muncy twsp. in Northumberland Co., Pennsylvania. John and Martha left Northumberland Co. and traveled toward Kentucky. In later years a traveling worker asked one of John T's sons if he had a brother in Pennsylvania.

When he replied "no" the man said, "You sure have a double back there." Goldie Neild visited Northumberland Co. and found their court records had burned. There are about twenty volumes (not indexed) of Pennsylvania history in the State Library at Frankfort, Kentucky. Anyone who desires can search further for the Blakeney family branches.

Tree Roof. Tree of Home

Underneath the old roof tree.
The roof tree of home,
Is whereI'll always long to be,
The roof tree of home.

That's where sun and clouds shine,
Where I survey all that's mine.

There's where welcome lights twinkle
And where tears and laughter mingle.

Baby voices are lifted there.
Hearts are full of peace and prayer.

Pain and joy blend with our task.
Just to be there is all I ask.

Flowers bloom gaily and birds sing
Under the roof tree of home.

I'll never trade it for anything,
My own roof tree of home sweet home.

DUKES CEMETERY

This is a private cemetery situated along a branch that flows along the railroad tracts going north east of Westville, Ill. Wm. Dukes deeded the land to cemetery. Vandals have almost destroyed all the head stones or a tornado? We know more are buried there than head stones account. The oldest stone was 1840 but the name was gone. Here is where Iva and Lawrence Clute, Lloyd Field and the writer found our great-great-grandfather and grandmother's graves, John and Sarah Blakeney. His brother William is buried there but no stone. Some stones there in 1966 gone in 1971.

John and Martha had three sons, John T., William and Hugh Blakeney, according to the census lists we have found. John was born in Ireland and came to America before he was 20 years old. He was in Revolution for seven years. He came from Penn. where two of his sons were born and maybe the third son, to Bourbon Co., Ky.

Our forefathers followed the teachings of the above scriptures, raising families, clothing their nakedness, and showing the children how to work. Today some would rebel and murder their offspring by abortion, let their children wear no more than a fig leaf, and scream at our government to feed them because they are too lazy to work. We will not be blessed in so doing, but the wrath of God will be manifest.

John T. and Sarah were married in Paris, Ky. and lived there until they came to Illinois with a group of friends and relatives. John T. and Sarah are buried in Dukes C.

They had fourteen children. Two died as infants. Thomas lived for an indefinite period. The others were William, Hezekiah, John, Nancy, Sarah, Polly, Verlinda, Hugh, James, and Angeline Blakeney, with Martha the first born. We have as yet no knowledge who Sarah's parents were. She was born in Virginia, what part we do not know.

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law." - Galatians 5:19-23.

Sarah Jane was the eighth child of John T. and Sarah (Oliver) Blakeney born in Bourbon Co., Ky.

Virginia, where they were married. They came to Vermillion Co., Ill, in 1829. Sarah Jane and James and his parents are buried in Sandusky cemetery, Westville, Ill. Sarah and James had nine children, Milton, Columbus, Lida, Martha, Avilda, Pauline, Pleasant, Emma and Medora Ashby.

Lida and Henry began their married life in Vermillion Co. They moved near Prairie Green Twsp. in Irquois Co. and went to Prairie Green church of Christ. They moved to a farm near Remington, Ind., later moving into town for their later years. I can remember visiting them on the farm and in their new house in Remington. They had nine children, James, Louie Mae, Joseph, Cora, Jennie, Harry, Fred, Dell and Henry (Doc). Milner -- maybe not in this order. Henry W. was called Wes.

The Revolutionary War, The War of 1812, the Black Hawk War, the Civil War, the Johnstown flood, Indiana skirmishes, World War I, and the beginning of the coal industry in Vermillion County are among the historical events in which my ancesters participated.

The Blakeney family traces back to the eighteenth century in Ireland. In the latter half of that century, two brothers, John and Hugh Blakeney left old Erin and came to America where John fought with the colonists in the Revolutionary War. It is quite possible that he fought against some of his English relatives in aiding the colonists in their battle for freedom. He came from a fine old Irish family noted for great strength, courage, endurance, honesty and partiotism. He is described as being a man of more than ordinary intelligence who deeply loved liberty. His sympathies were warmly enlisted in the American cause. At the close of the war, the government owed him considerable for services as a soldier. This he refused to accept, however, claiming that an Irishman could afford to do this much for the sake of citizenship and independence. He was married and became the father of at least 3 sons. One son fought all the way through the War of 1812 and later served in the Blakk Hawk War.

Another son, John T, my great-great-grandfather, lived for sometime in Bourbon County, Kentucky. He a native of Pennsylvania, was married to Sarah Oliver, who was born in Virginia. They were the parents of twelve children, namely, Martha, William Hezekiah, Nancy, Hugh (my great-grandfather) John, Thomas, Sarah J., Polly A., Verlinda, James and Angeline.

Records state that the Blakeney family was noted for strong men who were almost without exception finely developed physically. Most of them were engaged in agricultural pursuits.

When John and Sarah Oliver Blakeney left Kentucky in 1829, they came to Vermillion County where they settled on a farm near Westville. Here their children grew up amid wild scenes of life on the frontier. They assisted in the development of their father's farm; the boys also followed produce from Danville to New Orleans. One son, Jim, fought with the northern forces during the Civil War. A grandson, T. West Blakeney, made a brilliant war record. He enlisted in the 125th Illinois Infantry, Company K., under the command of Captain Cook. He was in the battles of Chicmauga, Missionary Ridge, and Kenesaw Mountain. He made the famous march to the sea with Sherman and while at Atlanta, was promoted on account of a special act of bravery.

It was during the bitter cold Civil War winter that both John and Sarah passed away at their home near the old Pawnee Mine east of Westville. In fact the weather was so disagreeable that they were buried in the nearby Dukes Cemetery without the usual funeral rites. Later, when the weather became milder, their funerals were held. I have visited this cemetery which is just beyond the old slack pile east of the high school. There, I found several aged markers identifying these and other Blakeney's graves.

John and Sarah's son, Hugh, my great-grandfather, was not a soldier; but he was a Vermillion County pioneer in the coal industry. The real beginning of coal mining in this country dates from the time that my great-grandfather with others opened mines in Grape Creek in 1866. Great-grandfather Hugh owned hundreds of acres of land and operated mines in the area which is still called Blakeney Hollow.

As a young man, he was married to America Hensley, against the wishes of her family. They objected very strongly to this union as they felt that this poor young man would be unable to earn a living for their daughter. From a small beginning of six acres, he eventually accumulated an estate of approximately one

Dear Mrs. Horn:

I am sorry to have taken so long to answer your letter. Yes there is a Blakeney book titled "Blakney Kith & Kin" 1745-1974 written by Grace Glaspie, Oxford, Ind. 47971. My mother (Goldie Lacey Neild) did a lot of research and gave Mrs Glaspie help on this book before she passed away and is given credit for it in the book. I do not know whether Mrs. Glaspie is still living. The last time I saw her was at my Mothers funeral in July, 1968. She used to come to our house 'Mother lived with us' and they would spend all day going to Vermilion Co. Court House and all the old cemeterys looking up what ever they could find on the early families of this area.

The estate papers and inventory my Mother had from her grandfather John Blakeney who administered the estate. All this information is from the Blakeney book.

If you write to Mrs. Glaspie and get no answer try writing to Robert Glaspie, her son who at time of writing book lived in Oxford Ind. 47971.

I hope this information will help you in tracing your ancestors.

Sincerely Yours

W. Richard Neild

Greetings,

Yes. So far as I know, Sarah was the daughter of Hezekiah and Rebecca Oliver, formerly of Fauquier County, VA. Hezekiah reportedly died en route to KY ca 1806 but his wife apparently did not get to Bourbon until about 1809. The two men who signed as witnesses to Rebecca's permission note for Sarah, John Foster and Jesse Shumate were each married to daughters of Hezekiah and Rebecca and had moved from Fauquier to Bourbon at about the same time as Rebecca. This Hezekiah had moved to Fauquier at the same time (about 1785) as several other Oliver men. I believe all were related but as yet, I cannot prove how. I think they were brothers.

I did not have Sarah's birth or death dates. I would sincerely like to know more about her family. Would you like to exchange data?

Psalm 127:1-"Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it".

Psalm 33:12-"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord".

I. 1. John Blakeney m. Martha
b. 1756 b. after 1765
d. 1809 d. 1810 or later

John and Martha had three sons, John T., William and Hugh Blakeney, according to the census lists we have found. John was born in Ireland and came to America before he was 20 years old. He was in Revolution for seven years. He came from Penn. where two of his sons were born and maybe the third son, to Bourbon Co., Ky.

Genesis 1:28-"And God blessed them and said unto them, Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth and subdue it".

Genesis 3:21-"Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord make skins, and clothed them."

II. Thessalonians 3:10-"For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat".

II. 1. John T. Blakeney m. 1/23/1810 Sarah Oliver
b. 5/10/1786 b. 11/8/1792
d. 1/31/1864 d. 5/23/1864

Our forefathers followed the teachings of the above scriptures, raising families, clothing their nakedness, and showing the children how to work. Today some would rebel and murder their offspring by abortion, let their children wear no more than a fig leaf, and scream at our government to feed them because they are too lazy to work. We will not be blessed in so doing, but the wrath of God will be manifest.

John T. and Sarah were married in Paris, Ky. and lived there until they came to Illinois with a group of friends and relatives. John T. and Sarah are buried in Dukes C.

They had fourteen children. Two died as infants. Thomas lived for an indefinite period. The others were William, Hezekiah, John, Nancy, Sarah, Polly, Verlinda, Hugh, James, and Angeline Blakeney, with Martha the first born. We have as yet no knowledge who Sarah's parents were. She was born in Virginia, what part we do not know.

Vermilion Co. Ill History by Chapman - 1884

John Priest in 1804. These families represented a wide and eminently respectable following who were people generally well-to-do and prominent and influential citizens. Both of Mrs. Canaday's grandparents on the father's side were descendants of King Philip III.

JOHN E. BOLDEN. When the Emancipation Proclamation of Lincoln was made, it broke the shackles of 3,000,000 of human beings. These slaves had remained in ignorance for generations, and their masters had considered that learning was dangerous to a colored man. When their freedom became one of the logical sequences of the great Rebellion, the question arose, Will they make good citizens? Statesmen of all shades of opinion have finally come to the conclusion that slavery is wrong, and that in all races there are men who have made a failure in life, but that the negro would in time assimilate with his white brother. Those who have so willed, and have grasped their new condition with intelligence—other things being equal—have solved the problem of life as well as a majority of other races. The man whose name appears at the head of this biography is one of those who, born in slavery, has made for himself an honorable place among men.

John E. Bolden is a blacksmith at Ridge Farm, where he enjoys a good patronage. He was born in Bedford County, Va., March 3, 1836, his father and mother being also slaves. Mr. Bolden was reared on a plantation by William Hudnel, who sold him in 1863 to one Charles Miller, at Blacksburg, Montgomery Co., Va. During Gen. Stoneman's raid, in February, 1865, the subject of this sketch ran away from slavery, and was taken in by Company M., 12th Ohio Cavalry. He remained with this company, doing his duty well, until June, 1865, when he went to East Tennessee for the purpose of entering the United States Army in a colored regiment, but he was too late. He then engaged at work at his trade, in Rheatown, Tenn., where he continued to labor until 1870, when he came to Ridge Farm, and has there since worked industriously at his trade, owning both his shop and residence. This property he has accumulated by steadfastly minding his own business, working hard and being economical.

On Feb. 6, 1865, Mr. Bolden was married to Ann E. Oble, just a few days before he ran away. He left his young wife in Virginia, and while in Tennessee he sent for her. He is the father of twelve children, seven of whom are living—Laura A., Vinnie A., John H. W., Florence L., Mabel D., Joshua W. and an infant girl. Laura married Frank Davis, the barber of Ridge Farm. Mr. Bolden has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church here for fourteen years, and his wife worships at the same church. He is a member of the colored Masonic Lodge at Danville, and is a man who is highly respected by all his acquaintances for his many sterling qualities. The dreams of Garrison, Wendel Phillips, Garrett Smith and John G. Whittier are fully illustrated as realities in the person of the subject of this sketch. They had always maintained that the colored man would some day take his place among the men of the earth, and their predictions have come true. Of course, the color line still exists in some portions of this great country, but the time is fast approaching when it will be obliterated.

JOHN BLAKENEY. This genial old pioneer of Vermilion County, although approaching his three-score and ten years presents the picture of a green old age, the culmination of a well-spent life, during which he has marked his course uprightly, lived at peace with his fellow-men and gained in a high degree their unqualified esteem. The picture of the sturdy oak, which has withstood the storms of time and maintained its strength and honor, may be well compared to the life of Mr. Blakeney. He has always been willing to "live and let live," has helped a fallen brother whenever in his power, and has been satisfied in the accumulation of sufficient of this world's goods to insure him against want in his declining years. He owns and occupies a comfortable home comprising seventy-seven acres of good farming land, lying on sections 4 and 5 in Georgetown Township.

A native of the Blue Grass State, our subject was born in Bourbon County April 26, 1820, and lived there until a lad of nine or ten years. Then leaving Kentucky he came with his parents to Vermilion County, Ill., in September, 1829, and completed his education as it had been begun, in a log school-house. His father, John Blakeney, was a native of Pennsylvania, and the mother, who in her girlhood was Sarah Oliver, was born in Virginia. The Blakeney family was noted for its strong men, who were almost without exception finely developed physically, and followed agricultural pursuits. The parents of our subject spent their last years in Georgetown Township. John Blakeney, Sr., lived to be seventy-seven years old, and the mother was sixty-five years old at the time of her decease. They were the parents of twelve children, namely: Martha, William, Hezekiah, Nancy, John, Thomas, Sarah J., Polly A., Melinda, Hugh, James and Angeline.

Young Blakeney grew up amid the wild scenes of life on the frontier, assisting in the development of his father's farm, and also followed the river transporting produce from Danville to New Orleans. He remained a bachelor until approaching the twenty-eighth year of his age, and was then married Feb. 10, 1848, to Miss Angeline, daughter of Edward and Mary (Ashby) Bowen, of Bourbon County, Ky. Mrs. Blakeney was a mere child when coming to Illinois in 1829. Her father secured a tract of land in Georgetown Township, Vermilion County, where he spent the remainder of his years, and died at the age of seventy-four. The mother died when comparatively a young woman and when Mrs. Blakeney was but a child, leaving four children: Angeline, Nancy, John and James Henry.

Mrs. Blakeney, after her mother's death, was taken into the home of her maternal grandfather, with whom she remained until his death, then returned to her father, who was twice married after the death of his first wife. Of his second union there were born six children and none by the third. Mrs. Blakeney still retains a faint recollection of her native county in Kentucky. Of her union with our subject there were born ten children, namely: James H., Martha J., Wesley, Mary C., who died when one year old; Francis, who also died at the age of one year; Alwilda, who died at the age of three; Lincoln, who died when a promising lad of fourteen years; Thomas W., who died at the age of eight years; Lura, who died when one year old, and an infant who died unnamed.

Both our subject and his estimable wife are members in good standing of the Christian Church. Mr. Blakeney, politically, was a Whig until the abandonment of the old party, and is now a strong Republican.

James H. Blakeney, the eldest son of our subject, married Miss Charlotte Bennett, and is a resident of Summit Grove, Ind., and the father of two children, Nellie and Hazel; Martha J. married John Lacy, who is a farmer of Vermilion County, this State. They have four children—Hardy, Elbert, Goldie and Minnie; John married Josephine Hinds, and they have one child, a son, Freddie; they are residents of Georgetown Township. Mr. Blakeney has lived on his present farm for the long period of thirty-two years, and has naturally become one of the old landmarks, whose name will be held in kindly remembrance long after he has been gathered to his fathers.

WILLIAM F. BANTA, JR., proprietor of the Ridge Farm Flouring Mill and dealer in grain and hay, occupies a leading position among the business men of Ridge Farm, among whom he has been known from boyhood. He was born in Elwood Township, Dec. 9, 1857, and is the son of James H. Banta, a well known and prominent citizen, who is represented elsewhere in this work.

Our subject remained with his parents on the farm until twelve years old, then the family removed to Ridge Farm. He received a limited education, but by keeping himself posted upon current events, is at once recognized as an intelligent and well informed man. He served an apprenticeship at the miller's trade and followed this business

Dear Zandra,

I may have mentioned that I had very little family history until less than two years ago when an incredible amount of genealogical information was given to me by a cousin. From the clues in her information, I started checking on the internet and the information was even more overwhelming.

I couldn't keep up with it, much less keep the various family names straight in my head. I don't know if I told you, but I am a very visual person (an artist...I hold an MFA in studio art), so I decided to devise a chart with the various family lines so that I could actually see how they play into my maternal ancestral lineage. It has been tremendously helpful to me. I have entered the new Oliver names (see extreme right side, in orange) as well as I could quickly determine them. I hope I got it right.

Also, some of your information mentioned Elizabeth Morgan (wife of Jepthah Hensley, see purple lineage on right side). Elizabeth was my great grandmother. Apart from being the great great granddaughter of the amazing Morgan ap Morgan, Elizabeth was also the granddaughter of Drusilla Prickett who married Morgan Mod Morgan. As good as that is, it gets even better. Drusilla's father, Jacob Prickett built Prickett Fort, which is now a state park in West Virginia. But wait! There's more.

As a child, the only remarks my mother ever made about genealogy was how her father and his family spent hours talking about the Springer family of Sweden, and reading the Springer book. My husband actually purchased a microfilm copy of this book, but I could never make the connection...until my cousin came up with the name of Jacob Prickett's wife, Dorothy Springer. I checked on the internet and discovered that Dorothy was the daughter of Jacob Springer, the last child of Christopher Springer and his third wife, Beatea. There are many people with questions about their Springer connections, but not with Dorothy and her connection to Christopher. She is too famous for there to be a mistake.

I limited the names on my chart to my personal ancestors, and did not include any siblings. I hope you find it interesting.

Norma

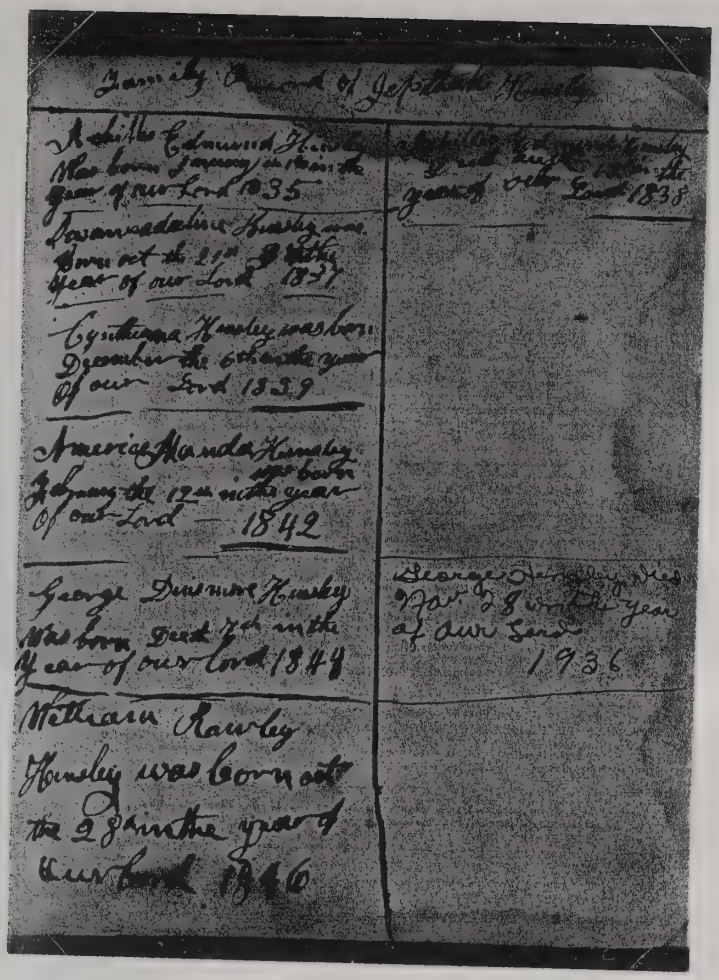
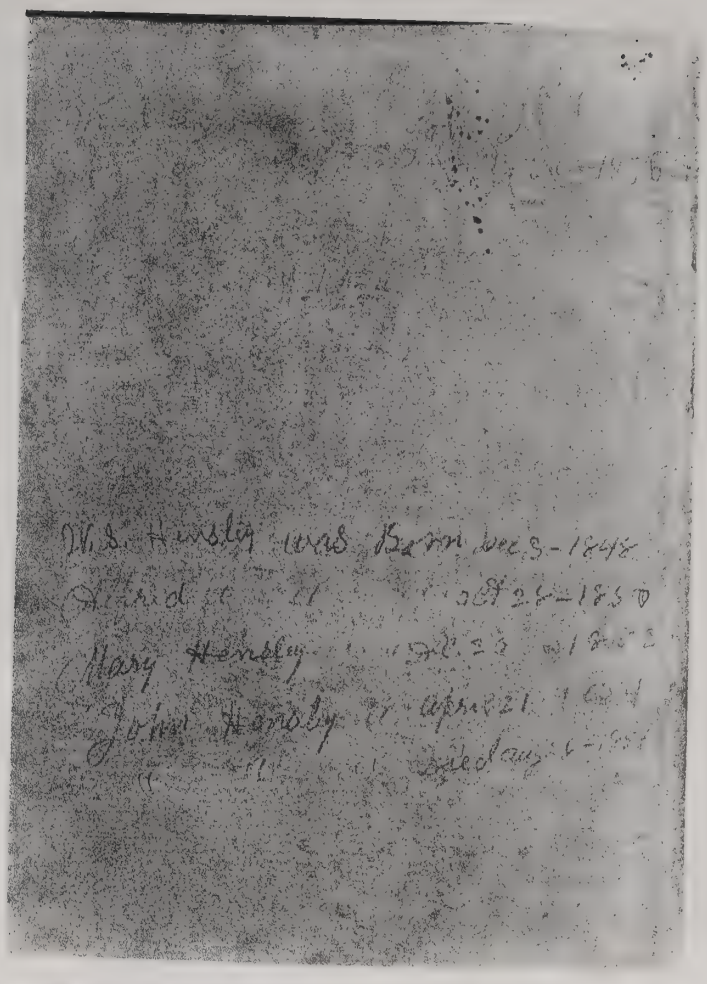
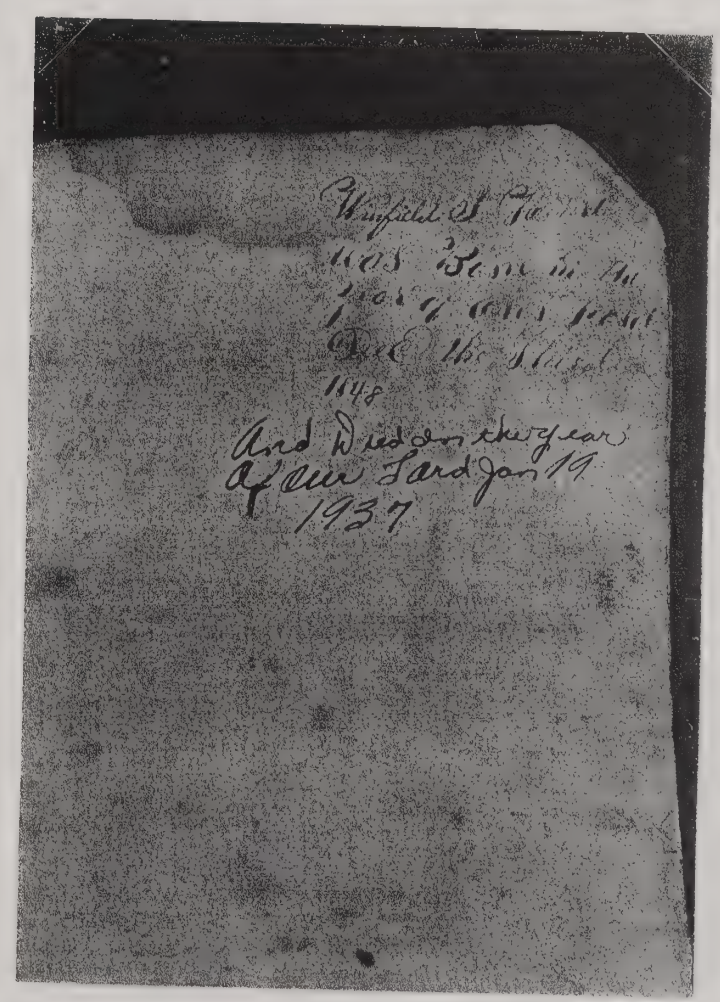
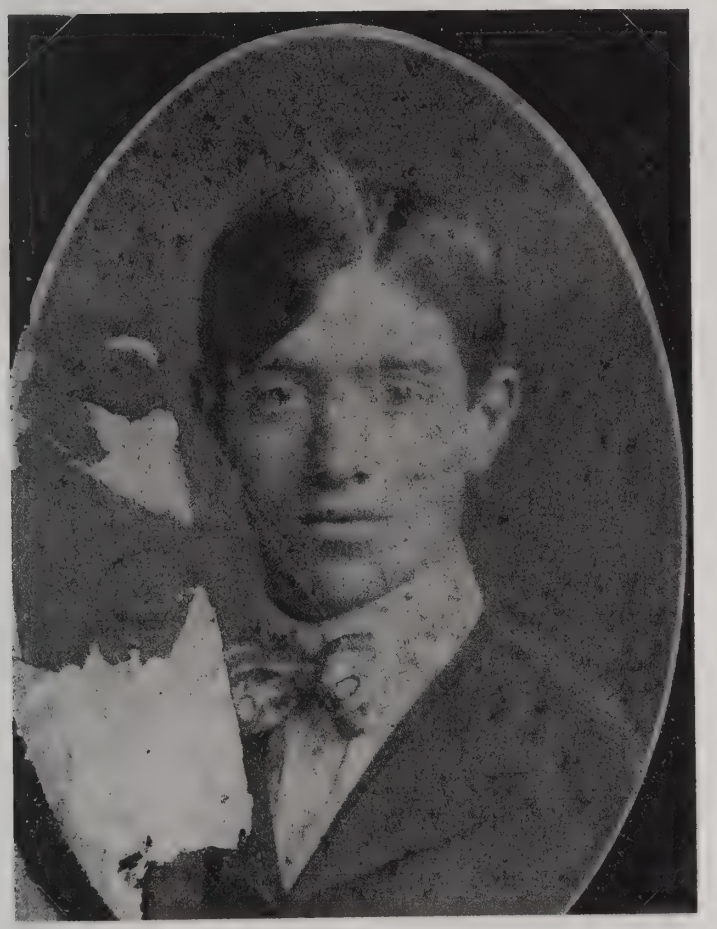
In addition to the Jepthah records in the Hensley Family Bible is a list of the family of Winfield Scott Hensley. The writers of the Jepthah records are unknown, but we do know for certain who wrote the Winfield record. Perhaps the day was August 27, 1913 (as noted on a map in the Bible) when Winfield asked Ina, his only surviving daughter, to enter some dates in the Family Bible because he liked her handwriting. Then Winfield dictated to Ina all of the birth and death dates of his children. Years later, Ina needed a birth certificate, and the old Hensley Bible served as proof. Of course, she didn't divulge to the Department of Records that the entries were in her own handwriting, but she took great delight in telling the story to her family.

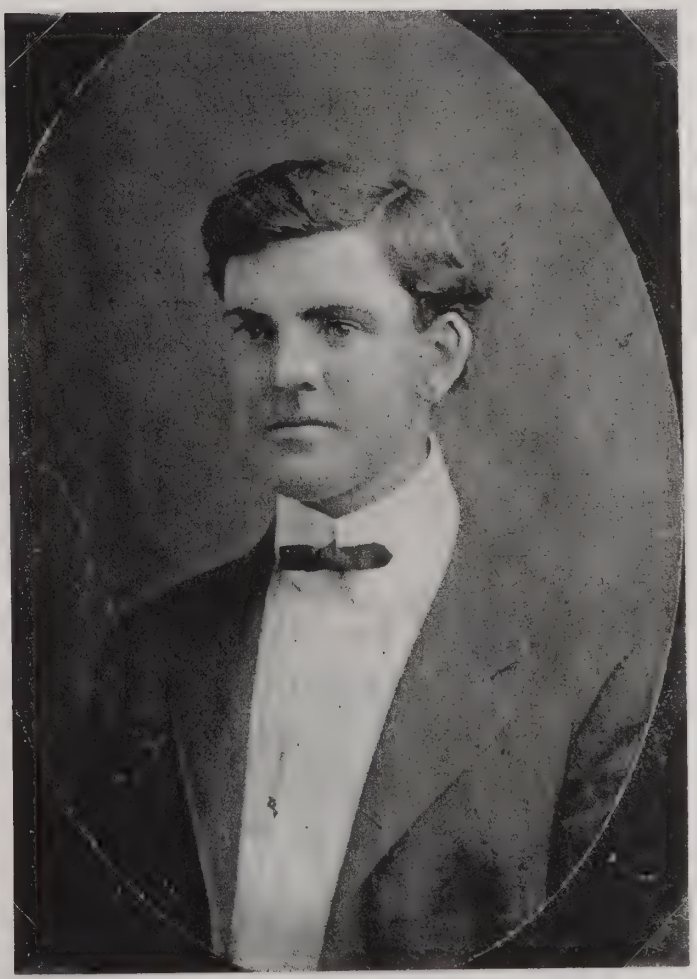






Our oldest documents of the Hensley family are in the Hensley Family Bible. Several pages record the family of Jepthah Hensley and his wife Elizabeth Morgan, who were married January 19, 1832. Their six sons and four daughters were born in the years 1835, 1837, 1839, 1842, 1844, 1846, 1848, 1850, 1852, and 1854. The last entry is of the death of Winfield Scott Hensley, my grandfather, who was born on January 3, 1848, and died on January 19, 1937.





This page: The original photographs are in an ornate family photograph album. No one has been identified.

Opposite page: For no reason other than the resemblance to Winfield (inset), the bearded man on the front row may be Winfield's brother, George Dinsmore Hensley.

Upper photo, verso inscription: "Aunt Janie with smallpox." As little girls, this photograph of our mother's aunt would throw us into hysterical laughter, then with mock gagging.

Lower left: Aunt Janie survived smallpox and lived many more years.

Lower right: As will be seen in a later family photograph, Aunt Janie looked very much like two other family members, Dixie Winegardner, and Dill Roberts. I had originally thought this lady was Dixie, but now I believe that this is Janie Roberts, perhaps even an engagement photograph. In addition to similarities of her features and hair style, this young woman has the dinstinctively large hands of Janie Roberts.

Janie Bishop Roberts, daughter of
half sister,

Some of our photographic portraits are older, but this copy is of the oldest family gathering, probably in Danville, Illinois. It could be of Hensleys, Adams, or both families. Herman and Winfield are not included, which suggests Barbara's family, the Adams. The original photograph was damaged by a fire which consumed the home of Warren Hensley, but several of the figures can be identified. Barbara Hensley is in the center of the photograph, wearing a striped dress. The first man to the left of Barbara is her oldest son, Warren. The boy in front of Barbara may be Everett; Warren was twelve years older than Everett, matching the age difference in the photograph. The little girl to the left of Everett is probably holding Barbara's hand, which opens the possibility that she was Eva. There were four years between Everett and Eva, but seven years between Everett and Ina.

Opposite page, and partial enlargement on this page: Until recently, I assumed that this family photograph was a "commemorative departure photograph" from Illinois, because of the inscription on the back, "Mrs. W. S. Hensley, Claremore I.T." (Indian Territory). The problem is that when the Hensleys left Illinois, they went to Houston first; within a year, they went on to Oklahoma. Until recently, I assumed that the little girl in the middle of the front row (notice the blue "x" above her, and the white "x" below her) was Ina; now I suspect that the little girl was Eva, and that the child in Barbara's arms was Ina. In the past, "x" marks often indicated that a person was deceased; Eva died on March 22, 1898 when Ina was six months old. Ina was three years old when the family left Illinois. She was the last child to be born to Barbara and Winfield.

More faces can be identified with some certainty than in the previous old photograph. Johnny Roberts is the first man from the left, and he was the husband of Barbara's half-sister, Janie Roberts. His presence confirms that the photograph was made in Illinois. Warren, second man from the left, is definitely older than in the previous photograph. Janie Roberts is probably the woman who stands between Johnny and Warren. The lady holding the infant is probably Barbara. Winfield stands to the right of Barbara.

The old man with the white beard (the first man to the right of Winfield) is intriguing. His hands are placed on heads of the two young boys in a grandfatherly fashion. If the old gentleman was actually the grandfather, he could be Jepthah, Warren's father, because Barbara was orphaned by the time she was sixteen. Error! Angeline died in 1904. It could be Angeline - Calhoun

The presence of Winfield, Barbara, and Warren in Illinois date this photograph before 1900, so it has survived more than 100 years.

"The next record we found was the census of 1790 in Allegheny-Washington Co., Penn. John had two sons under sixteen years and his Wife, Martha. The family left Northumberland Co., Penn, and moved to Kentucky. In the tax list of 1800 we find in Harrison Co., Ky., where the south fork of Licking flows from Bourbon Co. In the tax list of 1807 he was in Bourbon Co. and had three horses. In 1809, Martha Blakeney had three horses and three colts; by this we surmise that John had died and she was the widow."

Blakeney, her son, was also listed as head of household in the 1810 census. This was census was finished in 1811 and he was listed as between 16 and 26 years of age, as was his wife. Also listed was a daughter under 10 years.

  John T. Blakeney had one mare on the tax list of 1810. In 1811, two horses were listed. William Blakeney also had two horses in the tax list of 1811. His age was given as 21 years. William was evidently the other son mentioned in the 1790 census in Pennsylvania."

democracy of whose principles he has since been a strong supporter. He has never sought political preferment and has never held office with the exception of serving two terms as School Director. The horses on Mr. Sandusky's farm are from a stock of horses that have been in the Sandusky family for nearly a hundred years, brought to Kentucky by his forefathers and from there to Illinois by his father. A portrait of Mr. Sandusky is shown in this work and represents a worthy member of an honored family.

SERGEANT T. W. BLAKENEY. The personal appearance of the subject of this notice must invariably attract attention in a crowd, he being fine looking and of commanding presence, with a countenance indicative of the most estimable traits of character and the bearing which signalizes a gentleman. He is the offspring of a fine old family of Irish origin, and noted for great strength, courage, endurance, honesty and patriotism.

The paternal great-grandfather of our subject was born in Ireland and crossed the Atlantic in time to assist the colonists in their struggle for independence. He was a man of more than ordinary intelligence; one who loved liberty, and whose sympathies were warmly enlisted in the American cause. At the close of the war the government owed him $1,400 for his services as a soldier. This he refused to accept, however, claiming that an Irishman could afford to do this much for the sake of citizenship and independence. He was married and became the father of a family, and his son, John, fought all through the war of 1812. Later he served in the Black Hawk War. True to the instincts of patriotism which had distinguished his ancestry, the subject of this sketch, soon after the outbreak of the great rebellion, proffered his services as a soldier of the Union army. and, like his ancestors, gave his support to the cause of freedom.

Mr. Blakeney is a native of this county, and was born in Georgetown Township, July 19, 1842. His father, William Blakeney, was born in Bourbon County, Kentucky, and married Miss Susan Ellis, a native of Greene County, Ohio. The latter is the oldest woman pioneer of the county, having come hither when a young lady, with her parents as early as 1821. She is now seventy-four years old, while Mr. Blakeney is seventy-six. The latter came to this county in 1829. He traveled over the State on foot, visiting the lead mines at Galena, and fought in the Black Hawk War in 1832. He was a splendid specimen of manhood physically, being of powerful frame and very active. He was acknowledged as the strongest man west of the Wabash, and could outrun any man in this section, either white man or Indian.

To the parents of our subject there was born a family of twelve children, eight of whom grew to mature years, are still living and have families of their own. Those named are as follows: John R., who died young; Sarah; William Anderson, who died in childhood; Thomas W., our subject; Rachael, Nancy, Wright E., Martha, Mary, Susan, and two infants who died unnamed. Thomas W. was born July 19, 1842 and had a pioneer experience in common with the other boys of Georgetown Township, attending upon his studies in a log school-house, and becoming at a very early age familiar with farm pursuits. Like his forefathers he grew up with almost perfect health and a muscular frame, remaining with the family and assisting in the labors around the homestead until the outbreak of the Civil War. Then in response to the call of President Lincoln for "300,000 more" he enlisted at Catlin, as a Union soldier in Company K, 125th Illinois Infantry, under command of Capt. George W. Cook. He was mustered in at Danville, and drilled on the old fair grounds. At the outset he was elected Corporal, and after leaving Danville they repaired first to Cincinnati, Ohio, and then to Covington and Louisville, Ky. Later they moved on to Perryville, where our subject first saw the smoke of battle in an active engagement, one month lacking five days, from the time of his enlistment. Soon afterward he was in the battles of Chickamauga and Mission Ridge, and in the former was wounded in the thigh by the explosion of a shell, although not seriously hurt. He accompanied his regiment on the Knoxville campaign and

Dear Zandra,

Thank you for your letter on Emily Blakeney. We are on the same person.

Emily Frances Blakeney:

D. 14May1907 Vermillion Co, Ill
M. 14 Oct1852 Jonathan Thornton son of Eli J. Thornton & Sara Madden
b. 28Oct1829 Vermillion Co, Ill
d. 16Aug1906 Georgetown, Vermillion, Ill
CH. William F. Thornton, Orlando Thornton, Sarah Ann Thornton, Mary Eliza Thornton, Theodore Thornton, Emma Thornton, Charles Victor Thornton. (all born Vermillion)

Emily Frances parents:
William Blakeney and Anna Williams
CH. Martha Blakeney Goings, Rachel Blakeney Swank, Sally Blakeney McCartney, Eliza Blakeney Niccum Cannady, Emily F., Malvinia Blakeney, John William Blakeney & JAMES

All I know on William was that he was born in Bourbon, Ky and married there. He is buried at Brooks Point, Vermillion, Ill. He was not a wealthy man and was of Scotch-Irish descent. Ancestors came from Dumfries, Scotland to Dumfries, Prince William, Va. Left Va. c. 1776 for Bourbon Co., Ky. In 1828 he was at Brooks Pt., Vermillion, Ill. William was a wheelwright. The Family (perIll. Desc.) was driven out of Va. during the Rev. War. They worked their way west to Brooks Pt. which is now Westville via covered wagon. The Blakeney-Williams families were said to be rich Va. colonists before Am. Rev.

Malvina Blakeney mar. ---- Anderson and had 7 daughters who lived Danville area. The family says William came from Lexington, Bourbon, Ky to Ill.

From a writeup on the 1928 Reunion of theWilliams-Blakeney Families by Florence Puzey Swank this: The family driven from the plantations by cruel British soldiers, losing everything but a few pieces of bedding and some personal articles. The Dumphries, Va colony clung together and traveled to Bourbon co, Ky near Lexington where they made a settlement. Here they lived for years struggling alone, unhappy, dissatisfied, never gaining much worldly goods until through travelers they heard of Ill.In 1828 they left by covered wagon pulled by horses and oxen leaving Lexington, Ky with what precious goods they possessed. In the wagon train were such families as Waters, Graves, Ashby, Sconce, and the family of the Blakeney brothers among who was William and Anna. They arrived in Ill 6 weeks after leaving. Had camped on the road 2 weeks on account of sickness of a Sconce wife who Anna Williams Blakeney cared for.

Anna Williams Blakeney was born c. 1795 at Ky. She spent a great deal of her last days with Rachel Blakeney Swank. Anna died at the home of Daughter Mrs. Eliza Niccum, who later married Charles Cannady. Anna is buried at Niccun Grave Yard and husband William and son James buried at Brooks Point. Anna was from an old and wealty colonial family of Va. She was a beautiful woman used to the luxuries of life (I question this part of the writeup if Anna left Va 1776 would not be right age as in 1850 Census).

From research: Brig. General William Blakeney served Royal Irish Regt. 1st Foot Guards 1699-1708. Was made Col. of Inniskilling Regt. 1737 and was made Brig. Gen. in Cathagena Expedition. Created Baron Blakeney 1756. Died 1761 bur. Westminister Abbey.

This is all the information that I have on the Williams- Blakeney family. I have a great deal on the Thornton line of Emily and Jonathan.

If you have anything that ties into my Williams-Blakeney line for records I would appreciate it. Let me know any cost involved. Now that my daughter just married (April 28th) and lives in Champaign, Ill I hope to get to the Danville area and do some research and look up graves. Thank you for Linda Rosnet's name. I'll contact her. If I can help you at all please let me know. Again thank you for your reply to the Roots Cellar.

Sincerely,

PS if my William Blakeney was the son of John and Martha Blakeney then we must be cousins. Does this sound like my William was the brother to your John T. Blakeney? Now that I have the Thornton's back to Scotland I want to work on the Williams-Blakeney line.

Vermilion County Search

Posted by Judi Humburg <Raeburg@aol.com> on Sat, 09 Jan 1999

Surname: BLAKENEY, GOWEN, PHELPS, WILLIAMS

Searching for descendants in Vermilion County, Illinois. Possibly a family bible exists in one of these following families that might have info that I need.
Ann Williams Blakeney from ? Dumfies, Prince William Co. VA., moved to Kentucky. Married a William Blakeney, son of John and Martha Blakeney of ? PA., that had moved to Kentucky, after the Rev.war of 1776. John and Martha had sons John T. -b. 1786, William -b. 1789, Hugh -b. 1794. There may have been others, but I have found these three in Kentucky.
The Blakeney family came to Danville area, from Kentucky. Some descendants of Ann and William Blakeney are;
1. James - who I believe died young
2. Martha Ann m. J. GOWEN
3. Sally m. ? McCARTNEY
4. Malvina m. J. ANDERSON
5. John m. Nancy PHELPS - my lineage. Moved to Oregon 1852
6. Eliza m. 1st J. NICCUM - 2nd m. C. CANADY
7. Rachel m. W. SWANK
8. Emily m. J. THORTON

William Blakeney died in ?1831, leaving a large family behind.
*Searching for Jonathan PHELPS b. Northern N.Y. and Sarah (Sally) GOWEN b. VA., who came to Illinois.
I think that they may have moved to Vermillion Co, Indiana, after their daughter Nancy,(above) married and moved to OR.
Also looking for GOWEN'S in this area that might be related to Sarah Gowen.

Documents	Blakeney Family Ireland. The probable birthplace of the progenitor, John Blakeney, was Northern Ireland, the land of those known as Scots-Irish who were protestants. He came to Colonial Pennsylvania before 1776. Pennsylvania. Several sources prove our progenitor Blakeney family emanated from south-central Pennsylvania, among them the Revolutionary War records of...

Conclusion: the above census 1820, 1830 and 1840 all fit the family known in the Glaspie/Swank works as William and Ann Williams Blakeney. First and middle name transposition was and is not uncommon. Son James was probably born in 1819 [not 1820] and daughter Martha were probably born 1820 [not 1821].

Thomas Brassey of Pennsylvania

compiled by Edwin C. Dunn

The Conventicle Act of 1664 "forbade, under severe penalties, the meeting together for worship of more than five persons except in the case of the Church of England."[1] The passage of this act by parliament resulted in ruthless persecutions of the Quakers in Britain. Thomas Brassey of Wilaston, Cheshire, was one such victim.

In 1674, he was deprived of goods valued at £26.0.0 for preaching at Willason.[2] At about the same time, he and other persons were deprived of cattle and goods worth about £100 by Justice Mainwaring. Upon an appeal the sufferers were acquitted by a jury, but the Justices would not accept the verdict. "The chief Informer was one John Widdowbury of Hanklow, Esq., who being indebted £40, upon Bond to Thomas Brassey, a member of that Meeting, upon his demand of Payment was incensed against him, and then vented Wrath upon his Friends. He also had an old Excommunication revived against the said Thomas Brassey, and sent him to Prison, and swore he would send his Wife thither also."[3]

In 1679, there were 23 people who were convicted at the Quarter Sessions in Cheshire for being absent from their parish church for one month. They were fined £20 each and reported to the court of Exchequer as delinquents indebted to the King. These persons included Thomas Brassey.[4]

The result of this persecution was that Thomas Brassey joined the enterprise of William Penn in the establishment of a new colony in America. He signed the first frame of government drawn up in the colony. He was a member of the first Governor's Council, a member of the first State Assembly, and a member of the first grand jury that convened in the colony.

William Penn was an early member of the Society of Friends, or Quakers, as they were more commonly known. He was a son of Sir William Penn, a distinguished admiral, for whom King Charles II actually honored by naming the colony for him. The son decided to found a Quaker colony in America, and in 1679 he bought East Jersey, and then learning that the King was indebted to his father for £16,000 he accepted a charter for the tract called Pennsylvania in payment of the debt. In 1681, Penn was granted full legal authority over the colony.[5]

Penn offered land for sale in his new colony. In that same year, Thomas Brassey became a First Purchaser. "Deeds of Lease and Release, March 15, and 16, 1681, from William Penn to Thomas Brassie of Wilaston in the County palatine of Chester, England, Gentleman for 5,000 acres of land in Pennsylvania, for £100. Witnesses, Thomas Rudyard, Harbett Springett, Tho. Cox." This deed required that Thomas Brassey pay, in addition to the £100, one peppercorn annually to William Penn or his heirs. This land came to be in what is now Chester County, Pennsylvania.[6]

The Free Society of Traders was organized as a commercial company with plans for extensive colonization and improvement of the land. Penn granted this corporation 20,000 acres of land as a manor in Pennsylvania for their use. The first meeting of the company was held in London on 29 May 1682, and Thomas Brassey, who was named as one of the members in the charter from Penn, was elected part of a committee of twelve to reside in Pennsylvania.[7]

The Freeman of Liverpool with George Southern as master loaded on 7 June and dropped anchor in the Delaware River on 5 or 6 August 1682. On board was cargo belonging to Thomas Brassey as follows: 6 casks, 2 chests, 1 pann (equin), qty 60 lbs. Woolen cloth, 15 lbs. Norwich stuffs, 60 ells English linen, 6 doz. plain sheep leather gloves, 4 ordinary saddles, 2 cwt. cheese, 6 lbs. leather manufactured (skins dressed & ready for use), ½ cwt. brass manufactured, (per post in foreign bulk)[9] 6 cwt.[8] wrought iron, 3 cwt. nails, 13 piggs,[10] qty. 15 cwt. lead, (per post) 6 cwt. lead, 2 mill stones value £5.[11]

Thomas Brassey arrived in Pennsylvania several months before the president of the society. In September, Penn's commissioners laid out 10,000 acres for a town, in which every purchaser of 5,000 acres was entitled to 100 acres. Fifty-four men took part in the drawing of lots on 19 September 1682. Thomas Brassey drew lot No. 30 on Second Street, lot No. 50 on Broad Street, lot no 44 on Fourth Street, and lot No. 36 on Back Street. This town was, of course, Philadelphia.[12]

Meanwhile, the ship Welcome sailed from Deal on 1 September 1682 with William Penn on board, who was visiting his new colony. Thirty people died of smallpox on the voyage. He landed at Upland (in Chester County), but Penn immediately changed the name of the place to Chester. He had soon laid out three counties: Chester, Philadelphia, and Bucks. By the time that Penn had arrived in the Delaware River and summoned a court to be held at New Castle on 2 November, Thomas Brassey was a member of the first Council and of the first court held in Pennsylvania.[13]

Following the creation of counties, elections were held for members of Assembly. No list of Chester County representatives exists, but Thomas Brassey is among those mentioned in the minutes of the first day as being on the committee of election and priviledges. The Assembly created a body of laws for the colony. It met first at Chester, then after a later election on 12 March 1683 at Philadelphia, with occasional meetings at New Castle, while the three "Lower Counties" (ie. the Delaware counties) were annexed to Penn's colony. Brassey was a member of this Assembly, also.[14]

About 2,000 immigrants landed at Philadelphia in 1682, a good proportion of them Quakers.[15] Thomas Brassey was "a justice of the courts for Upland and Chester County in 1682 and 1683." The first grand jury known to have sat in Pennsylvania was on 12 September 1682 at Upland, and Thomas Brassey was a juror.[16]

At the second Assembly in 1683, a second frame of government was adopted for the colony and the charter was signed by Thomas Brassey, as well as by Robert Bracy Sr., who was then living in Sussex County and represented that present-day Delaware county.[17]

Thomas Brassey was appointed a trustee when a Friend's meeting house was proposed to be built in Chester in 1687. In 1690 he was named to receive a subscription toward the building of the meeting house, in the amount of £3.10.0.[18]

Thomas Brassey wrote his will as follows:[19]

Chester the 11th of ye 7th month 1690.

Thomas Brassie SS.

Sealed & delivered in the presence of Caleb pusey.

Walter ffauset.

Proved: 9 mo. 18, 1690.

Thomas died on 16 September 1690 in Chester County, Pennsylvania.[20]

Brassey was married in England to Ann Scott,[21] and he and his wife had three children:

1) Rebecca Brassey married Thomas Thompson, son of John Thompson of Elsenburg, Salem County, West Jersey, on "7th of ye 5th mo: 1690" (ie. 7 May 1690) at the monthly meeting held at Walter ffaucets.[22]

2) Mary Brassey married Francis Worley.[23] They married on 3 February 1693 at Swarthmore, Pennsylvania. Mary died on 21 October 1728 in Pennsylvania.[24] "Francis Worley was a prominent surveyor who moved from the Conestoga area which became Lancaster County to what is now York County Francis and Mary had at least sons Caleb and Daniel who are mentioned in Caleb Pusey's will; a daughter Rebeckah who came back to Chester Meeting from Conestoga in 1718 to marry John Hendricks. The wedding certificate shows signatures by Francis & Mary Worley, of their son Bracey (Brassey), and also Caleb & Susannah."[25]

3) Achor Brassey, died "2,22,1683" (ie. 22 April 1683).[26] The death in Chester County, Pennsylvania, was recorded in the records of the Chester County Monthly Meeting.[27]

RAPHE BRESSEY

ANCESTRY OF THOMAS BRESSEY OF NEW HAVEN, CONN.

By Walter Goodwin Davis, of Portland, Maine

In Normandy there are two places named Brécey, one in the département of Calvados between Bayeux and Caen, and the other about ten miles northeast of Avranches in the département of Manche. From the Norman lords of one or both must have sprung the families of de Brecey found in England soon after the Conquest. No Breceys are listed in Domesday Book (1086), but two sub-tenants, whose Christian names only are given, Gilbert who held an unnamed manor in Stone, co. Buckingham, and Robert who held the manors of Madresfield and Warndon in co. Worcester, had immediate successors in their fees who were surnamed de Brecey.

Only a few years after Domesday a Richard de Brecey (Ricardo de Briceio) appears in Cheshire as witness to a charter of Robert de Fremouz to the Abbey of St. Werburge, tentatively dated 1093. This Richard may well have been a younger son of the Worcestershire tenant, Robert, the husband of a daughter of Hugh Malbanc, second baron of Nantwich [Wich Malbanc], and the father of Robert de Bracy "the black", to whom William Malbanc, the third baron, granted three knights fees in Cheshire in the second quarter of the twelfth century, calling Robert his nephew. The first of the fees lay principally in the townships of Wistanston and Willaston, near Nantwich. Almost at once we find the manor of Wistanston in the hands of a family calling itself by the name of the manor, and this may have been the senior line of descent from Robert de Bracy "the black", but in any event younger lines of Brecey remained in both Wistanston and Willaston. From the third quarter of the twelfth century to the early fourteenth, we find Breceys witnessing Wistanston charters and appearing in the Cheshire court records, and for them a plausible pedigree can be drawn, down to that Robert de Bresey of Wildcatsheath in Wistanston, who, with his wife Alice, lived a well-evidenced life in the second quarter of the fourteenth century. In 1342 one Richard Joel surrendered to Robert le Bresci (the first of several instances where le is substituted for de at this period) of Wyldecotesheth and Alice, his wife, lands in Willaston, with successive remainders to their four sons, John, Thomas, Hamon, and Nicholas and their heirs.

Hamon de Brescy, Robert's third son, married Isabel de Hadley, the heiress of a portion of the Bulkley fee in the township of Bulkley, parish of Malpas, which portion was in their day considered a manor, and founded the family of Bressey of Bulkley whose pedigree from the visitation of Cheshire, made in 1613 and now in the College of Arms, is presented herewith. Hamon and his son and heir, William de Brescy, are well-documented individuals, but for the next two, or possibly three, generations (for chronology makes it probable that William was succeeded at Bulkley by his grandson, not his son), we have to depend on the pedigree. While this situation is not entirely satisfactory, the Bresseys enter into this undocumented period of from seventy-five to one hundred years as lords of the manor of Bulkley and emerge into documented daylight under the same style, so that the general descent cannot be questioned. As Bulkley was held of the heirs of the barony of Malpas and not of the crown, we have no inquests post mortem to aid us. Cheshire wills and subsidy rolls no longer exist for this period, and the Bresseys kept out of the courts, all to our loss. The visitation pedigree, however, makes no extravagant claims and is very probably correct.

The arms of the Bresseys of Bulkley are: Quarterly, indented per fess, sable and argent, in the first quarter a mallard argent. With this coat they quartered the arms of Hadley, Bulkley, and Brett, while in the visitation of 1613 a shield of six quarters is drawn, only the Bressey quarter being filled in, the fifth quarter being for Faber and the sixth for Wrono. Up to this point, this article is a sharp condensation of twenty-three long pages of abstracts of documents and of compilation, covering the early history of the Bresseys.

1. Thomas[1] Bressey, placed in the pedigree as son of Thomas Bressey by his wife Margery Wrono, would have been born about 1475. Again according to the pedigree, he married Margaret Hassall, daughter of Hugh Hassall of Hankelow, co. Chester.

   Hugh Hassall of Hassall and Hankelow was, according to Ormerod, the able Cheshire historian, the direct heir of Henry de Betley who was granted the manor of Hassall in the parish of Sandbach by the Audleys, and whose descendants were known as "de Hassall" from their residence instead of "de Betley". Hugh Hassall is said to have married Mary Mainwaring, daughter of Sir John Mainwaring of Over Peover, co. Chester. Hassall was living in 1488 when in the Recognizance Rolls there is a reference to Hugh Hassall of Honkilowe as collector of subsidies[1]. The Hassalls acquired the manor of Hankelow, which they held under the Vernons, as early as 16 Henry VI (1438). Hankelow is about a mile and a half north of Audlem. The Hassall arms are: Party per chevron argent and or, three pheons sable.[2]

   Children:

2. i. Ralph.[2]

   ii. James. He was "servant of the Earl of Hertford" (Edward Seymour, b. in 1537), as he states in his undated will, proved 25 Oct. 1561. He directed that he be buried in St. Magnus church yard (London), and left 10s. to the church and 10s. to the clerk and the minister. To "the lord my master", an obligation of Thomas Harding, he to deliver the odd £13: 7: 8 to Mr. Gilgate who was to give to "my daughter Audley" and to widow Applesby 60s., to Adam Beysmore and Thomas Kenyon 26s. 8d., and to Mr. Gilgate and Thomas Andro dwelling in Old Brudfourde (Brentford?) 6s. 8d. The other £6: 13: 0 to be bestowed among my fellows by Mr. Gilgate. To my brother Hamnet his bill of £50, willing him to give to my sister Barens' two daughters £20. To Thomas Freman 40 marks, of which £10 is to be delivered to my sister Forcete's children. "The other 20 marks I give unto my brother Robarte Bresse £5 the other £20: 6: 8 and four pounds that my brother Barnes hath to my burial and to the poor, but most to the poor". To Raffe Egerton 26s. 8d. To Rafe Bressey 40s. To John Warbeton 50s. Mr. Warbeton owes me £8, of which I give him half, the other to his children and servants. Mr. Peter Warbowton owes me £10, of which I give him 40s., and 40s. to Mr. Bouthe and Mr. Richard Warbooton, £4, to the poorest tenants and neighbors he hath and "40s. to the poorest householder in Aluenley the one half to of my godsons I have in the town". Thomas Masterson owes me 52s.; he is to bestow half on some highway. William Kerison owes me 20 marks, of which he is to have 5, 5 to his sisters, 5 to "my sister Elizabeth Morgames children", and the rest to my sister Pove, Richard Bressey,and Raffe Damparte, 40s. "to make in death's heads, the other 26s. 8d. to the poorest householders in the Malpas". Clothes to my brother Forset, Thomas Freman, William Forset, Harry Forsete, little William (Forset), Edward (Forset), John Pove, my brother Robert, Richard Bressey, Ralph Bressey his brother, Randall Bressey, their sister Alice (a mazer to my sister, their mother), my brother Hamnet and my brother Barnes. Executors: Richard Forsytt, Hamnet Bressey, haberdasher, Robert Barnes, mercer, and Thomas Bressie, haberdasher. Overseer: my lord, best master that ever I had. Witnesses: Hamnet Bressey, Robert Byrne, Andrew Outlaw, the writer hereof, Dorothy Williams, Elizabeth Barnes, with others.

   The legacy to "my daughter Audley" is so disproportionately small that it would seem that she may have been a step-daughter or even a god-daughter, and the division of William Kerison's last 5 marks is very obscure indeed.[3]

   iii. Hamnet. He was a member of the Haberdashers' Company of London, and executor of the wills of his brother James (1561) and of his brother-in-law Richard Forset (1561), and overseer of the will of his brother-in-law Robert Barnes (1562).

   iv. Robert. He was mentioned in the will of his brother James in 1561 and was possibly that Robert Bressey who was buried at Malpas 17 Dec. 1561.

   v. Margaret. She married (1), as his second wife, Richard Forset, of London, who was admitted to Gray's Inn in 1540, and to the Bar in 1552. He was Member of Parliament for Stafford in 1547, for Heytesbury, co. Wilts, in 1553/4, and for Trevenna, co. Cornwall, in 1554. He was lessee of the manor of Tyburn or Mary-le-Bone, co. Middlesex, and two years after his death in 1561 his widow entered into possession of the manor. She married (2), Roger Amice, of Wakes Colne, co. Essex, who d. 28 July 1574. She married (3), William Massey, of the Inner Temple, 2 Jan. 1575/6. She was living in 1583, when she conveyed the rectory of Mary-le-Bone to her son Edward.

   Both Richard Forset and Roger Amice left wills from which Margaret's Forset children can be identified. Of the six sons four were Cambridge University men, one of them going on to Gray's Inn where the other two were also entered.[4]

   vi. A daughter, m. Robert Barnes of London, mercer. If she was his wife at the time of his death (1562), her name was Elizabeth, but from the internal evidence of the wills of James Bressey, Richard Forset and Barnes, himself, it would seem that the widow Elizabeth Barnes was a later wife, possibly having been previously a widow Pomfret.

Robert Barnes' will of 21 Nov. 1562 names his brother-in-law Hamnet Bressey and his nephew Thomas Bressey overseers and leaves legacies to several Bressey nephews and nieces.[6]

vii. A DAUGHTER (probably), m.———POVEY. James Bressey's will mentions "my sister Pove" and John Pove. The wills of Roger Povey (1582), William Povey (1593) and John Povey (1598), all in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, contain no Bressey references.

viii. ELIZABETH (probably), m.———MORGAN. James Bressey's will mentions "my sister Elizabeth Morgame's children".

2. RALPH[2] BRESSEY (Thomas[1])) was born about the year 1500 and succeeded to the family property at Bulkley. He married "Margaret da: of William Massey of Denfeld Esq." The Masseys of Denfield had their principal seat at Moss Hall in the parish of Audlem, co. Chester, and were neighbors of the Bresseys of Bulkley.

Ralph Bressey probably died before 1561 as he was not mentioned in the will of his brother James. His widow was, however, remembered by her brother-in-law with the gift of a mazer.

The Bressey pedigree was entered in the Heralds' visitation of Cheshire of 1613, when Ralph Bressey's grandson, Thomas Bressey, was alive and head of the family at Bulkley, and, although the pedigree was signed by his son Ralph, a young man of twenty-one, it is to be presumed that the information contained therein was supplied by the father who could state the names of his parents and grandparents without possibility of error.

Children:

i. RICHARD,[3] b. about 1525 and succeeded his father at Bulkley. He married, before 1557, ELIZABETH BULKLEY, daughter of Randall Bulkley of Halghton, co. Chester, also a descendant of the Bulkleys of Bulkley. They were buried at Bunbury, the parish church of which was nearer their home than that of their own parish of Malpas, she on 28 Dec. 1578, and he on 20 July 1592.[6]

Children:

1. Thomas,[4] b. about 1557 (aged 49 in 1606), and succeeded his father at Bulkley. He married Amy Booth, daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Booth of Cholmondeley, co. Chester, by 1592. It was he who entered the pedigree of the family in the visitation of Chester of 1613. An indenture of settlement of his estates was made 4 June 1623.

Thomas Bressey's will, dated 22 Oct. and proved 7 Nov. 1631, mentions the feoffees of his estates, Edward Bressey of Audlem (deceased), Lawrence Bressey of Wybunbury, both of them his nephews, Richard Byrd of Colborne and Randall Bolde. His oldest son Ralph, who was twenty-one in 1613, and his son William had died, and he leaves legacies to the surviving sons, Thomas, Randall, Hugh, James, and his daughters Alice Herbert, Mary, Frances, and Amy. He also remembered his brothers George and William Bressey and his cousin Thomas Bromley. His wife Amy and son James were appointed executors. In the inventory the following rooms in the house at Bulkley are named: "In the Roofe" (the attics), the Hall, the Parler, the Kitchen, the Loome-house, the Cheezeloft, the testator's chamber, Richard Bressye's chamber, the Gallery, the Little New chamber, James Bressye's chamber, the Blacke chamber, the Chamber over the Hall.[7]

Shortly before his death he compounded for knighthood by the payment of £10.[8]

From him, through the Bresseys of Cotton Abbots, co. Chester, a yeoman family, descend Sir Thomas Brassey who obtained an earldom (now extinct) in 1911, and the present Lord Brassey.

2. Ralph.
3. Hugh.
4. William, living in 1631.
5. George, living in 1631.
6. Eleanor, m. at Malpas, 6 Dec. 1580, John Kerison of Wigland, a neighboring township in the parish of Malpas.
7. Anne, m. Thomas Burghaugh.
8. Alice, m. in London, 10 July 1581, John Luther of the parish of St. Nicholas Acon, she being of St. Dionis Backchurch, where she doubtless lived in the family of one of her uncles. In the Randle Holme pedigree she is "ux Lutter of London".
9. Amy, m.———Wren of Tatnall. She was a legatee of her uncle Thomas's widow, Anne Bressey, of London, in 1596.

3. ii. THOMAS.

iii. ALICE. She married (HENRY?) WRIGHT of Nantwich, co. Chester, and is mentioned in the wills of her uncle, James Bressey, in 1561 and of her brother Thomas Bressey in 1591, at which latter date she was a widow. She was very probably the Alice Wright, widow, "of the porche" (the name of one of the town mansions of Nantwich), who was buried 29 May 1609. The Wrights of Nantwich were a large family of town merchants who married into families of the Cheshire landed gentry and were of armorial rank.

iv. ANNE. She married RALPH EGERTON of London, mercer, presumably before 1561, when Egerton was mentioned in the will of her uncle James Bressey. She was a legatee in the wills of her brother Thomas Bressey, in 1591, of her sister-in-law Anne Bressey in 1596 and of her niece Mary (Bressey) Walmesley in 1605. They first resided in the parish of St. Magnus Martyr, but latterly in that of St. Dionis Backchurch where "Mrs. Egerton" was buried 10 Oct. 1610, and "Mr. Ralph Egerton, mercer", 12 Dec. 1612.

Sir Richard Egerton, Kt., of Ridley, co. Chester, had many illegitimate children, at least ten of whom are listed in a copy of the visitation of Chester of 1613, with additions, apparently in the hand of Mr. Jacob Chaloner, now in the British Museum.[9] Three of them left Cheshire for London—"Raffe Egerton of London Bridge, by Mald Dutton", "Thomas Egerton, Lord Chancellor (Viscount Brackley), and William Egerton of London Bridge by Ales Sparke". Ralph Egerton, Anne Bressey's husband, was probably a son of William "of London Bridge".

Ralph Egerton's will of 17 Nov. 1612, appoints his wife's niece, Mrs. Katherine Woodward, one of his overseers.[10] Nine children of Ralph and Anne Egerton were recorded at St. Magnus Martyr, London, 1562-1576.

4. v. EDMUND, b. about 1539.

vi. KATHERINE. She married———BIDDULPHE and was living in 1594 when she and her husband were mentioned in the will of her brother, Thomas Bressey. Biddulphe possibly belonged to the Staffordshire family of that name.

vii. RALPH. He married ELLEN PICKERING or PICKEN, and lived in Audlem, the parish of his mother's kinsmen, the Masseys. In 1565 he and his brother Randall or Randolph were sued by Jeffrey Rownes of Willaston, co. Chester. Rownes stated that the Bresseys wrongfully obtained from his wife Johane £7, claiming it in part payment of a supposed bargain made by her.[11]

Ralph Bressey, his son and two daughters were named in the will of his brother Thomas in 1591. He was buried at Audlem 27 June 1603.

Children:

1. Edward.[4] He married Frances Ward, daughter of Hugh Ward of Minishull, co. Chester, about 1599. They had a son Edward and daughters Ellen, Mary, Margaret, Frances, and Jane, baptized in Audlem 1601-1617.

   The will of Edward Bressie of Audlem, gentleman, undated and proved 26 May 1624, left all of his movable property to his wife Frances, all money at interest to his daughters Mary, Margaret and Jane, 10s. to his daughter Frances and the residue to Roger Wright of Nantwich, co. Chester, gentleman, William Boulton of Hankelow, gentleman, and Lawrence Bressey of Cliffe, gentleman, for specified uses.[12]

   The will of the son, Edward, dated 8 April and proved 30 May 1629, mentioned his grandmother, his mother, his sisters Jane and Frances, and his lands in Audlem, Buerton and Woodfall.[13]
2. Daughter.
3. Daughter.

viii. Randall (or Randolph). He married Mary Smyth, illegitimate daughter of Capt. George Smyth of Weston who was a younger brother of Sir Lawrence Smyth of Hough, in the parish of Wybunbury, co. Chester, where Randall Bressey also lived. He and his children were legatees of his brother Thomas Bressey of London in 1591, and his wife and son Thomas received gifts by the will of widow Anne Bressey in 1594. He died about 1610, when an inventory of his estate was filed.[14]

Children:

1. Thomas,[4] living in 1594.
2. Lawrence. He and his wife Margaret lived at The Cliffe, Hough, in the parish of Wybunbury. He was feoffee of the estate of his cousin, Thomas Bressey of Bulkley, in 1623 and of the estate of his cousin Edward Bressey of Audlem in 1624. He had sons Thomas, Joseph, Benjamin, and Daniel, of whom Thomas, Benjamin and Daniel were legatees of their uncle William Bressey in 1646.
3. Francis. He died before 1646, when his children William Bressey and Mary Bunbury were legatees of his brother William Bressey.
4. Anne. She married———Bouchier and she and her daughter Lydia were named in the will of her brother William.
5. William. He was a citizen and merchant tailor of London, married Anne———, and had sons William, Thomas, and Samuel, and a daughter Anne.

   The will of William Bressey, of St. Brides, London, dated 20 Aug. and proved 10 Sept. 1646, directs that his son William be paid the legacy of £20 from his late master, Arthur Woolnoth, citizen and goldsmith, and leaves one-third of his estate to his wife Anne, one-third to his four children, Samuel, Thomas, and William Bressey, and Anne Best, and one-third charged with legacies to his brother Lawrence Bressey, his sister Anne Boucher and her daughter Lydia, his daughter Anne, his nephews Thomas, Benjamin and Daniel Bressey (sons of his brother Lawrence), William Bressey and Mary Bunbury (children of his brother Francis, deceased), William and Anne Bressey, his servants, and his friends Mr. John and Mrs. Susan Talbot, the widow Margaret Blayne, Mr. Joseph Parrott. Executors and residuary legatees: wife Anne and son Samuel. Overseers: Mr. Parrott and Mr. Talbot.[15]

   The son Thomas, a surgeon, of Barbadoes, in his will, dated in September 1668, left his estate to his friends Mrs. Susanna and Mrs. Florence Elliot, his brother Mr. William Bressey of London, goldsmith, his brother-in-law and sister Mr. Thomas and Mrs

Anne Best, and appointed his friends, Capt. James Elliot and Mr. Francis Bressey of Barbadoes, executors.[16]

3. Thomas[3] Bressey (Ralph,[2] Thomas[1]) was presumably born at Bulkley about the year 1527. He was sent up to London by his parents and apprenticed to his uncle Hamnet Bressey, through whom ("per Hamlett Bracey") he obtained the freedom of the Haberdashers' Company in 1548 and thereby became a citizen of London.[17] As a city merchant he prospered and acquired considerable wealth. From 1561 until his death he lived in the parish of St. Dionis Backchurch.

   Bressey married twice. His first wife was Anne Ober, whom Thomas Brassye of St. Magnus parish was licensed to marry in the church of St. Christopher-le-Stocks on 15 Jan. 1553/4. Mrs. Bressey was buried at St. Dionis Backchurch 7 March 1568/9. On 29 July 1572 Thomas Bressey was licensed to marry Agnes Lawrence, widow, at St. Christopher-le-Stocks. She was Anne (Erne) Lawrence, the names Anne and Agnes being not uncommonly interchanged, who had married at St. Christopher-le-Stocks on 13 Sept. 1559 Felix Lawrence, grocer, of London and Steventon, co. Bedford. Lawrence was buried 21 Jan. 1570/1.

   Many of Mr. Bressey's apprentices and servants seem to have been young members of his mother's family in Cheshire. In addition to the four named in his will there were Jane Massy and Mary Massy, "servants with Mr. Bracye", who were buried on successive days in 1563 at St. Dionis, probably victims of the plague.

   Mr. Thomas Bressey was buried 10 May 1592, at St. Dionis, and his widow survived until 1596 when she was buried on 27 October.

   The will of Thomas Bressie, citizen and haberdasher of London, was made 9 Aug. 1591, and proved 13 June 1592. He directed that he be buried in the church of St. Dionis, "in the chapel there under the pew where I sit", and that the cost of the funeral should not exceed £100. To my wife Anne, one-third of my estate. To Henry Bressey, my son, and my daughters Catherine, Anne, and Mary equally, one-third of my estate. "I have paid with each of my daughters £400, not reckoning their apparel nor marriage dinners." "I have advanced my son Ralph Bressie and he is to claim no part of this third." For twenty godly sermons, 30 nobles. To the Haberdashers Company, £10 for a silver cup with my mark. To the marriages of thirty poor maids, 10s. each, and another thirty at 6s. 8d. each. To eighty poor householders, married or widowed, £40. For redeeming honest and godly prisoners in the two Compters, Newgate, Ludgate, Marshalsea, and King's Bench, £20. To Christ's hospital, £10. To St. Bartholomew's, St. Thomas", Bridewell and Bedlam, 5 marks each. To Cambridge, 20 marks. To Oxford, 20 nobles. To my brother Edmund Bressey, £40, and to his two sons Edmund and Isaac, 5 marks each. To my brother Ralph Bressey, if he pay his debts to me, £20, and to his son and two daughters 5 marks each. To my brother Randoll Bressey, £150, he to pay his debts to me, and £50 among his children equally at the age of twenty-one. To my brother Edmund Bressey, £20 for the use of my sister Katherine Biddulphe, and to her husband 20 nobles, if he pay his debts to me, but, if he does not, a statute shall be sued for recovery, in which he was bound to Mr. Milwarde. To my sister Alice Wright, widow, £30, and to her children Roger and Margaret 20 nobles each and to her daughter Margery 5 marks. To my sister Anne Edgerton, £40; to the marriage of her daughter Anne, 20 marks, and of her daughter Margaret, £10; to her children Sarah and Ralph, 5 marks each. To my sister Alice Hill,[18] for her good will to me and my wife £10. To my cousin Mary Carroll, £10, and to her son Thomas, £5; to her sister Anne Maplesden, £5. To Alice Marshe, widow, £10. To William Milwarde, £20, and to his son Thomas, £5. To my servants William and Jeffrye Maises [Massey], £10 each, Thomas Maises 20 nobles, Edward Maises 40s., and I remit to William and Jeffrye a year of their apprenticeship. To my late servant Rowland Haywarde, £5. To my servant Katherine Frannces, 40s. at the end of her years. To Mr. Thomas Church, £10. To my son-in-law John Woodwarde, £100. To my daughter Mary, wife of William Walmesley, my leaseholds in Bishopsgate Without. To each of my son Ralph's children, £15 at twenty-one or marriage. To the four children of my daughter Katherine Woodwarde, £15. To the two sons of my daughter Anne, wife of Thomas Garwaye, £15. To the two daughters of my daughter Mary Walmesley, £15. To my wife Anne, my best silver basin and ewer, my two best salts, one nest of best gilt goblets or bowls, one nest of gilt bowls she brought with her, twelve best gilt spoons, two stone pots garnished with silver (one gilt, the other white) and one little pot garnished with silver given her long since. Residue to my wife and sole executrix, for the use of my son Ralph. Overseers: sons-in-law John Woodwarde, Thomas Garwaye, William Walmesley, cousin Robert Carroll, and Mr. William Millwarde, to each of whom, 20 nobles. To my son Ralph and his heirs male, my tenements in Adstone, co. Leicester, bought of the Earl of Huntington, with remainder to my three daughters. Witnesses: Robert Bauckworthe, scriptor, Geoffrey Massie, Thomas Massie.[19]

The will of Anne Bressie of the City of London, widow, dated 4 Oct. and proved 19 Nov. 1596, is of great length and detail, much of which is omitted in the following abstract. To be buried in the chapel of St. Dionis Backchurch, as nigh as possible to my husband Thomas Bressie. My executors at my funeral to have to dinner and supper all my neighbors of St. Dionis, as well poor as rich. To my brother Edmund Bressie.

To my brother Robert Fletton, grocer, and my sister Elizabeth, his wife. To my sister-in-law Christian Joanes. To my cousin Robert Carrell and Mary his wife, dwelling in Whittington College, London, and their children Anne, Thomas, John, Henry, Robert, and Clemence. To my son Woodward and my daughter his wife. To my son Garway and my daughter his wife. To my son Walmesley and my daughter his wife. To my sister Hyll (Alice Hill sister to Felix Lawrence my late husband) and her daughter Christian. To my cousin William Allen, draper. To cousin Elizabeth Allen. To cousin Staynes and his wife (William Staynes and Alice his wife). To cousin Amie Wrenne [daughter of Richard Bressey of Bulkley]. To young Parrott that married my sister's daughter, and (later in document) Raufe Parrett's daughter by my cousin his first wife. To my daughter Katherine Woodward. To my daughter Anne Garway and her children, Ann, Thomas, Timothy, and Catherine. To my daughter Mary Walmisley and her daughter Anne. To Anne Edgerton, daughter of my sister Anne Edgerton. To cousin Judith Terrell and her daughters, Elizabeth and Ellen. To my sister Bressey, wife of Randolf Bressey, and their son Thomas. To Thomas and Anne Bressey, children of my son-in-law Raphe Bressey. To the Company of Haberdashers £100 for a loan fund. To the parishes of Edmonton, co. Middlesex, St. Andrews Hertford, co. Hertford, Haverhill, co. Suffolk, Southwark, St. Sepulchre's, St. Giles Cripplegate, St. Botolph Bishopsgate, St. Botolph Aldgate, St. Leonard Shoreditch, and Whitechapel (London). To Robert Fletton, John Woodward, Thomas Garway, John Maplesden (Archdeacon of Suffolk), William Charke, preacher, and Jeffrey Massey, £1300 to buy lands in trust for my kinsman Felix Maplesden with remainders to his sisters Mary Carrell and Ann Auncell in turn. Executors: Robert Carrell and Mary his wife. Overseers: Robert Fletton, Edmund Bressey, John Woodward, Thomas Garway, William Warmisley, William Staynes, Felix Maplesden, William Charke, and Jeffrey Massey. Witnesses, Robert Fletton, Michael Palmer, Jeffory Massie, Edward Massie, John Partridge, scriptor.[20]

Children:

i. RALPH.[4] He matriculated pensioner from St. John's College, Cambridge, Easter, 1567, and again in 1568; B.A. from Clare College, Cambridge, 1571/2. He was admitted freeman of the Haberdashers' Company by patrimony in 1577. He m. JOANE DOUGHTIE of the parish of St. Mary Colechurch 16 May 1580, at St. Dionis Backchurch. Ralph Bressey of Knowle, co. Warwick, gentleman, his son, speaks of his father Ralph Bressey as dead, 8 Feb. 1620.[21]

Children:

1. Thomas,[5] mentioned in the will of his step-grandmother, Mrs. Anne Bressey, in 1596.
2. Anne, mentioned in the will of her step-grandmother in 1596.
3. Ralph. He was apprenticed to his uncle Thomas Garraway of the Drapers' Company 2 Dec. 1607, and was of Knowle, co. Warwick, in 1620, "greatly impoverished" by supplying the needs of his father. He may possibly be the Ralph Bressey of St. Mary Somerset, London, gentleman, administration of whose estate was granted to his widow, Ann Bressey, 23 Feb. 1623/4.[22]

ii. KATHERINE, m. JOHN WOODWARD 1 June 1579, at St. Dionis Backchurch, where Mr. John Woodward, ironmonger, was buried 20 Nov. 1601, and Mrs. Katherine Woodward 18 Nov. 1613.

She made her will 14 April 1608, and it was proved by her son Sir John Woodward, Kt., 26 Nov. 1613.[23] Her six children were baptized at St. Dionis Backchurch 1580-1590.

iii. HENRY, b. about 1559. He matriculated pensioner, aged ten, at Cambridge from St. John's College at Easter, 1569, and got his B.A. from Clare College in 1577/80. In 1581 he was made a freeman of the Haberdashers' Company by patrimony.

On 15 Jan. 1590/1, an inquest was taken at the Guildhall, London, in which it was found that Henry Bracy, gentleman, "became a lunatic by the visitation of God 2 years ago" but enjoyed lucid intervals. The jury found that he was seized of the reversion of the manor of Oddeston in the parish of Shaxton, co. Leicester, and a water-mill in the parish of Swepton in the same county, as appeared by a deed made by Henry Waver alias Over,[24] late citizen and alderman of the city of Coventry, to Thomas Wheathill, Richard Wheathill, Ralph Egerton, and Simon Wheathill, that he was seized of the reversion of lands held by copy of the court of the manor of Balsall, lying in Escot and Barston, co. Warwick, and that Ralph Bracy, his brother, was his next heir and aged thirty-four years and more.[25]

In a "lucid interval" he was married to JOYCE BLACKETT, daughter of John Blackett of Tring, co. Hertford, but in February, 1602, he had relapsed into insanity, and another inquisition, similar to the first, was taken at the Guildhall, the jury finding that his next heir was his son Henry Bressey, "now aged 2 years and 8 months".[26] Before 1605 his first wife died and he married one LUCY, "of mean degree and parentage", who was sued by her step-son, Henry Bressey, in 1632 and 1633, and was living in Coventry, co. Warwick, in 1646, "putting out money at interest". The husband and father had died in 1624.[27]

Children by first wife:

1. Henry,[5] b. in 1599; of Barston and Estcote, co. Warwick, gentleman, in 1632 and 1633.
2. Mary, d. in 1629; administration on her estate granted to her brother Henry 14 April 1630.[28]
3. Joyce, m. John Field of Knowle, co. Warwick, before 1632.

Children by second wife:

4. A daughter, d. in infancy.
5. Lucy, m. Love-in-God Gregory, son of John and Margaret (Griswold) Gregory of Stivichall, co. Warwick.[29]

iv. BRIDGET, bapt. 26 Dec. 1561, at St. Dionis Backchurch; mentioned with her older brothers and sister in the will of her great-uncle, Robert Barnes, in 1562; buried 15 April 1571 at St. Dionis Backchurch.

v. ANNE, bapt. 12 Nov. 1564 at St. Dionis Backchurch. She married THOMAS GARRAWAY, son of Walter and Katherine (Hopton) Garraway of London, in 1583, at Edmundton, her name being given as Agnes. Thomas Garraway was free of the Drapers' Company by patrimony on 8 July 1576, and, although there is a later note against his name "Decayed, in the Country", a Thomas Garraway was warden of the company in 1605 and on the company's court as late as 1613. He was surely living in 1608 when he was mentioned in the will of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Woodward. Six children.

vi. MARGARET, bapt. 29 June 1566 at St. Dionis Backchurch, and buried there 17 Sept. 1567.

vii. MARY, bapt. 30 Aug. 1567 at St. Dionis Backchurch. She married there, 27 Jan. 1588/9, WILLIAM WALMYSLE of the parish of St. Bennet Finke, son of Thomas and Margaret (Leversedge) Walmsley of Shelley, co. Lancaster, and brother of Sir Thomas Walmsley, Kt., Justice of the Common Pleas.

William Walmysley, citizen and draper of London, made his will 29 March 1597 and it was proved 1 Aug. 1597. Marie Walmsley's will, dated 17 Feb. and proved 19 March 1605, makes her five daughters her chief legatees and mentions several of her Bressey, Egerton and Garraway relations.[30]

4. EDMUND[3] BRESSEY (Ralph,[2] Thomas[1]) was presumably born in the family home at Bulkley, co. Chester, about the year 1539, if he obtained his freedom at the age of twenty-one as was customary. He was sent to his older brother Thomas in London and became a freeman of the Haberdashers' Company ("per Thomas Bressie") in 1560. In 1565, at St. Mary Colechurch, London, he married LUCRETIA ANDERSON, daughter of Thomas and Katherine (Hopton) Anderson, and established himself in the parish of St. Dionis Backchurch.

He had a long and apparently profitable business life in London. When his son Edmund was beginning his legal education in 1588 the family had a country residence at Brentford, co. Middlesex, a favorite district with city merchants.

For some years Bressey was partner of William Millward, citizen and haberdasher. Millward died within a year of October 1592, when the partnership indentures had been renewed, and Bressey was bound to pay to his estate one-half of the profits of the business for that year. Mrs. Millward, executrix of her husband's estate, married Thomas Gray, a member of the Cordwainers' Company, and Mr. Bressey paid to them over a period of years the greater part of the sum due. Before making the last payment, however, he withdrew from business and went to live in the country in Kent, and, not being informed of Mrs. Gray's death in London, sent the sum of £35 to Gray on the latter's demand. Thereupon Millward's son, Thomas Millward, gentleman, took out administration on hisfa ther's unsettled estate and Bressey was forced to pay the £35 a second time. He sued Gray to recover the first payment in 1609, the result not being known.[31]

Apparently Kent did not suit the Bresseys as a place of retirement and they finally settled on Nettleden, co. Buckingham, near Mrs. Bressey's family which had established itself at Penley, co. Hertford. There Mrs. Bressey died in 1610 and her husband in 1612. They were buried in Nettleden church, under an elaborate mural monument of marble, upon which are the arms of Bressey and Bressey impaling Anderson. Mr. and Mrs. Bressey are depicted facing each other in the attitude of prayer, quite obviously portraits, while their five children appear, in smaller scale, on a lower surface. The inscription is as follows:

"Here is Entombed the Bodies of Edmund Bressey late of London Esquire the third brother of the Elder House of that name in the Countye Palatine of Chester and Lucretia his Wife Sister to S[r] Henry Anderson late of London K[t].

the ffather of Sr. Richard Anderson of Penlee in the County of Hertford Knight they lyved the greatest part of theyr Tyme in London and departed this Life at Nettleden in the County of Buckingham vz Lucretia Bressy the 4th Daye of June Año Dñi 1610. and Edmund Bressy deceased the 7 Daye of Noveber Año Domini 1612. they had Issue foure Sonnes and one Daughter and of them theyr second Sonn Edmund Bressye now alone lyvinge."

Administration on the estate of Edmund Bressey, gentleman, of Nettleden, was granted to his son Edmund Bressey 5 Feb. 1612/13. The administrator was sued by Susan Bressey, a granddaughter of Mr. Bressey, and on 2 Dec. 1614 she was awarded £120 which was still unadministered.[32]

Children, baptized at St. Dionis Backchurch:

i. THOMAS,[4] bapt. 26 July 1567; buried 25 June 1573.

5. ii. EDMUND, bapt. 16 Dec. 1568.

iii. KATHERINE, bapt. 27 Sept. 1573; d. before 1591.

iv. THOMAS, bapt. 4 April 1574; d. before 1591.

v. ISAAC, bapt. 19 Oct. 1578; m. JUDITH REDMAN at St. Dionis Backchurch 19 Feb. 1598/9; buried in the church of St. James Clerkenwell 25 Sept. 1605.

A year after her husband's death Judith Bressey sued her father-in-law for an accounting, the custody of her child and the return of a trunk filled with clothing. She stated that by her marriage settlement her portion had been £250, part of which had been supplied by her step-father, Francis Fuller, and that Edmund Bressey had agreed to keep the young couple in his own house for six years, after which he was to settle 1,000 marks on them. This sum was reduced because of Isaac's debts, but £400 was expended on lands which were conveyed to trustees for the use of Isaac and Judith, the rents of which had been retained since Isaac's death. Edmund Bressey answered that part of the rents were allocated to pay other debts which Isaac had contracted, and that the trunk had never been demanded. As to the child, he left it to the court's judgment whether or not its mother was a fit person to have custody inasmuch as she had no fixed place of abode except by the courtesy of her step-father.

In 1624 the trustees conveyed the lands, which were at Hoggesden, co. Middlesex, to the child, then a married woman, by order of the Court of Chancery. After her death, in 1635, her cousin Edmund Bressey of Wooten, co. Bedford, brought suit against the trustees.[33]

Child:

1. Susan,[5] m. John Owfield of Barking, co. Essex, gentleman. She and her only child, Francis Owfield, were dead in 1635.

5. EDMUND[4] BRESSEY (Edmund,[3] Ralph,[2] Thomas[1]) was baptized at St. Dionis Backchurch, London, 16 Dec. 1568. He matriculated at Cambridge as a pensioner from Emmanuel College at Christmas 1586, but did not finish his course as on 17 May 1588 he was admitted at Gray's Inn, London, as a student of law. He was stated to be from Braynfford (Brentford), co. Middlesex. He was made a freeman of the Haberdashers' Company by patrimony in 1593.

On 29 Dec. 1595 Edmund Bressey married CONSTANCE SHEPHERD, daughter of Thomas and Amphyllis (Chamberlain alias Spicer) Shepherd of Maulden, co. Bedford. Their first four children were baptized at Maulden, but eventually they lived in the neighboring parish of Wooten, co. Bedford. Constance's maternal grandmother, a Neville of Holt, had an interesting ancestry.

Bressey apparently practiced his profession in London while his family remained in Bedfordshire. In 1609 Thomas Bedell of Southove, co. Huntington, sued Edmund Bressey of Gray's Inn, gentleman, and Robert Faldo, Esq., of Gray's Inn, charging them with withholding from him part of the purchase money of lands in Wooten and Kempston, co. Bedford, which he had sold through them as attorneys to Mr. John Harvey of Thurley, co. Bedford.[34] Faldo was a half-brother of Bressey's wife and the two men were possibly partners.

To him, as "Edmund Bressey, son & heire of Edmund Bressey of Nettledon Com. Bucks, Esq.", Sir William Segar exemplified the family arms, changing the bird in the first quarter from a mallard to a martlet and adding a mullet or for difference, in the 11th year of King James I.[35]

Mr. Bressey was buried at Wooten 4 Nov. 1617, in his forty-ninth year. His widow married Martin Fountaine at Wooten 4 May 1619. She was buried at Wooten 1 July 1631.

The will of Edmund Bressey of Wooten, gentleman, was made 30 Oct. 1616, and proved 26 Jan. 1617 (8). To be buried in Wooten church. To the poor of Wooten, Redbourne, and Nettleden, 11s. each. To his wife Constance, his house at Wooten, land and cottages at Kempston, farm stock, all household stuff and plate "to bestow one half among my children at her discretion as they marry". To his sons Thomas and John, the house at Nettleden and £150 each at the age of twenty-three. To his children Lucretia, Robert, Constance, Ralph, and Anne Bressey, £200 each, the daughters at marriage, the sons at twenty-three. To his son Edmund, £50 yearly until he is twenty-six, and 100 marks yearly for three years afterward. To his daughter Katherine, 20 marks yearly while unmarried. His parsonage at Redbourne, co. Hertford, to his executors for ten years to pay debts and legacies. Residue to his kinsmen Sir Richard Anderson, Knt., and Henry Garroway of London, executors. The executors having renounced, administration was granted to widow Constance Bressey in 1617, and after her death to Thomas Faldo, Esq., with consent of Edmund Bressey, the son, on 1 July 1637.[36]

Children, the first four baptized at Maulden:

i. CATHERINE,[5] bapt. 9 March 1596; m. REV. ROBERT RISLEY, vicar of Wilshamstead, co. Bedford, 21 May 1622, at Kempston, co. Bedford; his will, dated 21 Feb. 1622 (3), was proved 11 Nov. 1623.

Rev. Robert Risley and his brother Rev. Edward Risley, who married Lucretia Bressey, were nephews of James Risley of St. Andrews Holborn, London, gentleman, whose will (1653/4) states that his ancestors were of Risley Hall, co. Lancaster, that he was born in Oundle, co. Northampton, and that he owned the "perpetual donation" of the vicarage of Wilshamstead, which he left to Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge.[37]

The will of Catherine Risley of Wilshamstead, widow, dated 2 June 1631 and proved 7 Feb. 1633/4, makes provision for her funeral, the minister who shall preach the sermon, and the poor. To my father-in-law, Mr. Martin Fountayne and my uncle Mr. Thomas Shepard, my lands at Wooten, lately purchased from Richard Fookes, for the payment of legacies, my brother, Mr. Edward [sic] Bracy to have first offer for its purchase at £240. To Mr. Rowland Heylin, alderman, of London and John White of the Middle Temple, Esq., £20 for the furtherance of the preaching of the Gospel, etc. To my mother, Mrs. Constance Fountayne, 30s. for a ring. To my brother, Edmund Bracy, and his wife, 20s. each for rings. To my brother Thomas Bracy, £40 besides £10 which I owe him, and all my bedding. To my brother John Bracy, £40. To my brother Risley, 20s. for a ring. To my sister Risley, £30, to pay for her house, and my two silver salts and a maudlyn pot of silver which she hath of mine in her hands. To my brothers Robert and Ralph Bracy, £25 each, payable to my brother Thomas Bracy, and to be paid them, together with the increase, at the age of twenty-one. To my sister Constance Bracy, £30. To my sister Amphillis Bracy, £25. To my said sisters, all my linen, a silver tankard and a gilt bowl, to be divided between them by my loving mother. To my sister Frances Fountayne, £5 to buy a piece of plate in remembrance of me. To my cousin Elizabeth, daughter of my brother Edmund Bracy, £20. To my cousin Constance, daughter of my brother Risley, £20, a silver bowl and a gilt spoon, which her mother, my sister, hath of mine. To my cousin Frances, daughter of my brother Risley, £5. To Mr. William Norman of Clapwell, 20s. To his wife, 40s. To their son James Norman, my godson, £5. To the children of my late husband—Anne Risley, £5, James Risley, 40s., John Risley, 20s. To my cousin Mr. Shirley, minister of Hawnes, 20s. To my cousin his wife, my cousin Crannedge and my cousin Wilson, 10s. each for rings. If any of my brothers Thomas, John, Robert, or Ralph dies before receiving his legacy, it is to go to the survivors; likewise with my sisters, Constance and Amphillis. Executors and residuary legatees: father-in-law Mr. Martin Fountayne and uncle Mr. Thomas Shepard. Overseer: brother Mr. Edmond Bracy. Witnesses: John Abbot, Michael Sansom, Kinbrow Barrett, Anne Rensmith. The executors named having renounced, administration was granted to "Thomas Bresley, son of Edward Risley", the principal legatee.[38]

ii. Edmund, bapt. 8 July 1599. He married Elizabeth Low, daughter of Reynes Low of Clifton, co. Buckingham, 31 Aug. 1620. His wife's sister married Roger Nicholls of the Inner Temple, London, and in 1630, having been made executors of the will of Richard Wake of Hartwell, co. Northampton, a cousin of their wives, the brothers-in-law sued William Wake, Sir John Wake, Lady (Elizabeth) Wake, and others to recover plate, jewels, etc. which they alleged had been taken from Richard Wake's coffers after his death and before the finding of his will.[39]

He entered his pedigree, extending back only to his grandfather, in the visitation of Bedfordshire of 1634.

Elizabeth Bressey was buried at Wooten 28 April 1636, and Edmund Bressey was buried there 12 April 1638. An inquest post mortem was held on his estate 5 Sept. 1638 at Ampthill, by which it was found that he died 10 April 1638, and that Edmund Bressey, aged thirteen, was his son and heir. Letters of administration, granted to his son Henry in 1651, were revoked, and administration granted to his brother John on 1 Sept. 1653 for the benefit of his children Constance, Mary, John, Francis, Elizabeth, and Martha.

Children, bapt. at Wooten:

1. Constance,[6] bapt. 6 June 1621; m. at All Hallows, Bread Street, London, 4 July 1643, Francis Saunders.
2. Mary, bapt. 5 May 1623; m.———Waller before 1652.

3. Edmund, bapt. 10 Feb. 1624. A ward of the Crown on the death of his father, guardianship was granted by the Court of Wards to his great-uncle, Thomas Shepard. He died, aged seventeen, in 1641.
4. Elizabeth, bapt. 24 May 1626; living unm. in 1665, when her brother Henry made his will.
5. Henry. He was admitted to Gray's Inn, London, 1 June 1647 as son and heir of Edmund Bressey, late of Wooten, Esq. At Midsummer, 1649, at St. Peter Paul's Wharf, London, while a minor, he married Elizabeth, widow of Thomas Snelling, Esq., "of good birth and breeding, being by the father's side of the Leas, and by the mother's of the Hales." Ten days after his marriage, he conveyed his Wooten estate to his uncle John Bressey in trust for sixty years, with a reversion to himself and his heirs male and remainders to his brothers John and Francis and his uncle John, and went to Holland, having been influenced against his wife, as she alleged, by his uncle. She sued John Bressey on 30 Nov. 1649 to obtain a sufficient allowance and to learn her husband's whereabouts. Henry Bressey returned, and in 1651 sued his uncle for an accounting. In 1652 he sued his great-aunt Margaret Shepard, widow of Thomas Shepard of Maulden, for an accounting of the estate of his elder brother Edmund. She stated in her answer that the book of account, bonds and £400 had been delivered to Mary Waller and Constance Sanders, sisters of the complainant.[40]

   Henry Bressey, gentleman, was buried at Wooten 10 Dec. 1666. His will, dated 30 Dec. 1665 and proved 13 Sept. 1667, left small legacies to the poor of Wooten and Kempston and to his sister Elizabeth Bressey (£5 for a gown), and named his wife Elizabeth residuary legatee and executrix.[41]
6. John, living in 1653.
7. Francis, living in 1653; possibly that Francis Bressey of Barbadoes, who was friend and executor of Dr. Thomas Bressey in 1668.
8. Martha, living in 1653.

6. iii. Thomas, bapt. 8 Nov. 1601.

iv. John, bapt. 18 Dec. 1603. When he was seventeen, in 1621/2, he was admitted as a pensioner at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. The university record states that he was a son of Edmund Bressey, gentleman, of Maldon, co. Bedford, and that he had gone to a private school at Walthamstead, co. Buckingham. He obtained his B.A. from Cambridge in 1625/6 and an M.A. in 1629.[42]

The year in which John Bressey joined his brother Thomas in New England is not known. In all probability, however, he was the "Mr. Bracie" who took the oath of fidelity in New Haven 1 July 1644 and he was certainly the "Mr. Bracey" who had a place directly behind the governor when the townspeople were seated in the meeting-house in 1646, his wife, her name unknown, being seated in "the first cross seat at the end."[43] Presumably a Puritan in feeling, he may have contemplated being ordained as a clergyman, for Rev. Cotton Mather in his Magnalia gives in his list of immigrant clergymen "Mr. Brucy of Brainford" Branford, Connecticut, and later remarks "I say nothing because I know nothing of Mr. Brecy; but this, he also returned to England."[44] In the New Haven court records, under the dates 3 August and 5 October 1647, are recorded the transfers of Mr. John Bracey's property—about two hundred and twenty-six acres to Mr. Wackman, his house, home-lot and thirty acres to Mr. Kitchell, five acres to Mr. John Evance and nine acres to Goodman Boykin.[45]

In 1649 Bressey was back in England in time to take a hand in the matrimonial affairs of young Henry Bressey, his nephew and the head of the house. In 1650 he witnessed and possibly wrote the will of his cousin, Mrs. Shirley, and in 1651 he was "of London" when he took administration of the estate of his brother Edmund and was sued for an accounting by his nephew Henry. In 1655, "of London, gentleman", he was associated with Thomas Faldo of St. James Clerkenwell, and this is the last record of him thus far found.[46] It would seem that after his return to England he adopted a legal career. A search for his will or the administration of his estate has produced nothing.

v. Lucretia, m. Rev. Edward Risley, who succeeded his brother as vicar of Wilshamstead 25 May 1624; buried 25 Aug. 1637 at Wilshamstead; he was buried 19 Dec. 1654 at Wilshamstead. Five children bapt. 1625-1634.
vi. Robert, a minor in 1631, when his sister Katherine Risley made her will.
vii. Constance, a minor in 1631.
viii. Ralph, a minor in 1631.
ix. Amphyllis (Anne, in her father's will), a minor in 1631.
x. Richard, buried at Wooten 27 March 1622.[47]

6. Thomas[5] Bressey (Edmund,[4] Edmund,[3] Ralph,[2] Thomas[1]) was baptized at Maulden 8 Nov. 1601. After his father's death he was apprenticed, at the age of eighteen, to John Abbott of London, a member of the Fishmongers' Company, for a term of eight years beginning 6 Aug. 1619, and in 1626 he was admitted to the freedom of the Company by service, the record stating that he was a "son of Edmund Bressey, late of Maulden in the County of Bedford, dec'd." His master, Mr. Abbott, although a member of the Fishmongers' Company, was probably a linen merchant. At all events, on 30 Jan. 1626/7 Thomas Bracey, linen-draper, was licensed to marry Hannah Hart, in London. The license does not give the parentage of his wife and nothing is known of her except the fact of her death within a few years of her marriage. On 4 Aug. 1631, at St. Lawrence Jewry, Thomas Bracy married, as his second wife, Phebe Bisby, daughter of William Bisby, a merchant of the Salters' Company. In 1633/4 he was appointed administrator, cum testamento annexo, of the estate of his sister Catherine (Bressey) Risley of Wilshamstead.

In 1634 the Bresseys emigrated to New England and went to the new settlement of Ipswich. On 20 April 1635 the town records recite a grant to William White bounded by "the highway that leads to Greate Necke on the West side of Mr. Bressy's land". It is later recorded that a lot conveyed by Thomas Firman to Mr. John Norton was bounded by Mr. John Baker, Mr. Thomas Brecey and the High Street,[48] and in other land grants of the years 1637 and 1638 Mr. Bressey's land appears as a boundary. No deed is recorded in which he appears as grantee or grantor, but in a grant to Mr. John Norton on 12: 2: 1638 the land in question was bounded on the north-east "by a planting lot formerly granted to Mr. John Fawne and by him sould unto Mr. Thomas Brecey and now in his possession." His name disappears from the Ipswich records after 1638.

On 14: 7: 1640 a Mr. Brace was admitted freeman of Rhode Island and the name appears again on a roll of freeman dated 16 March 1641.[49] It is not improbable that these records mark Thomas Bressey's removal from Ipswich.

In 1641 a subsidy of the Livery Companies of London was taken, and among the Fishmongers appears "Thomas Brasey, linen-draper, in New England".

After his stay in Rhode Island, if in fact he was the Mr. Brace of the record, Thomas Bressey settled in New Haven, where he was joined by his brother John, and died there.

Phebe (Bisby) Bressey married, as her second husband, Lieut. Samuel Martin of New Haven. They moved to Wethersfield where Martin died 15 Sept. 1683. Phebe's father, William Bisby, was not pleased with either of her husbands. In a letter to his sister-in-law, Mary Wyllys, wife of George Wyllys, Governor of the Connecticut Colony, dated 11 May 1646, he says of his daughter "shee was rash in her first marryage, & soe in her second". In another letter to Mrs. Wyllys, dated 21 Aug. 1646, he states that Phebe had had £20 each year from him since she went to New England, "which is, I take it, twelve years."[50]

Children:

i. Constance,[6] named for her grandmother Constance (Shepherd) Bressey; m. John Morey of Wethersfield, Conn.
ii. Phebe, m. (1), Joseph Dickinson of New Haven, Northfield and Wethersfield, Conn., who was killed in King Philip's war 4 Sept. 1675; m. (2), John Rose, Sr., of New Haven.
iii. Thomas, m. after 14 Nov. 1672, Mary Osborn; lived in Hatfield, Mass.; 2 sons, 4 daughters.[56]
iv. Susannah, bapt. 5 Sept. 1647 in New Haven.
v. John, b. about 1639; bapt. Sept. 5, 1647, in New Haven; m. about 1677 Anne Pearce of York, Maine, who d. before 1696; he d. in Wethersfield, Conn., 19 Jan. 1708/9, "aged abt 70 as thought"; 1 son.
vi. Hannah (possibly Susannah above), b. about 1640; m. in Boston, 25 Aug. 1659, Thomas Paine; d. 2 Sept. 1682.

THE TRUE DATE OF THE BIRTH AND DEATH OF ELDER BREWSTER.

[By Rev. Henry M. Dexter, of Boston.]

Read at the Monthly Meeting of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, in October, 1863.

It is somewhat remarkable that a great degree of uncertainty should have so long rested upon the two dates of most importance in the life of so prominent a man as Elder William Brewster, of the Plymouth Colony. If the exact time of his birth had been solely in the keeping of tradition, one would think the era of his disappearance from the Plymouth Company must have left an exact and ineffaceable trace. In point of fact, however, two different years have been heretofore assigned as those of his death, and four as those of his birth.

Gov. Bradford, in his History, [p. 408] records his death as occurring "about" the 18th of April, 1643. Morton, in his Memorial, expressly copies Bradford, and gives the same date [1*st ed'n*, p. 117]. These are followed by Hubbard, [p. 663], and Hutchinson, [vol. ii: p. 411]; and lately by the editor of Bradford's Manuscript, in a note to that work [p. 408]; by Savage, [Gen. Dict'y of New Eng., vol. i, p. 246] who, however, changes the day to the 16th of April; by Palfrey [Hist. New Eng., i: 598]; and by Freeman, [Hist'y Cape Cod, i: 169].

On the other hand, Morton, in copying from Bradford's Manuscript History upon the Plymouth Church Records, [Bk. i. fol. 38] dates Brewster's death as "about the 16th of April, 1644." In this he has been followed by Belknap, [v. ii: p. 163]; Eliot, [p. 87]; Cotton, in his History of the Plymouth Church; [Mass. Hist., coll. iv: 113]; Baylies, [v. ii: p. 4]; Holmes [Annals, i: 276]; Winsor, [Hist. Duxbury, p. 234]; Mitchell, [Hist. Bridgewater, p. 361]; Thacher, [Hist. Plym., p. 268]; Steele, [Chief of the Pilgrims, p. 383]; and Felt, [Eccl. Hist. N. Eng., v. i, p. 549.]

There are three circumstances which incline me to the conviction that Bradford was in error, in his History, and that the true date of the elder's death was in April, 1644:

1. Bradford himself says, in the appendix to his history, where he gives some account of the "increasings and decreasings" of the first comers [p. 451], that Mr. Brewster had "lived some 23 or 24 year here in ye countrie." But the addition of the lesser of these numbers to the date of December, 1620, would carry us eight months beyond April, 1643; so that here is so much evidence that 1644 was the true date of Brewster's death.

2. Bradford, in a letter to John Winthrop, published in the lately issued volume of Winthrop Papers of the Mass. Hist. Collections, [vol. xxxvi, p. 161] says—writing apparently in the last of winter or beginning of spring—"Sundry have been sicke amongst vs this winter, and some still are. God hath taken away Mr. Atwood and Mr. Jeney by death." The letter has no date. Savage says Jenney died early in 1644, [v. ii: p. 546]; and Morton says Atwood died in 1644. I infer then that Jenney and Atwood died in the winter ending with the spring of 1644, and that Bradford wrote this letter after their

BENJAMIN CANADAY

Among the many religious orders now existing in this country, there is one which has never as yet received from the pen of the historian the honor and credit to which it is justly entitled. We refer to the denomination of Friends, or as they are often called Quakers. Eminently they have ever been a peace-loving and a peace-making people in thier tinets and practices, have come near preserbing the spirit of the Christian religion than any other religious order of modern times. We even now look back with astonishment upon the fact that such a people should have been subject to the sword of persecution on account of their purely amicable principles and simply forms of worship. But it is nevertheless a historic truth which finds its only elucidation in the bigotry of an age when priestcraft and kingcraft were the predominant and all-controlling elements of society. In both Europe and England, and even in Amercian, the history of these people contains many a tale of bloody suffering and political and social proscription and confiscation.

Their morals have always been irreproachable, their motives patriotic, and from their ranks have sprung men, whos names are both historic and nation. In England the name of George Fox as yet remembered as a monument to the cause of civil and religious liberty, and in this country no name shines from the galaxy of Columbia's bright political concave, with a richer lustre than the name of William Penn, the founder of one of our greatest states, which in its compound title yet bears his name; and among are greatest cities, that of Philadelphia-the city of brothery love-yet testifies to the noble sentiments at first promulgated in the old key stone state.

Immediately after the discovery of America, and when the oppressed and the adventurous began to settle are then far-off shores, the Friends looked toward the seting sun as to a land with a might enjoy unmolested that freedom of thought and conscience which they have always been willing to accord to others. They mingled in with the first emigrants to this country, and their strong and willing arms assisted to clear out the new wildnerness, while by their quiet demenor they won the admiration and sympathy of many of their ancestral persecutors; and the sentiments they quietly and almost imperceptibly inculcated gave birth to the equally statesmanlike and Christian sentiment that a nation might be so constituted that each church or religious order might enjoy full and equal religious freedom.

No doubt largely to this source of influence the United States were afterwards indebted for the lofty conception which has made them the asylum of the persectued and the model government of the world.

Not only were the Friends distinguished in their history in this country as honest advocates of civil and religions liberty and the doctrines of peace, but they were the first to recognise in the wild red man of the forest a human being, to whom honesty and compensation were due as to other human creatures. They were the first to obtain lands from the Indians by purchase, and to their credit it stands on the pages of history, that they have faithfully kept every treaty made with thier red brethren.

They were, and are yet the truest friends that the Indians have, and our government has often acted on the mutal confidence sprining up from the friendship, in appointing from among the Quakers in Indian Agents.

The same principles that made then the champions of freedom and the friends of the savage, led the Quakers to oppose early and at once the institution of human slavery, which in this country found its first for in this religious order. Since the principle contended for have now become fully vindicated and made honorable in public, opinion by the light of the nineteenth century, the descendants of those once despised people ought to feel a pride in pointing back to a history of ancestry commensuate with the history and settlement of America. Such a feeling would be perfectly justifiable in Mr. Canaday, whose Quaker forefathers were among the first settlers of the United States of America. It is presumable that it was his great-grandfather who first crossed the Atlantic and made the "New World" his home, settling in the colony of Maryland. In this colony at least Mr. Canaday's grandfather, John, spent his early days. He afterwards moved to North Carolina, then to Jefferson County, Tennessee, where he settled his family around him and established a congregation of Friends. He afterward moved to Wayne County, IND, where he died over 90 years of age. He raised six children-Phebe, the wife of Mordecai Mendehall, Henry, Mr. Canaday's father, Charles, Walter, Boeter and Robert. Henry was born in North Carolina. He came to Tennessee about the same time as his father, and settled near the same place, and in the same County. He married, while residing in North Carolina, Miss Matilda Barnard, a lady of English lineage, and born on the Island of Nantucket. After the birth of one child, Mr. Canaday came to Tennessee, where the remainder of the family were born, and named as follows: John, Frederick, William and Mary. The daughter married, at first a Mr. Durham, and after his demise she married Abram Smith, an early settler of Vermilion County, who afterwards laid off the town of Ridge Farm.

In 1824 father, mother and children came from Tennessee, and located in Elwood Twp., of this county. Here after settling their family the parents died, both about the same time, when he was in the 72 year of his life. Their remains rest in the Vermilion Grove Cemetery, where he had established a congregation of Friends, the first in the County, and where also he had assisted to erect a house of worship. As already remarked, Mr. Canaday was born in North Carolina (Sep. 13, 1797), and was about two years old when hisparents moved to Tennessse. He was married in the State to Miss Ann Haworth, who is yet living, a most excellent lady, and one of the venerable pioneer woman of Vermilion. Immediately after their marriage, they came to Vermilion County, and as already noted, settled in what is now known as Elwood Twp. In 1830 they came to the vicinity where Georgetown was afterwards located, in which village they yet reside, far advanced in life, and are among the most honorable and respected citizens of the County. He has been an active factor in the business of his County, and assisted in laying the foundations of its present prosperity and greatness. He has been successful in a high degree as a business man, and after giving each of his children a handsome start in life, has still a fortune left to sustain himself in the evening of life. The eldest daughter, Sarah is the wife of John P. Johnson, a banker of Highland, Doniphan County, Kansas, a town he laid off, and where he resides, and is well known as a large real estate operator of that State. Sophia is the wife of James K. Richie of Georgetown, where he is well known as a leading merchant and one of the wealthy gentlemen of his section of the County. The youngest, Araminta, married Colonel Jospeh McCowan, who commanded the 63d ILL Infantry Volunteers during the Civil War of the South. He served under Genral Grant, and was afterwards with Genral Sherman in his celebrated march from Chattanooga to the Atlantic. He was noted as a brave officer and a most polished and popular gentleman. After serving his country throughtout the whole war, he returned home to his family, though with shattered health, to die in a short time, from the effects of exposure ath the siege of Vicksburg and in the "march to the sea." He was alo, though quite young, a soldier in our war with Mexico. Besides these, six children are dead-two in infancy. Matilda died about age of 18. Mary was the wife of Zachary Morris, of Georgetown, and Marina was the first wife of Colonel McCowan. John, an only son, died at the age of 28. He married Miss Lucinda Parks, by whom he had two daughters, who were raided by their grandparents, Mr. Canaday and wife. Laura is the wife of Jesse Holloway of Danville, and Lilly is the wife of Joseph Thompson of the dry goods firm of Richie & Thompson of Georgetown. These children were all brought up in the highest respectability, and it is but just to add that Mr. Canaday was not during his active life only to accumulate property, but threw around his family all the influences within his reach, to bring up his offspring to the highest standard of morality, intelligence, and refinement. He established with a small cash capital, in company with John and James Haworth (the latter of whom laid offf the town) the first store in Georgetown, in 1830. In a few years the firm was dissolved by mutal consent, when Mr. Canaday associated with himself Mr. Abran Frazier. After doing business with Mr. Frazier only a few months, they sold to a gentleman from Tennessee; immediately after which Mr. Canaday commenced the mercantile business by himself, which was continued for a number of years, till he turned over the entire interests to Richie & Thompson, his successors in business at the old stand. Mr. Canaday has always led a temperate, moral life; has been remrkable as a good calculator and safe trader. He has always been very liberal with his means in helping the poor, encouraging schools and in buliding houses of worship. Among the last acts of his munificence, is the large and liberal donation of $1,500 toward the erection of a church for the Friends in Georgetown. His work is now about done, and he and his wife are waiting with their feet almost dripped in the mystic Jordan, for the summer of their Master to cross over to the "promised land."

This sketch would hardly be complete without a more extended notice of Mr. Richie, already mentioned in the preceding history. He was born Oct. 24, 1826 in East Tennessee. His father, Nathaniel, died when Mr. Richie was an infant, and his mother, Rachel, came with her young family to Vermilion County with her father, William Brazleton, in 1832. She died Jul 4, 1834. Two sons were raised, William and James, the former of whom died of cholera in Wisconsin in 1853. James returned to Tennessee in 1843, attended three terms in Holsten College, and came back to ILL in 1850. In May 1854 he was married to Miss Canaday. Three children bless the marriage tie-Morris E., Benjamin C., and Mary A. Immediately after his marriage Mr. Richie settled down to business in Georgetwon, the place of his present residence. Mr. Richie has but very little knowledge of his ancestry, owning to the early death of his parents, and the absence of any written records. He only remembers that his grandfather was of Scotch-Irish lineage, and that he was an old settler of Tennessee, and died in Jefferson County of that State.

Adam H. and John are twins and the latter is now a resident of Jefferson county, Illinois. William makes his home in Montgomery county, Kansas. Levi is engaged in the coal business in Danville. Harriet is the wife of D. C. Deamude, who is one of the commissioners of the National Park, living near Chattanooga, Tennessee.

Adam H. Mozier was but two years of age when his parents removed to Warren county, Indiana, there remaining from 1836 until 1840, when they came to Vermilion county, our subject being then in his fifteenth year. He acquired his education in the public schools and in Danville Seminary, which he attended through two terms. After his father's death he remained upon the home farm with his mother and cared for the property. After his mother's death in 1887, he wedded Miss Martha Cooper, of Miami county, Indiana, their parents having been neighbors in the Hoosier state. The Cooper family was established in Vermilion county, Illinois, in 1865. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are now deceased and the family is quite widely scattered. Six of the children still survive: Mrs. Eliza Juvinall, of Oregon; Mrs. Millie Clarkson, of Kansas; Mary, who is living in Pilot township; Henry, in Muncie, Indiana; John D., who resides near Higginsville, Illinois; and Amos.

Throughout his entire life Mr. Mozier has carried on agricultural pursuits and he now owns two hundred and seventy acres of land, most of which is cultivable. Through a long period he planted his fields to the crops best adapted to the soil and climate but during the past ten years he has rented his farm land, retaining only his pasture lands for his stock. He feeds from sixty to seventy head of hogs annually and formerly was extensively engaged in feeding cattle, in which branch of his business he has made most of his money. He raises his stock and sells to buyers, seldom making shipments himself to the city markets.

In his political views Mr. Mozier is a stalwart Republican and cast his first presidential vote for John C. Fremont. For two years he served as tax collector and has been school trustee for thirty years. In 1873 he was elected to that position and has been chosen at each consecutive election since. For several terms he was road supervisor and has ever been a faithful officer, discharging his duties with diligence and promptness. In 1884 he erected his present home on section 12, Pilot township, and in 1895 built his fine barn there. For more than half a century he has been a resident of the county, carrying on farming and stock-raising, and is widely known as a straightforward business man, whose word is as good as his bond.

LUTHER A. CLINGAN.

Luther A. Clingan belongs to that class of representative American citizens, who while promoting their individual success also advance the general prosperity. He is to-day numbered among the leading, influential and prosperous residents of Georgetown township. His business interests have been extensive and of important character, and he is now identified with agricultural and financial interests. He has also been called upon to serve in positions of public trust and at the present writing, in 1902, is filling the position of county commissioner of highways.

Mr. Clingan is a native son of this county, his birth having occurred in Danville township. His parents were James S. and Elvira (Oleahy) Clingan, the former a native of Ohio and the latter of Vermilion county, Illinois. William Clingan, the paternal grandfather of our subject, removed from the Buckeye state to this county in 1844, becoming one of the early settlers of Danville township, where he carried on agricultural pursuits until his death. James Clingan also became a farmer of this county and from the time of the removal of his parents to the west made his home in Catlin township until 1867. He then became a resident of Westville, where he lived retired until his death in August, 1899. His widow still survives and is yet living in Westville.

Luther A. Clingan was the youngest of their four children. In the district schools he pursued his education, mastering the branches of learning taught in such institutions. He assisted in the work of the home farm until his marriage, when he began farming on his own account. He wedded Miss Martha Graves, a daughter of L. H. Graves, who was also a pioneer of Vermilion county and became one of the first residents of Georgetown township, where some of his family are yet living. Mrs. Clingan was called to her final rest January 29, 1897. Of the seven children born of that union three are yet living: Blanche, Hershal and Roy. Those deceased are: Herman, Frankie, Fred and Ray. In 1899, Mr. Clingan was again married, wedding Miss Leeta Graves, a sister of his first wife.

In 1886 Mr. Clingan settled upon a small farm which was a part of the old Graves' estate and located near his presnt home. Soon afterward, however, he sold most of that land to the Westville Coal Company, which opened mines upon that tract. He then purchased his present farm on section 18, Georgetown township, also a part of the old Graves' estate. Here he made many excellent improvements in keeping with the progressive spirit of the twentieth century. His is the finest farm residence in Georgetown and is pleasantly located near the state road between Westville and Georgetown. Mr. Clingan, himself, has done little farming as he rents his land. He is speculating to a considerable extent in land and his investments have been so judiciuosly made that they have returned to him splendid capital. As coal was found upon his farm he sold his land at a good profit and he has also made other purchases and sales wherefrom he has realized a good profit. He now owns three hundred acres in Edgar county, Illinois, and five hundred and sixty acres in Porter county, Indiana, and three hundred acres in Vermilion county, Illinois, all of which is rented. Mr. Clingan is the founder of the town of Unionville, Illinois, and his sale of town lots there amounted to more than seven thousand dollars. For the past three years he has been a director of the First National Bank, of Georgetown, and throughout this county he is regarded as a wide-awake enterprising business man, belonging to that class of representative citizens who have been the founders and upbuilders of Illinois and the great west. He is well known in the city of Danville and throughout this portion of the state and in business circles he sustains an unassailable reputation.

In 1899 Mr. Clingan was elected to the office of commissioner of highways in which capacity he is still serving. He has always been a stanch Democrat in his political views and has taken an active interest in politics, keeping well informed on the questions and issues of the day, which enables him to support his position by intelligent argument.

For three years he served as a school director in his district. He is a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge at Westville and his wife belongs to the Christian church there. It is believed by some that fortunate circumstances are an important element in the success of the men who advance beyond the common plane of life in the acquirement of wealth, but in analyzing the history of a successful man it will always be found that there are certain elements in his career, and that among these is the ability to recognize and improve opportunities, combined with skillfully direct industry,—such is the case in the history of Mr. Clingan, who to-day is numbered among the most prosperous residents of Vermilion county. His success has been worthily won through honorable effort, keen discernment and enterprise, and the respect and confidence of his many friends is justly merited.

EDWARD C. KESPLER.

Edward C. Kespler, now deceased, was a well known farmer of Vermilion county and became a resident of this portion of the state in the year 1851. A native of Germany, he was born October 8, 1837, and his parents, Conrad and Elizabeth Kespler, were also born in the same country, there remaining until 1851 when they determined to seek a home in America and crossed the briny deep to the new world reaching the eastern shores of this country where they did not tarry long, but made their way to Vermilion county, Illinois. The father purchased a farm near State Line. There he carried on agricultural pursuits until his death, meeting with signal success in his work.

Edward C. Kespler was about fourteen years of age when he left the fatherland and came to the new world. He attended the common schools near State Line and assisted his father upon the home farm until after the country became involved in Civil war over the attempt of the southern states to secede. He enlisted on the 16th of November, 1864, and was assigned to Company C, of the Fourth Indiana Volunteer Infantry. This command was in a number of engagements of importance, including the battle of Franklin, where Mr. Kespler was taken prisoner. He was then sent to Andersonville prision where he underwent all the hardships and rigors of southern prison life until the close of the war. He then received an honorable discharge on the 24th of June, 1865. Returning to his father's farm he was there employed until his marriage.

That important event in the life of Mr. Kespler occurred on the 23d of December, 1866, the lady of his choice being Miss Anna P. Neigenfind, a native of Prussia, Germany, born on the 23d of September, 1847, and a daughter of Gotleib Christ and Johanna Elizabeth Neigenfind. They too were natives of Germany and in 1861 the father came to America, settling first in Canada where he worked as a laborer for a year. He then went to Ripon, Wisconsin, where he was employed in a brickyard for a year. During that time he had saved some money which he sent to Germany for his family in order to pay their passage to the new world. Here he was joined by his wife and children in 1863. For a year thereafter they lived in Ripon and then removed to Vermilion county, Illinois, settling on Main street in Danville. In this city the father was employed as a laborer and afterward he engaged in gardening on his own account until old age

Samuel W. Black served on the Board 3 years 1886-1889

In 1875 Samuel W. Black owned 120 acres, 80 of which was the south 1/2 of the northeast 1/4 of Section 13, and 40 acres directly south therefrom. The house stood where the present house stands on the north side of road 1050N just west of the township correction curve in that road. The 80 acres has to this day been held in the Black family.

This 120 acres has been owned by:-1907 Samuel Black 40 acres which the house is on and the 40 acres south across the road. J. S. Clingan owned the west 40 north of the road; 1915 the west 40 acres was divided between J. W. Clingan, J. Swick Deering Coal Company, Margaret Black owned the 1907 Sam Black tracts; and 1953 L. M. Black owned the 80 acres home place plus 16 acres north thereof to the railroad; Woodrow Harrier owned the west 40 acres.

Samuel W. Black (m) Margaret J. Graves 25 Jan 1855 and I believe moved to the above location soon thereafter. The June 18, 1860 census of Catlin Township lists Samuel W. Black, age 31 (b) Kentucky and Margaret J. Black, age 24 (b) Ill. at the above location. Beckwith (P. 507) lists S. W. Black and wife and R. J. Black among the organizers of the Westville Cumberland Presbyterian Church, organized 17 June 1871. They worshiped at Brooks Point school house until Feb. 1877 when their church edifice was dedicated 19 Feb 1877.

The 1850 census taken 28 Oct 1850 (Carroll Twp.) shows: John Black, 50, (b) Ky., farmer; wife Anna, 45 (b) Ky; children: - Samuel W. 21 (b) Ky., Robert J. 20 (b) Ky., Margaret E. 17 (b) Ill., Martha L. and Sarah L. 13 (b) Ill., Hester A. 11 (b) Ill., Frank G. 9 (b) Ill., Milton H. 7 (b) Ill., Susan M. 6, (b) Ill.

Samuel W. Black was born 30 Dec 1828 (d) 6 Nov 1924; Margaret J. Graves (b) 8 Aug 1835 (d) 2 Nov 1912, both buried Sandusky Cemetery. Also buried there, Robert J. Black (b) 1830 (d) 1884 and his wife Karen (b) 1838 (d) 1884.

Dale Black (d) 27 Jan 1967 buried Mexico, Missouri. Ott Black (d) 20 Feb 1948, his wife Cora E.(Sisson)Black (d) 15 Dec 1962.

Jones history of Vermilion County writes of L. M. Black which I have extracted as follows: - L. M. Black (b) 11 July 1870 s/o S. W. and Margaret J. (Graves) Black. S. W. came here from Kentucky when 3 years old, and his father bought their farm in 1852. His parents were members of Presbyterian Church and father was a Mason. They has eight children: the four living in 1910 were James G. of Casey, Ill., Ernest G. of Georgetown, Mary E. (Mrs. Joseph Smith) and Leotto M. L. M. attended the common schools and at age 21 took over farming from his father. He (m) Cora Sisson (b) Paris, Ill. 10 Feb 1881; d/o John A. and Laura J. (Conley) Sisson, natives of Ky. moving to Illinois in 1855. They had nine children, of which 8 were living in 1910. L.M. and Cora had 2 children in 1910. Dale S. (b) 21 Jan 1907, Dorothy M. (b) 14 April 1909. L.M. was a Mason, Knight of Pythias and Modern Woodman and they were members of the Christian church.

J. S. Clingan

Mr. Clingan owned 120 acres being the W 3/4 of the N 1/2 of Section 13. The house was less than 1/4 mile east of Parker school house and on the south side of road 1100N.

This 120 acres was owned by: - 1907 J. S. Clingan, 1915 D. R. Clingan and J. S. Clingan estate; and 1953 D. R. Clingan

John W. Clingan (b) 18 Nov 1858 (d) 30 Nov 1917; Mary Nesbitt (H/W) (d) 8 Dec 1932.

Buried in Sandusky Cemetery are: Luther A. Clingan 1860- 14 Jan 1937 and his wife Martha (b) 15 Sept 1862 (d) 22 Jan 1897; Herman T. 15 Sept 1889-29 Apr 1896; Freddie B. 26 Aug 1896-8 May 1897; Roy 1891-1938; his wife Edna 1890-1973; and Herschel 1886-2 March 1948 and H/W Elsie (d) 24 Oct 1933.

James Sylvester Clingan was (b) Miami County, Ohio, 15 Dec 1830, son of William and Nancy (Ramsey) Clingan. They came to Illinois in 1845 settling east of Danville about six miles, where William died in 1847, then Mary died 19 Sept 1851; leaving eight children, William, James S., John, Robert, Joshua, Mason, Sarah and George.

James S. married at age 24, 1 March 1835, Elvira Olehy, dau. of John and Mary Olehy. James S. and Elvira had four children:- (1) John W., a farmer in Georgetown Township married Mary Nesbitt (dau) of William R. Nesbitt covered elsewhere herein and they had two children, Dennis A. who became a Danville lawyer and died young and Edna A., who married Ben A. Learnard and they lived just west of Fairview Church; (2) Dennis R. (m) Louisa Graves and lived on this farm; (3) Mary E. (d) at age 2 years; Luther A. of Georgetown Township (m) Martha Graves and had two children, Blanche and Herschell. J. S. Clingan and wife moved to Westville in 1886. The Olehy's are natives of Va. and Ky., respectively. Married in Ohio when their first two children were born and came to Illinois in 1833. Only four of fourteen children lived to be adults. Louisa (Mrs. Dennis Rouse) next eldest, Alvira (Mrs. J. S. Clingan), Mary (Mrs. Herman Clyman), and Rebecca Jane (Mrs. George Watson).

H. A. Clingan (b) Westville 10 Nov 1886 s/o L. A. and Martha (Graves) Clingan, educated in local district school. Was an auctioneer. He (m) Elsie Hill 22 Oct 1908 of Fairmount.

The Walter Boose family lived in the house in the twenties, Wilson's also lived there and I think the last persons to live there were Herman Thomas and his wife, Frances Harrier right after they were married. I don't believe any of them farmed the land. Around 1915 and later John Shute lived there and was a tenant farmer for the Clingans. The house and buildings have all been removed.

James Cobble served 2 years as a Director 1947-1948

He lived on the John Parker place up in the field southwest of Parker school house and tenant farmed much of the land of Charles Nesbitt, then owner of the place. Others who lived there were William Logan, Roy Bedinger, Fred Hertline, and Mr. Poole. The house, buildings and trees no longer exist.

Buried in Oak Ridge Cemetery Catlin are: Jerry E. Cobble 9 April 1943-8 May 1964; Mildred L. Cobble w/o J. R. 17 Oct 1911, and James R. Cobble 22 Aug 1913-10 Jan 1977.

To be buried in Pleasant Mound Cemetery are: Floyd (Bill) Cobble 16 Nov 1898-19 and Claire Bonnie Cobble 1900-19 . Jerry Cobble (b) 22 Aug 1913 (d) 11 Jan 1977.

Samuel L. Cook

In 1875 Mr. Cook owned 160 acres in Section 11 of which the south half was in Parker School District. The house was located on the north half 80 acres, at the south side of the joining of present roads 1200N and 1380E. A modern house has replaced the original at this spot. It is doubtful that the children came to Parker as the house was out of the District.

Samuel Cook continued to own the land in 1907, but in 1915 the 160 acres were owned by Mary E. Wherry; and, in 1953 by Otis Wherry; see their write-up.

Buried in Catlin Oak Ridge Cemetery are:
Samuel Cook 1825-1905; Martha E. (w/o S.L.) 1838-1928; Bertie Cook 1871-1939; and Charles W. Moreland 1856-1913.
In Jones Grove Cemetery, Catlin:
Fred Cook 1877-1954; Dora B. Jones (w/o F.C.) 1880-1965

Beckwith has a paragraph on Samuel Cook. He was (b) Clermont County, Ohio, 4 Oct 1825, and came to Vermilion County 4 Oct 1934. His first wife was Amanda M. Graves (b) 18 Aug 1833 (d) 19 Aug 1866. His second wife was Mrs. Martha E. (Citizen) Moreland (m) 14 April 1870 in Lafayette, Ind. She was (b) Warren County, Ind. 25 July 1839. There were three children by his second wife, Freddie, Bertie J. and John F.

Additional data from Chapman Brothers History: Samuel Cook's parents were James Cook (b) Va. or Maryland 23 June 1797, (m) Susanna Moyer 6 Oct 1822. She was (b) Pa. 2 Dec 1803. They settled in Clermont County, Ohio until coming to Illinois in 1834 settling at Brooks Point. They had six sons and five daughters (no names given). Samuel was the second child. He married Amanda Graves 1 April 1852, d/o James and Margaret (Blackbourn) Graves. They had six children: George W. (m) Eliza Douglas, James P. (m) Eveline O'Neal, Mary (Mrs. John H. Wherry), Margaret (d) at age 18, Charles (m) Celia Padgett, Ellen (d) at six months.

Martha E. Citizen was the fourth of nine children born to William and Esther (Parker) Citizen; she was born in Dark County, Indiana 25 July 1838. Her father was born in Md. 10 Nov 1809; her mother in N.C. 4 Aug 1812. They came to Illinois in 1851. She married Joseph Moreland 25 Aug 1854 and they had one son Charles W., a school teacher.

James Cox

I do not find Mr. Cox listed as an owner in the 1875, 1907, 1915 or 1953 Atlases, but they were listed in the 1880 census as living in the northeast part of Parker School District. I could find nothing else relative to them.

1880 census data Catlin Township lists:-
James Cox (b) Pa. (50); Mary E., wife, (b) Ohio (44)
Children all born in Illinois: Peter (26), Milda (13), Matilda (13)
Charles (11), James (8).

D. B. Douglas

The Douglas family reported in the 1880 census along with several others in the northeast portion of the Parker School District, but I find no land ownership records so they must have been tenants.

In the Catlin Township 1880 census list next to James Timmons and Isaac Hannah was:

	1880	1860
D. B. Douglas (b) Ill.	52	32
Anna (b) Ky.	54	34
Samuel B. (son) (b) Ill.	23	3
Allen (son) (b) Ill.	18
Billi (dau) (b) Ill.	16
George (son) (b) Ill.	12
Eliza (dau)		1

Chapman Bros. has a piece on Dorman B. Douglas. He was born in Danville Township 11 Oct 1827 s/o Cyrus Douglas (b) Vermont and his mother Ruby Bloss (b) Tioga County Pa. The mother (d) 15 Dec 1866, the father (d) 20 Dec 1880. They had 13 children, 9 sons and 4 daughters, all of which grew to adulthood except one son who was accidentally killed. The 1860 census of Danville Township lists Cyrus Douglas 68, Ruby 54, Mary 16, Bruce 14, and adjacent house Thomas Douglass 23, Ann 24, Emma 1.

of United States senator. That he would honor the office and people of the state goes without question. He once ran for mayor of Chicago in the interests of civil service with no pledges to any one. His desire was to give the city an honest, clean administration. The office would have been no honor to him but he would have honored the office. It was his intention to employ the best engineers in the country to settle the vexed question of engineering and in all departments of the city government to put the right man in the right place, irrespective of politics. He carried the north division of the city and the other intelligent wards but was beaten by a sharp political trick of his opponent.

Mr. Allerton believes that all men should try to lead a successful life; this he owes to himself, his friends and his people. He believes that young men to-day have better opportunities for advancement than when he was a boy, and that they have better teachers and better schools. Labor is higher and the necessities of life are cheaper, and therefore the opportunities are much greater for success. His life is certainly an object lesson for the young men of to-day, and he certainly deserves all the honor which he receives.

JOHN W. CLINGAN.

Among the best, most energetic and enterprising farmers and stock-raisers of Georgetown township, is John W. Clingan, whose landed possessions also extend into Catlin township and his property interests comprise several business houses in the village of Georgetown. He is widely recognized as one of the leading citizens of the southern part of the county. His birth occurred in Danville township, November 16, 1855, his parents being James S. and Elvira (Olehy) Clingan, the former a native of Ohio and the latter of Vermilion county, Illinois. William Clingan, the grandfather of our subject, was also born in the Buckeye state and in the year 1844 emigrated westward to this county, settling in Danville township, where he cleared a tract of land, making it cultivable. He there carried on the work of general farming for two years, when his life's labors were ended in death in 1846. The father of our subject also engaged in farming in Danville township, being thus interested in business affairs here until 1867, when he removed to Catlin township. There he secured a farm which he owned and operated for several years and on the expiration of that period he removed to the village of Westville, there living retired until he too was called to his final home in August, 1898. His wife still survives him and yet resides in Westville. They were the parents of four children, namely: John W.; Dennis R., a farmer who resides on the old home place in Catlin township; Mary E., who died at the age of three years; and Luther A., who married Etta Graves and is a farmer of Georgetown township.

At the usual age Mr. Clingan entered the common schools, where he gained a good knowledge of the branches of learning usually taught in such institutions. Subsequently he entered a commercial school at Danville, Illinois, and was thus prepared for the duties of business life, being graduated in that institution with the class of 1876. He wedded Miss Mary E. Nesbitt, also a native of this county and a daughter of William R. Nesbitt, who was an early settler here and is now deceased. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Clingan has been blessed with two children: D. Albert and Edna E.

When our subject had completed his education he began teaching school, being employed in the vicinity of Danville and of Westville for sixteen years. His educational work was acceptable in the districts where his services were secured for he had marked ability in imparting to others the knowledge which he had acquired. He also maintained discipline and thus became widely known as a capable and successful teacher. When sixteen years had passed he settled upon his present farm which is known as the old Hiram Gibson place, located on section 24, Georgetown township. He likewise owns a good farm in Catlin township, having altogether two hundred and ten acres of well improved land. Here he carries on general farming and stock-raising and the fields annually return to him good harvests, while in his pasture or feed-lots are found some of the most fashionable Poland China hogs. If one would examine into his life record to learn the secret of his success it will be found that he has prospered because he has worked unremittingly, paying close attention to his farm duties and giving careful thought to the management of his fields. Thus he has prospered and as his financial resources have increased he has made judicious investments in town as well as farm property. He now owns three good business houses in Georgetown, which are now occupied by a grocery, a meat market and a drug store. Mr. Clingan has never been an office seeker nor has he held office. He has, however, always voted with the Democratic party. He and his wife and children are members of the Methodist Episcopal church at Fairview and they have warm friends in the county. Reading, experience and investigation have made Mr. Clingan a well informed man and his mentality and genuineness, combined with his social nature, render him a popular and companionable gentleman. So well has he prospered in his work that he expects soon to put aside his farming interests and live retired.

JOSEPH SMITH.

Joseph Smith, deceased, was numbered among the honored pioneers of Vermilion county, having located here in 1831, and for many years he was prominently identified with the business interests of Danville. His early home was on the other side of the Atlantic, for he was born in Worcestershire, England, August 1, 1819, his parents being also natives of that country. In 1831 the father brought the family to the United States and after spending a short time in Elmira, New York, they came west, stopping first at what is now Chicago, but there was no city there at that time. Later in the same year he proceeded to Vermilion county and purchased a small farm near Potomac, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits for a few years, and then removed to Myersville, this county, and took charge of the Myersville flour mill, which was an old water mill. After running the same for several years Mr. Smith became a resident of Danville and forming a partnership with a Mr. Tincher they purchased a flour and hominy mill, which they at once commenced to operate, but Mr. Tincher soon sold his interest to Mr. Smith and a Mr. Giddings and the business was afterward conducted under the firm name of Smith & Giddings for several years or until the death of Mr. Smith.

Joseph Smith was about twelve years of age when he accompanied his parents on

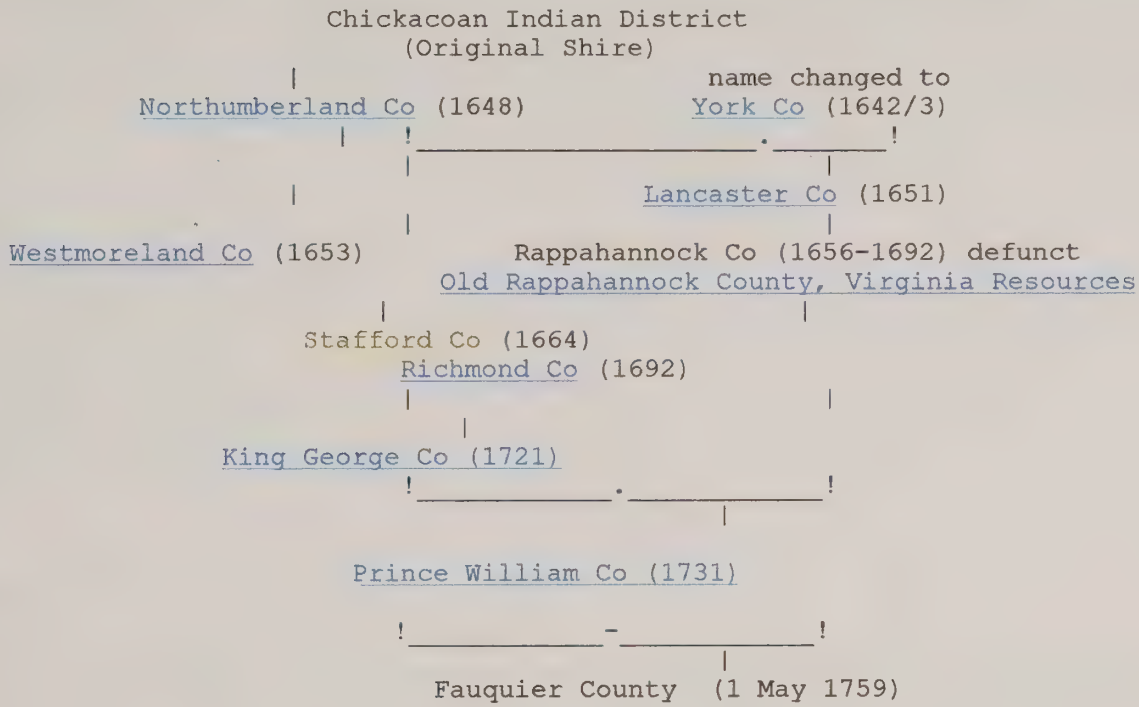
Genealogy of Fauquier County, Virginia

Genealogy of Fauquier County, with

Shortcuts to Ancestor Counties



Please look at this map which depicts King George County. Notice how King George County goes right through Prince William County and actually was part of what would be Fauquier County.

From 1721 when King George County was formed until 1731 when Prince William was formed.

- Visitthis map

Soooo! we have a ten year time period when a large part of Fauquier County was actually King George County from 1721 to 1731. 1731 to 1758 it was Prince William County, Virginia. Jim Burgess

Notes :

(Individual note) from Cindy Clowe Lacy:

(Individual note) The following is what I know about James Cloe. First appears in St. Andrews parish records, St. Mary's Co., MD from 1759-1767 with wife Mary. The births of four children are recorded: Susanna b. 23 Sep 1759, John b. 6 Sep 1761, James 17 Oct 1763, and Catherine b. 19 Feb 1767. James Cloe is on the 1778 MD census in Chester Hundred, Queen Anne Co. He then appears on Stafford Co., Va. tax lists from 1782 (first year tax lists are available) thru 1790. His will was probated in Stafford Co. in Sept. 1790, according to the Stafford Co. Scheme Bk, p. 72. However, the wills are missing from the courthouse for that time period, so nobody knows what his will said. Mary Cloe appears on tax lists thru 1801.

(Individual note) There was a lady out in California named Mrs. Cash who did a lot of research on this man. I never had an opportunity to correspond with her (she is now dead), but have corresponded with several who knew her. She claimed that James and Mary Cloe had four more children in addition to those in the baptismal records: David b. ca 1765, Wm b. ca 1770, Mary, and Nancy. Most of the CloweCloe researchers I have met claim descent from Wm or James, Jr. The problem is none of them have any documentation, and apparently, never asked Mrs. Cash for any. I began researching these people with the hope that some where, one of them would mention a nephew or cousin named Craven W. Clowe. I have never found that connection, but accumulated so much information that I have toyed around with the idea of publishing it. Mrs. Cash passed on much information about James Jr, Wm, and Nancy. Every piece of documentation I have found backs up her claims, but unfortunately, I have not found proof for everything. Here is a nut shell summary of what I know about the children of James and Mary:

(Individual note) 1. Sussana b. 23 Sep 1759 supposedly m a Daniel Sims. I have never located their marriage record or where they lived.

(Individual note) 2. James Jr b. 17 Oct 1763 m Elizabeth [illegible] and is on Stafford Co. tax lists 1787-1807. Mrs. Cash supposedly found someone with a family bible on this line. She was allowed to look at it but not photocopy. James Jr and Elizabeth had 11 children. Elizabeth moved all but one of them from Stafford Co. to Harrison Co., Ky where she died in 1832. One child, Seth Clow stayed in Harrison Co. The rest moved to Vermillion Co., Ill, Marion Co., IO, and Jasper Co., MO. The one child that stayed in Stafford Co. [illegible]

(Individual note) 3. Catherine b. 19 Feb 1767 supposedly m Elijah Abbott and moved to Ky. In his Rev War pension application, he mentions a daughter and grandchildren but not by name. I know nothing about any descendents.

(Individual note) 4. David b. ca 1765. Present on Fauquier Co., Va census in 1810. Mrs. Cash said his descendents were in Grundy and McComb Co., Ill. However, there is no such thing as a McComb Co., Ill and I have checked the Grundy Co. records in Salt Lake and turned up absolutely nothing. Other researchers think he moved to Ross Co. OH. I have checked the census there for 1820, and he might be on it, but the film is too faint to be sure. There are lots of Clowes in Indiana in the 1840's and 50's and personally, I believe they are his descendents. However, I have never found anything. David remains the mystery man of the family.

(Individual note) 5. William b. ca 1770 supposedly m Elizabeth Walters. I have never found any marriage record or proof of their children. Nevertheless, other researchers say they had seven children who settled in Lewis Co., MO, Clark Co., Ill, Bath Co., KY, and Clay Co., IN.

(Individual note) 6. Nancy b either 1770 or 1780 supposedly m a Joseph Ashby. No marriage record found. They moved to Vermillion Co., Ill.

(Individual note) 7. Mary supposedly m a William Williams and moved to one of the Carolinas according to Mrs. Cash.

(Individual note) 8. John b. 6 Sep 1781. Mrs. Cash stated she had no information about him. There is a John Clough/Cluff who settled in Harrison Co., Ky and died there about 1799. There is plenty of documentation on who his wife and kids are. Somewhere somebody decided this fellow was the same as the John Cloe in the baptismal records, because Harrison Co. was where Seth Cloe, Elijah Abbott, and the widow of James Cloe Jr all settled. When I disputed that assumption, I think I offended a few people. There is no connection yet found between the John Clough and his children of Harrison Co., Ky and the descendants of James Cloe. I have found numerous instances where Elijah Abbott and Joseph Ashby witnessed deeds, marriages, and probate records of various Cloe family members which would seem to indicate their connection to the family. But the John Clough and his children never did. And of course there is the problem of if the John of Harrison Co. really is the same John as in the baptismal records, then who is the one in Prince Wm Co records? The John of Harrison Co. was in Amherst and Rockingham Co., Va in the late 1770's and early '80's. Those counties are a long way from the Stafford/Prince Wm/Fauquier area. At the same time that Johh Clough is in Amherst and Rockingham, there is a John Cloe very close to the rest of the family in Prince Wm Co. I could go on and on with the arguement, but the fact of it is that I have been unable to prove it either way. One thing is certain, the John Clough of Harrison Co., Ky did not have a son named Craven. If people are going to make the assumption that John (always spelled Clough or Cluff) is the son of James and Mary because he lived in the same place where some of the rest of the family did, then the same arguement could be made for the John Cloe in Prince Wm Co.

(Individual note) All this is a bit interesting but much of it is yet unproven, or as I should say whatever proof Mrs. Cash had has been lost and needs to be rediscovered. I have some 40 or 50 pages on the descendants of James Cloe; obviously it is too much to send by email.

Dear Zandra;

I had taken your address from a copy of a letter you sent to Lillian Alberts of Shawnee Missn., Ks. in 19[illegible]. In this letter you had listed your marriage and had added for parent of some of the Cloe children. Perhaps by now you have all the answers. For our part, until I find the family of (Parents of Bro & Sis) of our Alexander Cloe I will collect and file all Cloe/Clow etc of the Southern lines I can find. Sound like you have researched them considerably.

Quite possibly Alexander and Sarah (C[illegible]) were cousins. Maybe the son of one of William or David Cloe line for I don't have their children (Sons of David b. ca 1726 - d[illegible] & Mary (Cloe) Stafford Co, Va.)

I am particularly interested in any items that will document early dates of family connections.

Was Alexander do you believe served in the Blackhawk War? Do you know which family John Clough b Aug 1845 and married Anna Rhodes descend from? Have a friend that descends from that [illegible]

Also our Alexander married a second time [illegible] Clark Co., Ill to - Mary (Blackburn ?) Cloe letter from Helen Clair Vern Ill

Frank Cloe, a well known general farmer and stock-raiser residing on section 15, Knoxville township, is a native son of that township, born May 1, 186 0, and a son of James H. and Theresa (Conrey) Cloe. The father was born on February 2, 1827, in Clark county, Kentucky, and when a small boy was taken by his parents to Vermillion county, Illinois, where he lived until 1849. In that year he came to Iowa and entered land in this county soon after his arrival here. He had previously visited this state in 1844. He located upon his property in 1852 and lived there until the spring of 1887. He was the owner of what is known as the Spring Hill Stock Farm, which he operated successfully from the spring of 1865 until 1885. He was the first breeder of shorthorn cattle here and shipped the first carload of fat cattle from Marion county to the eastern markets. In 1887 he removed to Rawlins county, Kansas, where he engaged in the feed, flour and live stock business at Blakeman, and he passed away in the Sunflower state on March 17, 1904, when past seventy-seven years of age. While living in Illinois he made several trips on flat boats to New Orleans and back, going down the Ohio to its junction with the Mississippi and thence to the Crescent city. He was also for a time foreman of a department in a packing house at Vincennes, Indiana. His life work, however, was that of a stock raiser and shipper and he was well known in that connection. He was a republican in political belief and in 1882 was elected county treasurer, serving his term with credit to himself. For ten years he was president of the Marion County Agricultural Society and during that time the organization did much to further the interests of the farmers of the county. In 1851 he became a Mason and attained the chapter degrees. He was a member of the Christian church and guided his life by its teachings.

James H. Cloe was married three times, his first union being with Miss Elizabeth Keenan, who became his wife in 1852 and she passed away four years later, leaving a daughter, Charlotte, who is now the wife of James Rice, a resident of Nebraska. Later Mr. Cloe wedded Miss Theresa Conrey, who was born in Ohio or Illinois and and was a daughter of John Conrey, one of the pioneers of Marion county, Iowa. He was prominent in public affairs and was a delegate to the constitutional convention from this county. Mrs. Theresa Cloe died in February, 1874, in the faith of the Christian church. She left seven children, of whom the subject of this review is the eldest. The others are: Mrs. Amanda Mastellar, a resident of Conrerville, Iowa; Edward, of Alliance, Nebraska; James, living in Blakeman, Kansas; John, who is a resident of Fremont county, Iowa; Sylvia, deceased; and Bertha, now Mrs. D.O. Bye. of Alliance, Nebraska. Mr. Cloe's third union was with Miss Elizabeth Mc Kern, who died leaving two children: Ansel, of Alliance, Nebraska; and Alma, now Mrs. Frank Craig, of Knoxville township, this county.

Frank Cloe passed the days of his boyhood and youth in this township and was a student in Professor Mc Kee's Academy at Knoxville, thus acquiring a good education. He followed in the steps of his father, becoming a stockman, and shipped cattle extensively from this county and western Iowa for ten years, or until 1889. At that time he was elected sheriff of Marion county on the republican ticket and devoted his entire attention to the duties of that office. Since his term expired he has engaged in general farming and in the stock business.

Biographies of Frank Cloe are taken from History of Marion Co. Iowa, 1915, by Johnson Wright

James H. Cloe--County treasurer. Was born in Clark County, Kentucky, February 2, 1827, and in 1831 was taken by his parents to Vermillion County, Illinois, where he was principally raised. From the age of seventeen until twenty-four he was employed in a pork-packing establishment, and during the last few years he was compelled to make a trip to New Orleans to attend the unloading of pork that was shipped, as was then customary, in flat-boats. It was during these trips that he conceived the idea that in his present occupation he was circumscribed and that he was competent to manage for himself instead of devoting the best period of his life to building up the fortunes of others, and with the promptness characteristic of the man, he made a prospective tour in Iowa in company with his brother, in 1851, and entered land in Marion County, and in 1852 came to make it his home, and his means at this time were invested in thirty-six head of calves, and after they matured, were fattened and driven to Burlington, and were the second lot of cattle fattened in Marion County and sent to the eastern market. From that time until about 1873 he followed stock-buying. Since that period he has devoted his farm, comprising 360 acres, to raising Short-Horns, and he has the largest herd of thorough-breds, embracing strains of the best families, in the county. In 1879 he was elected county treasurer, an office he has filled to the entire satisfaction of those with whom he has had business relations. He has been married three times; first to Elizabeth Keenan, in 1852; she was born in Vermillion County, Illinois. She died in 1856 , leaving one daughter, Charlotte N. (Now Mrs. James Rice). His second marriage occurred in 1860 to Miss Thursa Conrey; she was a native of Edgar County, Illinois. Mrs. C. died in 1874, leaving seven children: Frank, Amanda, Eddie, James H., John, Sylvia and Bertha. His third wife was Miss Elizabeth Mc Kern, born in Henry County, Iowa. By this marriage they have one son Ancil.

On a separate page

Here is about best information I have.

James, William and David Cloe and three sisters came from Scotland. James located in Stafford Co., Va. His wife's maiden name was Elizabeth Nichols (says Uncle Seth) - others say Elizabeth Bridwell.

Uncle Seth said Daniel Simms, Lige Abbot and Joe Ashby married the three girls (sisters of Grand Father or of Grand Mother but he thought of Grand Father).

Uncle Seth said David went to Chillicothe, Ohio, but did not know where William went to. These were brothers of Grand Father Cloe.

I corresponded with a great grandson of William (Grand Father's brother) and he spells his name Clow.

Grand Father - James Cloe - had seven sons and 4 daughters. As best I can learn, Henry, David, John, Alexander (your Grand Father), James, William (my father) and Seth. Sisters -

Aunt Kittie married Wm. Stark
" Lizzie " Dotson Dunaway
" Cecia* " Joe Stone
" Sallie married her cousin - Alex C.l.o.w.

Cousin Josie, take this and see if you can give any information along this line.

Yours truly,

/s/ W. H. Cloe

I have a file of ELLEN'S names, in Jesup, Iowa, for listings on the Cloe, Foxworthy, and Starr.

A friend of [illegible] to the Iowa Genealogy Society has sent in a [illegible] Cloe Family for publication in their society publication.

This same [illegible] recently received The Iowa Genealogical Society Surname [illegible], Issues 2 - 1975, and I checked it over. I saw Mrs. Lula Cook's [illegible] for the names: Foxworthy, Cloe, Risk, etc.

I have never received any replies to those letters which I sent out to people where I had just their name and address and was hoping to establish a relationship or identity on the basis of their surname. That just doesn't seem to be a fruitful route.

I searched the publication - Friends In Illiana - 1826, published in 1970 by Illiana Genealogical & Historical Society. This is an abstract of the records of the Society of Friends of Vermilion Quarterly Meetings in Vermilion Grove, Illinois. No Foxworthys, Cloes, or Starrs were mentioned. I was surprised about the Starrs. As I have told you, many Starrs were included as Quakers in Ohio and Indiana Friends records.

I recently found the marriage record for Catherine Cloe's first marriage. From - Illiana Genealogist, Spring 1975 - Vermilion County, Illinois, Marriage Records 1841-1844:
Joseph M. Jones m. Catherine Clow, 12/26/1844
(This is also the first firm evidence of her first husband's name. Please note that the name was spelled Clow rather than Cloe, and note this same spelling in another listing in the same record.)
Jesse M. Estes m. Louisa J. Clow, 7/8/1841
(This is the first time I have come across a Louisa.)

I noted where Mrs. Wm. W. Foxworthy of Terre Haute joined the Illiana Genealogical & historical Society in 1967 - so, if she is still a member and receiving their publications, she should pick the above marriage records up.

While doing the above research, I found where my g. g. grandfather, Jesse Lewis II, is buried - Niccum Cemetery, southeast of Danville, Illinois. He died in August 1864. Many members of the Cromer family are buried in this same cemetery. Adam Starr's first wife was Sarah Cromer. But I still do not know where Catherine (Cloe-Jones) Starr is buried.

In Illiana Genealogist, Vol. 2, page 89, I found a query from a Mrs. James R. Napper, 5122 N. Cleveland, Kansas City, Mo., 64119 - "Parents of William and Maria Foxworthy Napper or Napier in Vigo County, Ind. 1840-1870."

In Illiana Genealogist, Vol. 7, page 93, I found this query: "Des names and vital records of desc and anc of David Cloe, Chillicothe, Ohio, 1840 Census, Clinton County, In. and John Lewis Cloe, b abt 1826, Oh or In.? d. 1863, Gallatin, Tn. during C.W. Where was he bu? m. 1850, Tippecanoe County, In. to Caroline Graves, b abt 1831, Oh. Caroline m/2, Indianapolis, In. to Lewis Brean/Blean? - Mrs. Herman Mohler, 11762 Stuart Dr., Apt. 3, Garden Grove, Ca., 92643" I am sure that this Mrs. Mohler is the Fern Cloe that you wrote about in your first letter to me. Hope you can fill in the blanks in the quote.

I have never had time to finish my research on "David Clowe" I still think, however, that he is David Cloe - and that is what I want to prove or disprove. As I wrote you, I did abandon the work on the name "Clough". It may well be that the name Cloe is often written as Clough - but the surname Clough is frequently found and it appears to be a valid name. Because of the frequency of the name Clough, it was getting too confusing, and I thought my time would be better spent in just working an individual case.

CLOE - 10/

William Cloe and his wife Elizabeth, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Walters, natives of Virginia somewhere on the James River, came to Kentucky in the pioneer days. The date of the former's birth and death not known, but the latter, Elizabeth Walters Cloe was born about the year 1756and died in Clay Co., Indiana about the close of the Civil War at the age of 110, where she lived with her daughter Margaret Snoddy.

To this couple Wm. and Eliz. Cloe seven children were born: William, Jack, Pitman, Alexander, Alfred, Margaret, and Emily(x) William married Elizabeth, daughter of James and _____ Walters Brown. Jack married Patsy Sharp of Sharpsburg, KY who was born in Augustus, Germany. They, Jack and Patsy Cloe,were the parents of William Cloe, now (1911) of Advance, Ind. Nothing known of the other three sons. Margaret married Snoddy as before-stated.

(x) Emily born in Bath Co., KY in 1795, married James Brown a native of VA. His second wife. They had eleven children.

1. Sally, married John Ratcliff, had 6 children: James, Jack, Charlie, George, Emily, and _____.
2. Susan, married Greenburry Pierce. Had three children: James, Lafayette, and William.
3. James, accidently shot by his father when he was 17.
4. Coley, married Joan Gregory, had 8 children: James W., Lisa, Nett, Rebecca, Eliz., John, Coley, and Diana
5. Lisa, married David Hall, 2 children: Martha Susan and William.
6. John, married Rebecca Cross, 8 children: Jefferson, Coley, Mary, Emma, John, Marquis, Eliz., and Martha
7. Martha, married T. Jefferson Ferrand, ten children: Jane, Ellen, Joan, John, Rebecca, William, Lafayette, Jefferson, James, and Harvey.
8. Elilah, married Sam Smedley, 7 children: Aaron, Dan, Boone, Frances, William , Mary, and Jack
9. Emily, married William Peirce, 7 children: Sarah, Martha, Santford, James, William, Robert, and Jane
10. Henry, died in infancy
11. Matilda, married John Fisher Brown, 3 children: Evaline, Nancy, Emma, Alice, and Thomas Coleman

Emily Cloe Brown died in Rowan Co., KY in 1855

Dear Zandra;

I've read your letter through over and over to make sure I understand everything - how exciting. I really don't know where to start. I have so much to say. We agree on everything so far and I can fill in many of your blanks. I can see why you are confused by the James names. There are so many I sometimes have them flying in my head all night.

First off, I'm sure your Nancy is not a daughter of Elizabeth and James. Her birthdate makes her very close to Elizabeth's age. I'm sure now that she's a sister to James. I've gone through most all the records you sent including the scheme book and am currently working on films of the Stafford County and Bourbon County burials to find more dates on James and Elizabeth and James' parents.

My family records - it's hard to keep quoting these when I can't furnish exact proof yet - indicate that James and Mary Cloe/Clow came over from Scotland, she may have been of Welsh ancestry. I'm working on that angle right now, too, but only come up with a Loyalist named William from Perth County, Scotland so far. I'm still working on that name in that area. James and Mary apparently had James and perhaps your Nancy and maybe even that Michael. I come up with an odd cousin now and then that have to come from somebody way back then. James and Elizabeth had the children that Mrs. Cash mentioned. I have the four listed with no names for them. So, I'll use her four till I find better ones. Some are nicknames so need clarification anyway. I've charted them all out on a group sheet to show you how I show them in my records. She hasn't them in order of birth as the girls weren't the youngest. I am only sure of the placement of William and Seth because he wrote down that he was the sixth son and Seth the 7th and youngest son, their father dying shortly after. He said Seth was last heard of in Harrison County Kentucky and I find a Seth Clough there in 1840 census. I always rebuff that spelling because it's tied in with Cluff, but they may not have used it as Cluff in those days so I won't disregard any scrap.

Now, a word about proof. I have family writings that gave me most of the clues I used tracing their migrations. I also go through all the census films and Mormon films I find. But, it's still hard to say a fact is a fact till I find a record of births and other vital statistics, so I just use all these things as assumed facts till I can do better. I revise often as I hear from others like you to fill in blanks. So, please don't use my notes as gospel till I send you "the gospel". And, I will keep in close touch since we're working about the same generation. I go over to the Mormon library every Tuesday morning - my babysitting swap works out that way - and try to keep films ordered so I alwa ys have something to look at.

Each time I find a Cloe record, I'll send you a copy. I have a dear cousin nearby and we collaborate on everything. I zerox each thing I get in the mail and put it in a folder for her and she often reads films I've ordered if I can't make it over. She's not actively working at it at the moment like I am but will someday as she organizes her family. We both have young children. My oldest is 14 next week so I have a bit more freedom to get out than she does.

Now, about sources of information. I use the Mormon library mostly. Through Inter-library loan with the Archives in San Bruno, I can get all the census films in about a week. If I want a film prior to 1850, all the 1790-1840 films are at the Cupertino library nearby and I can run right over and see them immediately if I get excited about something. I also write a lot of letters and order books of vital statistics and such as my finances allow. None of these $20 issues, just a $3 or $5 county history now and then. I've gotten much help from book writers themselves in personal letters.

I have access to several great California records sources, too, if you ever trace anyone around here. Unfortunately, I have no one to trace from this state.

So, If I can help with something here that you can't get in Napa, let me know. Being so close to the Mormon Temple in Oakland, you have so much more than I do anyway. Have you been to Sutro Library in San Francisco, yet? I've ordered a few books from there but haven't made it up in person yet. I also want to visit the National Archives in San Bruno to see one 1900 census on my husband's family. They don't loan those out, yet.

I'm straying again! Sorry! There were three James' and then a lot of cousins named James. The James and Mary, then son James and Elizabeth, and then son James who's"brothers David and William went west to Ill. and Mo." Most all the children of James and Elizabeth named a son James so there's really a bunch of them.

James and Elizabeth lived in Stafford County, Virginia as far back as I can trace. James died there about 1805 leaving her with 8 of the children still at home. She moved to Bourbon County, Kentucky, after the 1810 census, where married children had moved before her. They all lived there till she died, between 1830 and 1840. Some may have started to Ill. before her death. Seth supposedly did not migrate with them. My ancestor, William Howard did not, either. He had left home about age 17, married and by 1820 (age 20) lived in Fairfax County, Va, where the 1820 census shows him with 2 children and 13 slaves. He supposedly only had one child by his first wife before she died and he married her sister. So, that may have been his second wife already by age 20. I'm spending most of my time on Wm. Howard right now so will know the details soon. He started west from Fairfax county before her death and was as far as Perry County, Missouri by 1830. He kept going to the western border of Missouri to what became Jasper County and settled there. The Civil War burned them out and he was a prisoner of the North. His family thought him dead and walked to Texas where he found them in 1867. They went to Benton County Arkansas where he lived out his life. My Great-grandfather, his youngest son, was born in Jasper County.

My Grandfather and Father were born in Benton County. I was born in Oregon and my father's family all live there now.

William Howard had five wives. He came to Missouri with his third, a Miss Angel. When she, too, died, he married Emily Truelove in 1844 (age 44) and had 5 more children. She died about 1856 and in 1857 he married Mary B. Hickey, a widow. Her three sons were killed after the Civil War started in 1861 and she walked to Texas with his four surviving children. I'm descended from Emily through her youngest son. They considered Mary Hickey to be a real mother to them the rest of her life.

All this junk really probably doesn't concern you anyway. If Nancy is a sister to James (Elizabeth's), this is all off on a tangent anyway.

Well, I'll get back to my chores. As I said, I'll keep working on all this and let you know if I find anything else to help your line. Especially the James and Mary and a link with Scotland. I have an ad coming out in the March Helper and we may pickup someone newer to help us, too.

Nice hearing from you. Keep in touch.

Sincerely,

Linda

Thought you might find this interesting!

W. H. CLOE DIES EARLY MONDAY MORNING

"William H. Cloe, a resident of Bentonville for more than 60 years, passed away shortly before six o'clock Monday morning, April 1st, at the Hurley hospital, Bentonville, where he had been a patient for about one month. His death was due to complications, the recovery from which was not expected by his relatives and friends. He was in his 86 year.

Funeral services were held at the Church of Christ Tuesday afternoon, the pastor Rev. Harry Barr, conducting the services. Attorney J. T. McGill, a close friend of the family, gave a sketch of his life. Charles McGill of Ft. Smith sang two numbers. He was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Mary McGill Davis. Burial was made in the Bentonville cemetary following the services. The church was filled with old friends and acquaintances and the floral offerings many and beautiful.

Honorary pall bearers: C. M. Rice, K. C. Campbell, E. O. LeFors, Jack Maxwell, Joe Peel, and W. J. Doke of Rogers, all old friends of the deceased. Active pall bearers were: E. R. Berry, Will Terry, Arlie Beck, Will Whayne, Dr. Ed James, Joplin, and R. C. Harris, Pea Ridge.

William Henry Cloe was born at Moss Springs, Missouri, located between Sarcoxie and Carthage, February 7, 1851. Moss Springs was destroyed during the Civil War.

Mr. Cloe's parents were William and Emily Truelove Cloe, who were born in Stafford County Virginia. His grandfather, James Cloe, who * was of Scotch and Welsh ancestry, moved from Scotland to Stafford County, Virginia, prior to 1790.

Mr. Cloe had one sister, Betty Cloe Lewis, and two brothers, Taylor and Amos Cloe, all deceased.

As a small boy during the Civil War, he endured many hardships, and assumed a man's responsibility. He and his mother, older sister, and two brothers went as refugees from their home in Fidelity, Missouri, where they had moved when he was a small child, to Sherman, Texas. They walked the entire distance, using a small cart the boys had used for play, with calves for a team, carrying necessary supplies on the cart. During this time the father having been taken a prisoner, was thought to be dead. After three years, during which time he suffered from illness and temporary blindness, the father began a search for his family; following all leads, he located the family in Sherman. With the aid of friends and his boys the father remained in Texas and made a living by farming until he brought his family to Benton county in 1867, locating near the present town of centerton, where the boys farmed to make a living. William, after assisting in rehabilitating the farm and the family fortunes, was anxious to attend school. He had to join classes of boys much younger than himself, but he soon took his place among boys of his own age. He attended the school taught by Morgan H. Looney. He received many offers of assistance to enable him to go away to college, but the desire to assist in caring for his parents was stronger. He received a certificate to teach a common school in District 16 of Benton County for three months beginning July 19, 1875.

Afterwards he worked for Mr. Josiah Claypool in the mercantile business for several years. In 1877 he and E. H. Looney, son of Morgan H. Looney, bought a drug store from Dr. John Smartt and they conducted..."

"...Frances and Sam, all of whom survive, except Pearl, who passed away when she had just arrived at young womanhood.

Mr. Cloe served as sheriff of Benton County from Jan. 1, 1886 to Jan. 1, 1888.

He became manager of the Benton County Nursery Company in 1892 and served in that capacity several years.

He was townsite manager for the Kansas City Southern Railway Co. for a number of years, until he acquired what is now known as Radium Springs Corporation, eight miles east of Seligman, Missouri.

Mr. Cloe became a member of the Christian Church in his early manhood and was a charter member of the Bentonville Christian Church.

The following children survive: Mrs. Katherine Cloe Bohart, Los Angeles; Wm. H. Cloe, Jr., Chicago; Mrs. Frances Cloe McComb of Phoenix, Ariz., Sam C. Cloe of Los Angeles, and two granddaughters, Mrs. Katherine Bohart Kearney, of Los Angeles, Mrs. Pearl Eloise Bohart Spencer, of Los Angeles and three great grandchildren."

Dear:
Rula D. Cash, Zandra Horn, and Marcia Fuller,

I'll send this to all, and save letter-writing time! I'm certainly glad to have corresponded with all of you, and to find so many working on one family. I may have told you, this is my wife's line--she is from North Carolina, and we make one trip a year out there. If we can do any research for any of you out there, let us know.

We went to Stafford County several years ago, and saw the Cloe name in the phone book. I wrote to one of them, and she forwarded my letter to Wm. Cloe of Richmond. I'm sending you each a copy of his two letters to me.

The only additional information I have, other than what you've exchanged with me, is from the Virginia tax-lists. I didn't check all lists (lack of time) but found this: Stafford Co.:

1783 - James Clow, 3 males 21+ yrs.
1785 - James Cloe, 1 " " and 2 males 16+
James Cloe, 1 " " and 1 " "
1786 - John Cloe, jr. 1 male 21 plus. (This sure looked like John, maybe it is James.)

Since there were two James' in 1785, it looks like Rula Cash is right about James with wife Elizabeth being a jr., and James with wife Mary the sr.. This places James Jr.'s birth at least around 1760. Mary (Cloe) Williams was b. 1766, so they are no doubt brother and sister. The older James may have been the Scotch immigrant, or James, jr. may have also come over as a youngster or young man. Part of the confusion seems to come from the apparent fact that both James' died within 10 years of each other.

Thanks to all of you for sharing what you have. I do not know the father of Wm. Williams who married Mary Cloe--his Rev. pension papers are source for the 1801 date of moving to Rockingham Co.,N.C.--other dates in a family Bible.

Sincerely,
J. Larry Jacobson

CLOE CLOW CLOWE CLOUGH CHLO

Taken from various sources of correspondence, documents etc. in my files.

The earliest date I have on any Cloe is the date that has been passed on to me by several of you who has corresponded with me. I do not know where this info was found, but I am assuming it is correct.

James Cloe came from Scotland 1755-1760... The first Census of Va. 1790 lists in Stafford County, 1785, James Cloe..8whites in household. This seems to indicate a wife and 6 children are possible.
1790 Sept. Court.. Stafford Co. one James Clow, dec'd, had his will presented by James Ford, one of the witnesses.
1791 Feb. Court..Stafford Co. Mary Clow was summoned to Court to show cause why she did not qualify to present her husband's will.

Note: It is my personal opinion that this James and Mary are probably the same person who came from Scotland and has been confused with James who married Elizabeth. The correspondent who copied the data from Alexander's Bible for me, stated that James supposedly had a brother named David and a brother named William who went farther west. As you will see from the data in Fauquier County Va. and the misc. data from other sources, I believe this man to be the father of our James (Elizabeth) and also the father to David and William of Fauquier Co. Perhaps the father of Robert and Richard Cloe who served in the Rev. and received bounty land for their service in the 1st Va. Regt. Nancy Cloe who married Joseph Ashby and Mary Cloe who married Wm Williams are possibly his children also.

1810 Census of Fauquier Co. Va.

Green, John Gibson-- Returned 25 June-1798

From Fauquier Co Tombstone inscriptions there was a James E. CHLOE in the Mt. Morris Church Cemetery . date:1934-1961..indicating the Cloe family may still have sme of their descendants living there.

I do not have all the dates of birth of the children of James and Elizabeth. I have only the census data on some but have date of David from his War record App. I have Elizabeth's census data from the Stafford Co 1810 and David is not there so I am assuming he may be in another household or woking to help support his widowed mother. H e might have been married but he is not in his own house if So.

1810 Stafford Co. Va. (I am including more Census from here and showing people who are listed close to her)

Elizabeth Cloe
2 males 0-10
2 males 10-16

2 females 0-10
2females 10-16
1 female 26-45

The first males 0-10 is probably William and Seth..the other two males, Alexander and James or John.. This shows all of the females of Elizabeth and James but a very slight possibility there could be a dau.-in-law here.
As David is the oldest I have listed I will start with him and see what I can find that can be pieced together to make sense. I am hoping that someone can fill in some of these missing links . I have already given you the census of Fauquier Co. re: David. I have 2 more David's that I have not found a place for but think they fit in the picture somewhere.

David Cloe b. Nov. 22, 1829 Ill. d. May 26, 1911 age 81yrs 6m0 4dys bur. St. Joseph Mo.

I did not find this David listed in the Vermillion or Clark Co. Ill/ Census, but by 1850 he could have been gone from home..His death cert. was signed by a Mrs. Elizabeth Chapman as the person who gave the info on him. I am sure that Henry and David both had other chidren than the ones listed in their households in 1850 so this one could have been enumerated in another household that was over looked.

David applied for pension for his 1812 service in the War and I will take some of the exerpts from this. He applied 1850 Vermillion Co. Ill. giving his age as 65 or 66, stating his name was David Cloe, Clow or Clough, his name being spelled all three ways. He served in a Co. Commanded by Capt. Joseph Clark in a Regt. of Volunteers Commanded by Col. Dudley. He volunteered in Clark Co. Ky. 1813 March 1st.
He was in a battle in which Col. Dudley was defeated and he made his way to Fort Defiance arriving in a very exhausted state and bad feet. He spent 2 or 3 months in the hospital and was ordered home when he was able to walk--He made his mark here.... A deposition was made by Milton~~=Isl~~ Leslie Jr. that he had knowm David Cloe for 15 or 18 years. He said David was an old man with a large dependent family of c children, having married a second wife. At ~~He~~ the bottom of the page was a post-scipt requesting mail to be sent to David Clow % Milton Leslie Danville, Ill. 1/14/1851

April 18, 1855, Vermillion Co. Ill. M.Leslie, Justice of Peace, made statements that David Clow appeared before me. David Clow age 69 on May29 last was a Pvt. in a Co. Commanded by Capt. Joseph Clark..etc.etc. Under the act of Sept. 28,1850 David Clow received land warrant~~y~~#18743 for 80 acres which he has since legally disposed of and cannot now return. He makes this declaration for pupose of obtaining additional land under act approved March 3, 1855..etc.etc.
Deposition made by A.P. Chesley and David Morgan as to David Clow's statements above
David Clow received 80 acres Dec. 11, 1855 Warrant #16510 Claim#110503
Danville, Ill. June 4, 1870, aletter written by Wm. C. Sanders to Commissioner of Patents Wash. D.C...He states he has an answer to application of David Clow in his possession and David Clow is now Deceased. He requests description of land and to whom warrant was made..etc.etc.

The info above is sort of ~~jj~~ jumbled but it does give some info. The 2nd marriage seems to indicate the older children of David wasprobably Mary Ann,(25) Margaret(21) Druzilla(24) in household of Geo. and Delilah Casiday and also I think Jefferson listed as a Pickett was in error according to info [illegible].

on the marriages of Vermillion Co. Ill. It is quite possible the Catherine Clow who married Joseph Jones was also the daughter of David..At this point I have not really tried to figure out which child belonged to which. I am playing it sort of safe amd choosing only the ones who are listed on census. It does seem plausible that Edith was a widow when David married her in 1836.. The census do not all agree on her age. 1850..age 40 1860..age 58 1870..age74.. so you have a choice. I wonder if anyone has looked for a 1st marrage for her.

To go on with Henry and Ann Constine (Foxworthy) Cloe, my info seems to be very sketchy. They were the cause of all this reasearch because I was trying to see if her family would lead me to any knowledge of her parents, as I had about ran out of any resources on the Foxworthy's. This is why I have not taken the time to actually make any kind of record for the Cloe's. I am interested in a remote way that sounds foolish when I actually think of it. A Foxworthy descendat tried to compile a history of the family and did very little on it when she died. I am sure she put a lot of time into it but the family seems to have almost stopped comunicating after a few years. She interviewed a man who had married the grandaughter of Enoch. Enoch has never been found in Iowa where this man lived and this man has not been found in Indiana where Enoch lived so I am sure he was not too intimately acquainted with him and was relying on the legends that always are passed down in all families. He made the statement that Enoch's father was named Phillip and the retracted and said maybe it was Daniel. Then he said Enoch had a sister named "Connie" and he said Enoch's sister married James Chloe.. The lady who wrote this did not know if he meant there were 2 sisters or if he meant one sister married Cloe.. I do not have any data on James to date so it may be another Foxworthy-Cloe marriage somewhere in the data. I am wondering about the mother of David, Henry etc. Who was she and why did she go to Ky? It seems to me with her being a widow, she would not want to leave a place where she was" AT Home" to go to some strange place. Maybe some of her children had preceeded her to Ky. Or is it possible she was related to some of the Foxworthy's or their wives. Apparently Henry was in Va. in 1810 as he signed a lease which involved a land lease between Vincent Foxworthy and his wife, Mary, Joseph Johnson and his wife, Sussannah, Joseph Reed, Richard Reed, and Joseph Combs were all in this and I have interpteted it that Mary, Susannah, Richard, and Joseph Reed were all of the same family who has inherited this land from Joseph Combs. I gives the location of this land as being next to land of John Ashby's. The lease is signed by Vincent, Thomas, and Enoch Foxworthy and also Henry Cloe. This seems to indicate Henry was already a family member of the Foxworthy's but he does not show up in his own household in the 1810 census. I think he would show up in Elizabeth's house if he were still single but another thought occurred to me, I have not established the parents of Ann only to the extent that a record of death in the [illegible] Co. Ray twp. one Ann Foxworthy, age90 died April 1850...That is wrong.....It was MORGAN COUNTY...RAY TWP. I have been writing this date from memory and I have fouled it all up. anyway, to go on with the thought I had, I wonder if it might be a possibility that the Thomas in Prince Wm. County could be the father of Ann and the household includes her and Henry.. The Reed ch were ch of Coleman Reed + wife Ruth - will: 1747-1748 Westmoreland Co Va Vol XI . This is my theory-R.L

1810...Prince Wm. Co.
Thomas Foxworthy
1 male0-10
1 male 10-16
2 males 16-26
1 male 45 up
3 females 10-16
2 females 16-26
1 female 45 up

I would have to check this over with what data the other Foxworthy's have on this man as I am not sure of marriage dates of Ann and Enoch's brothers or whwre they were in 1810. I know that some of them went to Clark Co. Ky. but not sure of year they are found there. The Foxworthy's settled in Clark, Bourbon, Harrison, Mason, Mercer, Montgomery, and other counties in Ky. They married into the Bridwell, Lawton, Calvert, Tippet, and other Va. families. We just have to sort them [illegible] the many early data.

As you can see there has to be a generation between here ~~th~~ and our Ann and Enoch, but WHO?... I think all of you have the Vermillion Co. Data on Henry so I will not repeat it here but the short biography said he went to Iowa in 1859. When did Isaac and Lydia go to Iowa? Did they precede Henry? Marion Co. Iowa has one marriage 1850.Nov. 17, ..Narcissa Jane Cloe to Wm. London. I do not know who this is. I wonder if James or John was in Iowa when the rest of them went there from Ill. To get back to the Ill. census of 1850, Elizabeth in the household of Henry, is probably the mother of Philip age 9. Harvey, age 1 is probably the son of H Harvey who married 1st to Elizabeth Eslinger Nov. 27 1842. She died at age 27 of childbirth Oct. 1849. This from the Ill. 1850 Mortality Scheddule. The death date in Marion Co cemetery of Harvey T. was 20 Feb. 1904..b.Oct. 22, 1849. Elizabeth Cloe was a depentent Mother of Philip A. who died in the Civil War . She applied for a pension in Marion Co. Stating that she had not married the father of Philip and she was not now or never had been married.Philip died sept. 5th 1863 at Camp Sherman, near Elk. River, Miss. Elizabeth died about April, 1899. We have a Philip A. Foxworthy in our line... The Wesley and Malinda in the 1850 census are probably man and wife as the mar. date of Wesley was July, 1850 One Wesley and a James H. Cloe signed a deposition for Elizabeth on her application for pension of Philip A.

I do not know who the Alexander Cloe ..45..b. Va. and Sarah 58 b. Va. in the 1850 Clark Co. Ill. census are Listed in the same Co. are a Wm H. Cloe 21 b. KY. and wife Lydia age 18 b. Ohio as these people do not fit into the Bible record of Alexander.

The Geoge W. Cassaday and Delilah Cassaday in the 1850 census of Ver. Co. has Druzilla Clowe 24 b. Ky. in their household. I found these same names in the land records of Fountain Co. Indiana 1835 as well as a John Brady who was there in 1826. Is there a connection?

As I sit here pecking away at this thing, I have decided that this family of Cloes are getting me confused because it is hard to keep all the John, James, Wm. David's separated where you can tell which I am writing about. I will leave Henry here and what data I have will be on the list of death dates in the Marion Co. cemetery list I am enclosing.

John or James is very hard to find anything ~~on~~ very conclusive about. John is listed in the 1820 census of Bourbon Co. Ky. I do not have any of the Ky. data, only the index. I do not know where he or the daughters married... daughters of James and Elizabeth, I mean. The man who sent me the Bible record said that Sarah, or Sally married a cousin Cloe and changed the spelling of the name so this means James had to have a brother somewhere....Just a thought.

I will go on to a little of Alexanders family. I have much more on his descendants but I will take a rain check on that and send it later. My time is so limited and I do want to get this copied and in the mail to some of you who has been so good to share what you have.

Alexander was born April 19, 1799 mar. May 5, 1821 in Va. to Drucilla Burroughs. She was born1797.. The only Burroughs I found in the 1820 Va. index was George Burroughs pg165a Alexander and Drucilla are in the Stafford Co. Va. 1830 census but I do not have data in front of me right now.

One Alexander Cloe served in the Black Hawk War as a Pvt, 11th Co. Vermillion Co. Ill. and is buried in Gordon Cemetery Blount twp.. Vermillion Co. I do not believe this to be the same Alexander.

Alexander and Drucilla (Burroughs) Cloe had 10 children:
1=John b. Mar. 11, 1822 (unmarried)
2=James H. b. Sept. 17, 1823 m. Mary Edwards
3=Elizabeth b. Dec. 17, 1825 m. Austin Knight
4= Alfred b. Dec. 20, 1827 ~~m~~ (unmarried)
5= Sarah b. May 16, 1830 m. Henry Gill
6= Wm. Shepherd b. June 16, 1832 m. Hannah Catherine Stark
7= Louise M. b. July 10, 1835 m. Edward Gill
8= MaryC. b. April 29, 1838 (unmarried)
9= Charles Wesley b. June 18, 1840 m. Mary Mercer Randel

As far as I can determine , Alexander must have spent the rest of his life in Va.

Wm. Cloe is the next to youngest son as I have him. I have his birthdate as 1800. The Bible recored that was copied says Seth was youngest but I do not know if this meant he was youngest child or youngest son. I have in my possession, a very long narration written by the son of Wm. who was Wm. Henry Cloe Sr. I will try to copy some of the more important data from it. It seems to be a sort of record of the family when Wm. Sr. was a child and concerns the trials and tribulations of the Civil War when Wm. Sr. was very young. (I mean Wm. Henry Sr... son of Wm.) According to the family tradition, our Wm. Cloe married 3 sisters named Brown. Each of them died and then Wm married a widow with some children. (NOTE: By Enoch F. had a brother Thomas, who we believe married 1st to one Elizabeth Brown, this lady is found in a church record in Clark Co. Ky in the southern part of the County near the Estill C. line. Estill Co. shows many Ashby's . One Elizabeth Foxworthy died Sept. 1849 Putnam Co. Ind. age 62 b. Va. This was probably the wife of the Thos. mentioned. Putnam Co. also has marriages of one Wm. Cloe to Mary Annangel 1836. One Wm. Cloe to ~~Louse=tark~~= Louise Stark. Is it concievable that these were widows and were nee Brown, sisters to Wm's 1st wife? One Thos. Cloe married an Eliza Fulton in Putnam County and I believe this is the same person in the 1880 census of Vermillion Co Ill. So how were they related? I am enclosing Putnam Co. data.
To go on with the info on Wm. He went to Ky. with his widowed mother. He mar. at the age of ~~of~~ of 22 and went to Ill. in 1831. He did not like it there and after a few years he moved on to southwest Mo. to Jasper Co. Wm.'s son, Wm. Henry Sr. was born Feb. 7, 1851. He does not mention any other children here. He said his father moved to Fidelity, Mo. and his mother died when he was about 3 years old, so this would make the wife of wm. die about 1854. Wm.H. Sr. does not mention any previous wives of his father, but at one point he does mention a half-brother, James. He does not explain . The Death register of Jasper Co. 1883-1892 lists one James H. Clow age 66y 8mo 17d; d.13/8/90; mining, b. Ky; Mo. 63yrs This seems to coincide with dates of son of Alexander and Drucilla but I do not think it is their son, however, there is nothing definitely or absolute that Alexander stayed in Va. He was there in 1830 but do not know after then.
Wm. H. Sr. mentions the other children fo his father that was small during the Civil War. They were: 1. Elizabeth 2. John Taylor 3. Amos G. 4. Wm. Henry Wm. Cloe married the widow of John Hickey after the death of his wife in Jasper Co. She had 3 sons, John, Middleton, and Michael Hickey. Wm. H. also mentions the "Hickey Bros." He names, Joshua, Middleton, and Bannister. I believe these must be brothers to The widow's dead husband.

Wm. Cloe settled in Fedility, Mo. but about 1858-59 he moved to a prairie farm about ~~21/~~= 2½ miles from town. Wm. was an old man when the Civil War came but he was taken pri soner as a Southern Sympathyzer. He was released when he took the oath of Allegiance to support the Constitution and received his ~~pro~~= protection papers, but, while he was in prison, 2 of his sons, joined the Confederate Army which put Wm. Cloe's life in very grave danger.
NOTE: These sons are not named,but it was NOT Wm. Henry Sr. or John Taylor Cloe as they are mentioned later as going to Texas with their motheror rather STEP-Mother [illegible] to indicate older children by another marriage for Wm.

Two Union Soldiers who had known Wm. Cloe and loved him very much was serving under Gen. Shelby's Command. Their names were Major Billy Warren And John May. They came by night and pretended to arrest Wm. but took him to safety in Ark. In Ark. he became very ill but was nursed back to health by a friend there. In the meantime the widow and the children of Wm. believed him dead. For 2 years they were harrassed and abused by the Union Soldiers. One of the widow's small sons was killed by the soldiers and the house was burned twice besidea all the other things that went on. The widow was left in Mo. with 3 boys and 1 girl and life becme unbearable so she took these children and made a long and hazardous trip to Sherman Texas where they had friends. They had no more than arrived when Wm. who had recuperated in Ark. made his way to the same house and a very happy reunion with the family. Later on, they moved to Bentonville, Ark. I believe Wm. Cloe died there and probably his wife also. ~~=n=,=d=e=~~

I am not sure of birthdate of Charles N. but I think 1886.. I will have to check this. but he died in Denton, Co. Texas. This family of Cloes are probably some relation to Wm. Henry Sr. or maybe the offsprings of some of Wm.'s first wives if he did marry the 3 sisters. One of the descendants of this family said they were related in some way to some Barr family in Ft. North, Tex. but I will have to find this letter. For some reason it is not in with this other " Conglomeration " of Cloe stuff.

1820 Index to Va. Census names a Wm. H. Cloe..Fairfax Co. Va. ..page 62.. Who is this man? does anyone have data on him? Could he be our Wm. or a son of old Wm. or old David of Fauquier Co. Va? According to the account I have just given, our Wm. was supposed to be in Ky. with his mother.
I do hope all of these Williams have not confused everyone I should try to do this when I have the time to go into depth and detail but if I wait until then, it will never be written.

Seth, has eluded me entirely. I have no info on him whatsoever. It seems to be a Cloe name as some of the younger generations have named their children Seth, but I have nothing on his existence.

The daughters of James and Elizabeth probably married in Ky. There is a Catherine Foxworthy listed in the 1830 census of Nelson Co. Ky. I have not Identified her but it may be possible that the Kitty Cloe could be Catherine and has mar. a Foxworthy as a 2nd husband. I do not have any census data on her, or the others in Ky. I have only the Index and I do not have all of the 1820 Index..I loaned it out and it was not returned.. I have ordered another one so maybe I can add to what I have at a later date.e.

I have taken whatever info I could find from the census indexes that might in some way shed a little kind light on what someone may have in their files and can somehow connect it to make some sense. I think just in the past few weeks I have learned answers until I began to study them a little and start to put them together. It has been like I found a lot of playing cards that someone has thrown to the wind and I have picked them up and later began to realize I might have a full deck if I will just look them over.

I have written dow some hap-hazard info and if I get the time I will type them up but may send them as is. Sandra Horn has been kind enough to offer to do some typing but I had everything so disorganized I thought I had better make an attempt to write it. I am not a typist and especially without something to copy..All this rattling is that strange emptiness in the space between my ears.

I have found a little Ashby, Brady, McCoy, and Jones etc. data I have included. In Putnam Co. Ind. there is Ashby and also Brackney, not Hickney, also one Joseph Ashby mentioned. Possibly the data will connect to Vermillion Co. I found it in the History of Putnam Co.

I have many books and should make a list of them, but will look up anything for any of you that I can.

Just got a nice long letter from Marcia Fuller today and she enclosed a letter explaining Narcissus Cloe.. written by Mrs. Fred Brandes...says she was the daughter of Lydia Cloe by her first marriage to Gilbert Cloe... Now this makes sense because Marcia had already made the remark that Henry must have followed Lydia and Isaac Brady to Iowa, indicating that they probably went there before 1855. I am going to get that full deck of cards together yet!

It is late tonight and this noisy "flyperator" keeps my husband awake and hard to live with if he doesn't get his rest so I will do my utmost to finish and get this on it's way to some of you who have written and maybe you can reconstruct the stuff to make sense.

From Fauquier Co Tombstone inscriptions there was a James E. CHLOE in the Mt. Morris Church Cemetery . date:1934-1961..indicating the Cloe family may still have sme of their descendants living there.

I do not have all the dates of birth of the children of James and Elizabeth. I have only the census data on some but have date of David from his War record App. I have Elizabeth's census data from the Stafford Co 1810 and David is not there so I am assuming he may be in another household or woking to help support his widowed mother. H e might have been married but he is not in nis own house if So.

CLOE CLOW CLOWE CLOUGH CHLO

Taken from various sources of correspondence, documents etc. in my files.

The earliest date I have on any Cloe is the date that has been passed on to me by several of you who has corresponded with me. I do not know where this info was found, but I am assuming it is correct.

James Cloe came from Scotland 1755-1760... The first Census of Va. 1790 lists in Stafford County, 1785, James Cloe..8whites in household. This seems to indicate a wife and 6 children are possible.
1790 Sept. Court.. Stafford Co. one James Clow, dec'd, had his will presented by James Ford, one of the witnesses.
1791 Feb. Court..Stafford Co. Mary Clow was summoned to Court to show cause why she did not qualify to present her husband's will.

> Note: It is my personal opinion that this James and Mary are probably the same person who came from Scotland and has been confused with James who married Elizabeth. The correspondent who copied the data from Alexander's Bible for me, stated that James supposedly had a brother named David and a brother named William who went farther west. As you will see from the data in Fauquier County Va. and the misc. data from other sources, I believe this man to be the father of our James (Elizabeth) and also the father to David and William of Fauquier Co. Perhaps the father of Robert and Richard Cloe who served in the Rev. and received bounty land for their service in the 1st Va. Regt. Nancy Cloe who married Joseph Ashby and Mary Cloe who married Wm Williams are possibly his children also.

Dear Zandra,

I still remember the help on the Cloe line that you have given me, and again thanks. I haven't heard anything from Lillian Alberts for some time now. I guess that I should try and call her. I know that both of them were not to well the last I heard. We are doing considerably better on this end.

Your name came up on a fgs that I received in the mail a little while back and so I thought that I would write and ask about it. I keep plugging away on my Cloe line, but it is slow going. I decided on going in the back door so to say and am working on some of the branched. Among them being the Browns, Dunaway, Snoddy and Ashbys. Noveda Metzger says that you list Baily Ashby as the son of Joseph and Nancy (Cloe) Ashby. I was wondering how you came to that conclusion?

I have worked quite a lot on my Alexander and Sarah (Cloe) Cloe. Particularly on Alexander's parents. I have added some to this and will print out a partial descendancy chart for you. Later I can send you a complete on as I have on my computer if you would like it. William and Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe were my Alexander's parents I guess you knew. I have not found anything on Williams' brother, David to speak of, but he was said to have went to Ohio.

Do you have the fgs for the Stark, Dunaways, Stones and Snoddy that were married to the Cloe girls? If so I would like copies of this information.

I received a letter just this past week from a lady that said that she was a professional genealogist and was researching the Cloe and Foxworthy line, but she didn't even give the least hint of how she connected. I am always a little concerned when people do that to me, for perhaps she just wants my information without giving up any. I have had that happen a few times for sure. Her name was Sherida Riggs, do you know of her?

I have a feeling that if we got organized we have other information to exchange. Let me know if you see anything from the computer printout that you would like fgs copies of, or whatever. Hopefully this is still a current address.

I will close for this time. Hope that this letter finds you well and I wish the best to you always.

Sincerely,

DESCENDANCY CHART

Dear Zandra,

Yes I was kind of surprised. Mostly because the Post Office forwarded your letter to me. I know that some have already been returned with a notice that the forwarding notice has expired. Please note the address change.

I was real pleased to hear from you. I have been going over some of my Clark Co. IL ancestors and their branches. I am also checking the Clark Co., IL Cem. Indexes for information that will verify what I have collected over the years. From around about ways I have seen much of the information that you sent, but some was new. I think that I will retype Mrs. Rula D. Cash's letter and include comments that I believe to be true and why.

The easiest date I have on any Cloe is the date that has been passed on to me by several of you who has corresponded with me. I do not know where this info was found, but I am assuming it is correct.

James Cloe came from Scotland 1755-1760... the first Census of Va. 1790 lists in Stafford County, 1786, James Cloe..8 whites in Household. This seems to indicate a wife and 6 children are possible.

1790 Sept. Court.. Stafford Co., VA one James Clow, Dec'd, had his will presented by James Ford, one of the witnesses.

1791 Feb. Court.. Stafford Co., Mary Clow was summoned to Court to show cause why she did not qualify to present her husband's will.

Note: It is my personal opinion that this James and Mary are probably the same person who came from Scotland and has been confused with James that married Elizabeth. The correspondent who copied the data from Alexander's Bible for me, stated that James supposedly had a brother named David and a brother named

William who went further west. As you will see from the data in Fauquier County Va. and the misc. data from other sources, I believe this man to be the father of our James (Elizabeth) and also the father to David and William of Fauquier Co. Perhaps the father of Robert and Richard Cloe who served in the Rev. and received bounty land for their service in the 1st Va. Regt. Nancy Cloe who married Joseph Ashby and Mary Cloe who married Wm. Williams are possibly his children also.

Note/DDD: While James and Mary Cloe may have came from Scotland in 1755-1760, they are found as the parents of Susanna Cloe, 23 Sept 1759, in St. Andrews Parish, St. Marys Co., MD. Likewise the records of St. Andrews Parish include a John Cloe born 6 Sept. 1761, James Cloe born 17 Oct 1763 and a Catherine Cloe born 17 Feb 1767 as children of James and Mary Cloe.

Therefore we know that James and Mary lived in MD from 1759 to 1767. William and David was probably born before this time, and may have been born in Scotland, but I have not found anything to date to indicate this. William went to IN and David to OH where both are included in earlier censuses there. I have the family of William, but have not been able to establish the family of David. ***

Green, John Gibson-- Returned 25 June-1798.

From Fauquier Co Tombstone Inscriptions there was a James E. Chloe in the Mt. Morris Church Cemetery . Date: 1934-1961..indicating the Cloe family may still have some of their descendants living there.

Note/DDD: Janes Cloe Simms, 110 Manor Lane, Fredericksburg, VA in Feb. 1981 wrote a short history of the Cloe family that stayed around Fauquier Co. VA./Stafford Co., VA. Her line was through James, James, Alexander born 19 Apr 1799, and married Drucilla Burroughs.*

I do not have all the dates of birth of the children of James and Elizabeth. I have only the census data on some but have date of David from his War Record App. I have Elizabeth's census data from Stafford Co 1810 and David is not there so I am assuming he may be in another household of working to help support his widowed mother. He might have been married but his is not in his own house if so.

1810 Stafford Co., VA (I am including more Census from here and showing people who are listed close to her)

Elizabeth Cloe

2 males 0-10	2 females 0-10
2 males 10-16	2 females 10-16
	1 females 26-45

The first males 0-10 is probably William and Seth.. the other two males, Alexander and James or John.. This shows all of the females of Elizabeth and James but a very slight possibility there could be a dau.-in-law here.

As David is the oldest I have listed I will start with him and see what I can find that can be pieced together to make sense. I am hoping that someone can fill in some of these missing links. I have already give you the census of Fauquier Co. re. David. I have 2 more David's that I have not found a place for but think they fit in the picture somewhere.

1840 Clinton Co., IN.
David Cloe

1 male 0-5	1 female 0-5
1 male 10-15	2 females 5-10
1 male 30-40	1 female 30-40

David Cloe b Nov. 22, 1829 Ill. d. May 26 1911 age 81 yrs 6mo 4dys bur. St. Joseph, MO.

I did not find this David listed in the Vermillion or Clark Co., ILL census, but by 1850 he could have been gone from home.. His death cert. was signed by a Mrs. Elizabeth Chapman as the person who gave the info on him. I am sure that Henry and David both had other children tan the ones listed in their households in 1850 so this one could have been enumerated in another household that was over looked.

David applied for pension for his 1812 service in the War and I will take some of the excerpts from this. He applied 1850 Vermillion Co., IL giving his age as 65 or 66, stating his name was David Cloe, Clow, or Clough, his name being spelled all three ways. He served in a Co. Commanded by Capt. Joseph Clark in a Regt. of Volunteers Commanded by Col. Dudley. He volunteered in Clark Co., KY. 1813 March 1st.

He was in a battle in which Col. Dudley was defeated and he made his way to Fort Defiance arriving in a very exhausted state and bad feet. He spent 2 to 3 month in the hospital and was ordered home when he was able to walk--He made his mark here....A deposition was made by Milton Leslie Jr. that he had known David Cloe for 15 to 18 years. He said David was and old man with a large dependent family of children, having married a second wife. At the bottom of the page was a postscript requesting mail to be sent to David Clow % Milton Leslie Danville, Ill. 1/14/1851.

April 18, 1855, Vermilion Co., IL. M. Leslie, Justice of Peace, made statements that David Clow appeared before me. David Clow age 69 ib May 29 last was a Pvt. in a Co. Commanded by Capt. Joseph Clark..ect.ect. Under the act of Sept. 28, 1850 David Clow received land warranty 18743 for 80 acres which he has since legally disposed of and cannot now return. He makes this declaration for purpose of obtaining additional land under act approved March 3, 1855..ect.ect. Deposition made by A. P. Chesley and David Morgan as to David Clow"s statements above.
Danville, IL June 4, 1870, a letter written by Wm.. C. Sanders to Commissioner of Patents Wash. D. C... He states he has an answer to application of David Clow in his possession and David Clow is now deceased. He requests description of land and to whom warrant was made..etc.etc.

The info above is sort of jumbled but it dows give some info. The 2nd marriage seems to indicate the older children of David was probably Mary Ann,(25) Margaret(21) Druzilla(24) in household of Geo. and Delilah Casiday and also I think Jefferson listed as a Pickett was in error according to info on the marriages of Vermillion Co., Ill. It is quite possible the Catherine Clow who married Joseph Jones was also the daughter of David.. At this point I have not really tried to figure out which child belonged to which. I am playing it sort of save and choosing only the ones who are listed on census. It does seem plausible that Edith was a widow when David married her in 1836.. The census do not all agree on her age. 1850..age 40 1860..age 58 1870..age 74.. So you have a choice. I wonder if anyone has looked for a 1st marriage for her?

To go on with Henry and Ann Constine (Foxworthy) Cloe, my info seems to be very sketchy. They were the cause of all this research because I was trying to see if her family would lead me to any knowledge of her parents, as I had about run out of any resources on the Foxworthy's. This is why have not taken the time to actually make any kind of records for the Cloe's. I am interested in a remote way that sounds foolish when I actually think of it. A Foxwotthy descendant tried to compile a history of the family and did very little on it when she died. I am sure she put a lot of time into it but the family seems to have almost stopped communication after a few years. She interviewed a man who had married the granddaughter of Enoch. Enoch has never been found in Iowa where this man lived and this man has not been found in Indianna where Enoch lived so I am sure he was not too intimately acquainted with him and was relying on the legends that always are passed down in all families. He made the statement that Enoch's father was named Phillip and then retracted and said maybe it was Daniel. Then he said Enoch had a sister named "Connie" and he said

Enoch's sister married a James Chloe... The lady who wrote this did not know if he meant there wee 2 sisters or if he meant one sister married Cloe.. I do not have any data on James to date so it may be another Foxworthy-Cloe marriage somewhere in the data.

I am wondering about the mother of David, Henry etc. who was she and why did she go to KY? It seems to me with her being a widow, she would not want to leave a place where she was "AT Home" to go to a strange place. Maybe some of her children had preceded her to KY. Or was it possible that she was related to some of the Foxworthy's or their wives? Apparently Henry was in VA in 1810 as he signed a lease which involved a land lease between Vincent Foxworthy and his wife, Mary, Joseph Johnson and his wife Susannah, Joseph Reed, Richard Reed, and Joseph Combs were all in this and I have interpreted it that Mary, Susannah, Richard, and Joseph Reed were all of the dame family who has inherited this land as being next to land of John Ashby's. The lease is signed by Vincent, Thomas, and Enoch Foxworthy and also Henry Cloe. This seems to indicate Henry was already a family member of the Foxworthy's but he does not show up in his own household in the 1810 census. I think he would show up in Elizabeth's house if he were still single but another thought occurred to me. I have not established the parents of Ann only to the extent that a record of death in the Co. Ray twp. one Ann Foxworthy, age 90 died April 1850...That is wrong.....It was MORGAN COUNTY...RAY TWP. I have been writing this date from memory and I have fouled it up. Anyway, to go on with the thought I had, I wonder if it might be a possibility that the Thomas in Prince Wm.. County could be the father of Ann and the household includes her and Henry..???The Reed children were children of Coleman Reed and wife Ruth- Will 1747-1748 Westmoreland Co., VA.???

1810 Prince Wm.. Co.
Thomas Foxworthy

1 male 0-10	3 females 10-16
1 male 10-16	2 females 16-26
2 males 16-26	1 female 45 up
1 male 45 up

I would have to check this over with what data the other foxworthy's have on this man as I am not sure of marriage dates of Ann and Enoch's brothers or where they were in 1810. I know that some of them went to Clark Co., KY but not sure of year they were found there. The Foxworthy's settled in Clark, Bourbon, Garrison, Mason, Mercer, Montgomery, and other counties in KY. The married into the Bridwell, Layton, Calvert, Tippet, and other VA families. We just have to sort them _____

As you can see there has to be a generation between here and our Ann and Enoch, but Who?... I think all of you have the Vermilion Co., Data Henry so I will not repeat it here but the short biography said he went to Iowa in 1855. When did Isaac and Lydia go to Iowa? Did they preceded Henry? Marion Co., Iowa has one marriage 1850. Nov. 17, .. Narcissa Jane Cloe to Wm.. Iondon. I do not know who this is. I wonder if James or John was in Iowa when the rest of them went there from IL. To get back to the Ill. Census of 1850, Elizabeth in the household of Henry, is probably the mother of Phillip age 9. Harvy age 1 is probably the son of Harvy who married 1st to Elizabeth Slinger Nov. 27 1842. She died at the age of 27 of childbirth Oct. 1849. This from the Ill. 1850 Mortality Schedule. The death date in Marion Co cemetery of Harvey T. was 20 Feb . 1904..b.Oct. 22, 1849. Elizabeth Cloe was a dependant Mother of Philip A. who died in the Civil War. She applied for a pension in Marion Co. Stating that she had not married the father of Philip and she was not now or never had been married. Philip died Sept. 5th 1863 at camp Sherman, Near Elk. River, Miss. Elizabeth died about April, 1899. We have a Philip A. Foxwotthy in our line... The Wesley and Malinda in the 1850 census are probably man and wife as the Mar. date of Wesley was July, 1850. One Wesley and a James H. Cloe signed a deposition for Elizabeth on her application for pension of Philip A.

I do not know who the Alexander Cloe..45..b. VA and Sarah 58 b. VA in the 1850 Clark Co., Ill. census are Listed in the Same Co. are a Wm. H. Cloe 21 b. Ky. and wife Lydia age 18 b. Ohio as these people do not fit into the Bible record of Alexander.

Note/DDD: There is little doubt that the above is Alexander and Sarah, Cousins that married. Alexander the son of William & Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe, and Sarah the daughter of James and Elizabeth Cloe. Wm.. H. Cloe was a son of Alexander and Sarah. Other children were: Elizabeth b. 1 Jan 1822, m. Baily Ashby; Margaret Ann b. 6 Dec 1824, m. Joseph Perkins Donovan; Francis Maria b. 26 Feb 1826, m. Dudley Shields; William Henry b. 12 June 1829, m. Lydia Ann Leffler; Delia Ann b. 22 July 1823, d. 13 Aug 1824. Alexander married a second time to Mary (Blackburn) Clow who had a son Julius C. Clow/Clough. I have not been able to establish the father of Julius however. This is my line and I have considerable on them. **

The George W. Cassaday and Delilah Cassaday in the 1850 census of Ver. Co. has Druzilla Clowe 24 b. Ky. in their household. I found these same names in the land records of Fountain Co. Indiana 1835 as well as a John Brady who was there in 1826. Is there a connection?

As I set her pecking away at this thing, I have decided that this family of Cloes are getting me confused because it is hard to keep all of the John, James, Wm., David's separated where you can tell which I am writing about. I will leave Henry here and what data I have will be on the list of death dates in the Marion Co. cemetery list I am enclosing.

John and James is very hard to find anything very conclusive about. John is listed in the 1820 census of Bourbon Co., Ky. I do not have any of the Ky. data, only the index. I do not know where he or the daughters married...daughters of James and Elizabeth, I mean. The man who sent me the Bible record said that Sarah, or Sally married a cousin Cloe and changed the spelling of the name so this means James had to have a brother somewhere....Just a thought.

Note/DDD: The family of William & Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe I believe to be: William; Pitman, probably the one in Rush Co., IN in the 1830 census; Jack; Alexander m. Sarah Cloe his cousin; Alfred m. Harried Trillet, who's family moved to Lewis Co., MO and Osborne Co., KS (I have considerable on this family); Margaret m. Josiah Snoddy and they moved to Clay Co., IN; and Emily m. James Brown and lived in Rowan and Bath Co., KY, (See the book "Brown Family History" by Ferrand. I have not found a copy of this little book but would love to have a copy of this family form it.

The family of James and Elizabeth Cloe I believe to be: David m. Fannie Dawson, 2nd to Edith Pickett; John m. ?? ; Henry m. Ann Constine Foxworthy and lived in Vermilion Co., IL and Marion Co., IA; Sarah m. Alexander and lived in Clark Co., IL; Elizabeth m Dotson Dunaway; James m. Sarah Triplett and moved to MO; Alexander m. Drucilla Burroughs and lived in Stafford Co., VA; William m. several times and lived in Jasper Co., MO and Bentonville, Benton Co., AR; Seth m. Rebecca Daugerty and lived in Harrison Co., KY; Catherine m. Wm.. Stark; and Cecie m. Joseph Stone. Note that a Priscilla Clow married a Jeptha Stone in Bourbon Co., KY.

The family of James and Mary Cloe I believe to be: William m. Elizabeth Walters; David probably the one in 1820 census, Twin twp, Ross Co., OH, probably had four sons and two daughters at least, but I do not know the names of any of them; Susanna b. 23 Sep 1759, m Daniel Sims; John b. 6 Sep 1761;James b 17 Oct 1763 m. Elizabeth; Catherine b. 17 Feb 1767, m Elijah Abbott, at one time lived near Morgan and Rowan Co., KY; Nancy b. ?? m Joshph Ashby and moved to Bourbon Co., Ky in 1817, Vermilion Co., IL in 1829; and Mary b. ?? m William Williams.*

I will go on to a little of Alexander's family. I have much more on his descendants but I will take a rain check on that and send it later. My time is so limited and I do want to get this copied and in the mail to some of you who has been so good to share what you have.

Alexander was born April[ro; 19, 1799 mar. May 5, 1821 in VA. to Drucilla Burroughs. She was born 1797.. The only burroughs I found in the 1820 census VA index was George Burroughs pg 165 a Alexander and Drucilla are in the Stafford Co., VA 1830 census but I do not have data in front of me right now.

One Alexander Cloe served in the Black Hawk War as a Pvt. 11th Co. Vermillion Co., IL, and is buried in Gordon Cemetery, Blont two.. Vermilion Co. I do not believe this to be the same Alexander.

Alexander and Drucilla (Burroughs) Cloe had 10 children:
1=John b. Mar. 11, 1822 (unmarried)
2=James H. b. Sept. 17,1823 m. Mary Edwards
3=Elizabeth b. Dec. 17 1825 m. Austin Knight
4=Alfred b. Dec 20, 1827 (unmarried)
5=Sarah b. May 16, 1830 m. Henry Gill
6=William Shepherd b. June 16, 1832 m. Hannah Catherine Stark

7=Louise M. b.July 10, 1835 m. Edward Gill
8=Mary C. b. April 29, 1838 (unmarried)
9=Charles Wesley b. June 18, 1840 m. Mary Mercer Randel

As far as I can determine, Alexander must have spent the rest of his life in VA.

Note/DDD: Also see "Cloe Genealogy" by Jane Cloe Simms, of Fredericksburg, VA. It appears that this Alexander and some of his children stayed in VA and some are in the area to this day.

Wm.. Cloe is the next to youngest son as I have him. I have his birth date as 1800. The bible records that was copied says Seth was youngest but I do not know if this meant he was youngest child or youngest son. I have in my possession, a very long narration written by the son of Wm.. who was Wm.. Henry Cloe Sr. I will try to copy some of the more important data from it. It seems to be a sort of record of the family when Wm.. Sr. was a child and concerns the trials and tribulations of the Civil War when Wm.. was very young. (I mean Wm.. Henry Sr...son of Wm..) According to the family tridition, our Wm.. Cloe married 3 Sisters named Brown. Each of them died and then Wm. married a widow with some children. (Note: My Enoch F. had a brother Thomas, who we believe married 1st to one Elizabeth Brown, this lady is found in a church record in Clark Co. KY in the southern part of the County near the Estill C. line. Estil Co. shows many Ashby's. One Elizabeth Foxworthy died Sept. 1849 Putnam Cop. IN. age 62 b. VA. This was probably the wife of the Thomas Mentioned. Putnam Co. also has marriages of one Wm.. Cloe to Mary Ann Angel 1836. One Wm.. Cloe to Louise Stark. Is it conceivable that these were widows and were nee Brown, Sisters to Wm's first wife? One Thos. Cloe married an Eliza Fulton in Putnam County and I believe this it the same person in the 1880 census of Vermilion Co., IL. So how were they related? I am inclosing Putnam Co. data.

To go on with the info on Wm.. He went to Ky. with his widowed mother. He mar. at the age of 22 and went to Ill. in 1831. He did not like it there and after a few years he moved on to southwest MO. to Jasper Co. Wm.. is son, Wm.. Henry Sr. was born Feb. 7, 1851. He does not mention any other children here. He said his father moved to Fidelity, MO. and his mother died when he was about 3 years old, so this would make the wife of Wm.. die about 1854. Wm.. H. Sr. does not mention any previous wives of his father, but at one point he does mention a half-brother, James. He does not explain. The Death register of Jasper Co. 1883-1892 lists one James H. Clow age 66y 8mo 17d; d.13/8/90; Mining, b. KY; MO 63yrs. This seems to coincide with dated of son of Alexander and Drucilla but I do not think it is their son, However, there is nothing definitely or absolute that Alexader stayed in VA. He was there in 1830 but do not know after then.

Wm.. H. Sr. mentions the other children for his father that was small during the Civil War. The were: 1. Elizabeth 2. John Tylor 3. Amos J. 4. Wm.. Henry. Wm.. Cloe married the widow of John Hickey after the death of his wife in Jasper Co. She had 3 sons, John, Middleton, and Michael Hickey. Wm.. H. also mentions the

"Hickey Bros." He names, Joshua, Middleton and Bannister. I believe these must be brothers to the Widow's dead husband.

Note/DDD: Wm.. Henry Cloe b. 7 Feb. 1800, married: 1st 1822 to ?? Brown and had a daughter Mary or Polly Ann who married James Anderson Davis; 2nd 15 May 1828 in Morgan Co., KY to Mary Brown, and they had a son Jeptha G. Cloe b. 1832 IL; 3rd 23 Dec 1836 to Mary Ann Angel and had Sally b 1837 Iowa, Millie b. 1839 Iowa and James b. 1843 Jasper Co.,MO, (Her parents lived with Wm.. and second wife after her death); 4th 19 Aug 1844 to Emily Trulove and had John b 1849 Jasper Co., MO, William Henry b 7 Feb 1851 Jasper Co, and Amos G. born 1853 Jasper Co.; 5th 2 Apr 1857 to Mary B. Hickey and had Sampson b 1865 TX and Mary b 1869 Ark.

Wm.. Cloe settled in Fedility, MO. but about 1858-59 he moved to a prairie farm about 2 1/2 miles from town. Wm.. was an old man when the Civil War came but he was taken prisoner as a Southern Sympathizer. He was released when he took the oath of Allegiance to support the Constitution and received his protection papers, but, while he was in prison, 2 of his sons, joined the Confederate Army which put Wm.. Cloe's life in very grave danger. Note: These sons are not named, but it is NOT Wm.. Henry Sr. or John Taylor Cloe as they are mentioned later as going to Texas with their mother or rather Step-Mother.

Two Union Soldiers who had known Wm.. Cloe and loved him very much was serving under Ben. Selby's Command. Their names were Major Billy Warren and John May. They came by night and pretended to arrest Wm.. but took him to safety in Ark. In Ark. he became very ill but was nursed back to health by a friend there. In the meantime the widow and the children of Wm.. believed him dead. For two years they were harassed and abused by the Union Soldiers. One of the widows small sons was killed by the soldiers and the house was burned twice besides all the other things that went on. The widow was left in MO with 3 boys and 1 girl and life became unbearable so she took these children and made a long and hazardous trip to Sherman Texas where they had friends. They had no more than arrived when Wm.. who had recuperated in Ark. made his way to the same house and a very happy reunion with the family. Later on, they moved to Bentonville, Ar. I believe Wm.. Cloe died there and probably his wife also. Wm.. Henry Cloe Sr. d. April 1, 1935. He married Georgianna Claypool (b. 1853 Ky. d. 1933).

There children: 1 Kate b 1886. Bentonville, Ark..mar. Dan _. Bohaw; 2..Pearl..b 1887 Bentonville, Ark. d. 1914... Never married; 3.. Wm.. Henry Jr...b. Sept. 29, 1889.. Mar. Katilde Munde.. Indianapolis, Ind. 4.. Sarah Francis..b. Sept. 26, 1892.. mar. Woodson McCombs; 5..Samuel Claypool.. b. April 1. 1895.. mar. Edith Hudson..; 6.. Amos G. b. ? Mar. Betty Wilson.. Their Children .. Seth, Lloyd, Verda, Lark, Emma, Opal. (I omitted the birthplace of Wm.. H. Jr's. children but they were all born Bentonville, Ar. Benton Co. I have a death cert. somewhere of a Charles Nathan Cloe, b. Benton Co. Ark. Son of James A. Cloe. I am not sure of birth date of Charles N. but I think 1886.. I will have to check this. but he died in Denton Co., Texas. This family of Cloes are probably some relation to Wm.. Henry Sr. or maybe the offsprings of some of Wm.'s first wives if he did marry the 3 sisters. One of the descendants of this family said they were related in some way to some Barr Family in Fort Worth, Tex. but I will have to find this letter. For some reason it is not in with this other "Conglomeration" of Cloe stuff.

Lee J. Cloe sent the following info on her Wm.. J. Cloe.
Wm.. J. Cloe... b.1812 VA D. 1854..Marion Co., IN m. Elizabeth Rebecca Wringer. (b. 1814 MD) had one known child, Henry Abraham Clow. b. Mar./April 23, 1850 d. April 11, 1921. Wm.. J. believed to be son of John Cloe B. 1790-1800 Ind.

1820 Index to Va. Census names a Wm.. H. Cloe..Fairfax Co., Va. ..page 62.. Who is this man? does anyone have data on him? Could he be our Wm.. or a son to old Wm.. or old David of Fauquier Co., Va? According to the account I have just given, our Wm.. was supposed to be in Ky. with his mother.
I do hope that all of these Williams have not confused everyone I should try to do this when I have the time to go into depth and detail but if I wait until then, it will never be written.

Seth, has elude me entirely, I have no info on him whatsoever. It seems to be a Cloe name as some of the younger generations have named their children Seth, but I have nothing on his existence.

> Note/DDD: Seth Cloe b. ?? Stafford Co., Va. m Rebecca Daugherty 25 Nov 1834. The resided in Harrison Co., KY and had the following family: James b. 1836 Ill.; Elizabeth b. 1838, Ky; Ann b. 1841 KY; William b. 1842 Harrison Co., KY; Francis b. 1844 Harrison Co.; Jeptha b. 1745 Harrison Co. m. Lucinda; Alexander b. 1851 Harrison Co. I believe Seth died in Harrison Co., KY.*

The daughters of James and Elizabeth probably married in KY. There is a Catherine Foxworthy listed in the 1830 census of Nelson Co., Ky. I have not identified her but it may be possible that the Kitty Cloe could be Catherine and has mar. a Foxworthy as a 2nd Husband. I do not have any census data on her, or the others in KY. I have only the Index and do not have all of the 1820 Indexes.. I loaned it out and it was not returned.. I have ordered another one so maybe I can add to what I have at a later date.

I have taken whatever info I could find from the census indexes that might in some way shed a little kind light on what someone may have in their files and can somehow connect it to make some sense. I think just in the past few weeks I have learned answers until I began to study them a little and start to put them together. It has been like I found a lot of playing early that someone has thrown to the wind and I have picked them up and later began to realize I might have a full ???? if I will just look them over.

I have written down some hap-hazard info and if I get the time I will type them up but may send them as is. Sandra Horn has been kind enough to offer to do some typing but I had everything so disorganized I thought I had better make an attempt to write it. I am not a typist and especially without something to copy.. All this rattling is that strange emptiness in the space between my ears.

I have found a little Ashby, Brady, McCoy, and Jones etc. data I have included. In Putnam Co., Ind. there is Ashby and also Brackney, not Lekney, also one Joseph Ashby mentioned. Possibly the data will connect to Vermillion Co. I found it in the History of Putnam Co.

I have many books and should make a list of them, but will look up anything for any of you that I can.

Just got a nice long letter from Marcia Fuller today and she enclosed a letter explaining Narcissus Cloe.. Written by Mrs Fred Brandes... says she was the daughter of Lydia Cloe by her first marriage to Gilbert Cloe... Now this makes sense because Marcia had already made the remark that Henry must have followed Lydia and Isaac Brady to Iowa, indicating that they probably went There before 1855. I am going to get that full deck of cards together yet!

It is late tonight and this noisy "typerater" keeps my husband awake and hard to live with if he doesn't get the rest so I will do my utmost to finish and get this on it's way to some of you who have written and maybe you can reconstruct the stuff to make sense.

Note/DDD: Rula Cash did a splendid job of trying to establish the Cloe family.

On the Research Document by Linda Cloe Sharman dated 7/23/1977---

Clow, David to Fanny Dawson 13 Nov 1816, his first wife, this is the son of James and Elizabeth Cloe.

Dunaway, Dotson to Elizabeth Clow 3 May 1819, daughter of James and Elizabeth Cloe.

Stark, William to Catherine Clow 20 May 1819, daughter of James and Elizabeth Cloe.

Brown, James to Anna Cloe 3 nov 1815, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe. They lived in Rowan Co., KY.

Snoddy, Josiah to Margaret Clow 1 Nov 1829, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe. They lived in Clay Co., IN. Her mother lived with her in her old age.

Note that the Baily Ashby, brother of James Ashby, married Elizabeth Cloe, the daughter of Alexander and Sarah (Cloe) Cloe. James and Baily Ashby were the sons of Joseph and Nancy (Cloe) Ashby. Nancy being the daughter of James and Mary Cloe.

I had better get back to bed so I can get something done tomorrow. I guess that I have rambled on long enough, but I wanted to type Rula Cash's papers so that I could follow them better. Please comment on my notes. Also I currently have the Cemetery Records of Clark Co., IL here in the Morman Library, so if you are interested in me looking for anything in them let me know.

I will close for now. The best to you always, and thanks for writing.

Sincerely,

Donald D. Dew

NOTE! 10/16/93 I found this copy and the envelope that I had intended to send it in so guess I never finished it. Will send it now. Sorry! 23

Dear Zandra,

Yes I was kind of surprised. Mostly because the Post Office forwarded your letter to me. I know that some have already been returned with a notice that the forwarding notice has expired. Please note the address change.

I was real pleased to hear from you. I have been going over some of my Clark Co. IL ancestors and their branches. I am also checking the Clark Co., IL Cem. Indexes for information that will verify what I have collected over the years. From around about ways I have seen much of the information that you sent, but some was new. I think that I will retype Mrs. Rula D. Cash's letter and include comments that I believe to be true and why.

The easiest date I have on any Cloe is the date that has been passed on to me by several of you who has corresponded with me. I do not know where this info was found, but I am assuming it is correct.

James Cloe came from Scotland 1755-1760... the first Census of Va. 1790 lists in Stafford County, 1786, James Cloe..8 whites in Household. This seems to indicate a wife and 6 children are possible.

1790 Sept. Court.. Stafford Co., VA one James Clow, Dec'd, had his will presented by James Ford, one of the witnesses.

1791 Feb. Court.. Stafford Co., Mary Clow was summoned to Court to show cause why she did not qualify to present her husband's will.

Note: It is my personal opinion that this James and Mary are probably the same person who came from Scotland and has been confused with James that married Elizabeth. The correspondent who copied the data from Alexander's Bible for me, stated that James supposedly had a brother named David and a brother named

William who went further west. As you will see from the data in Fauquier County Va. and the misc. data from other sources, I believe this man to be the father of our James (Elizabeth) and also the father to David and William of Fauquier Co. Perhaps the father of Robert and Richard Cloe who served in the Rev. and received bounty land for their service in the 1st Va. Regt. Nancy Cloe who married Joseph Ashby and Mary Cloe who married Wm. Williams are possibly his children also.

Note/DDD: While James and Mary Cloe may have came from Scotland in 1755-1760, they are found as the parents of Susanna Cloe, 23 Sept 1759, in St. Andrews Parish, St. Marys Co., MD. Likewise the records of St. Andrews Parish include a John Cloe born 6 Sept. 1761, James Cloe born 17 Oct 1763 and a Catherine Cloe born 17 Feb 1767 as children of James and Mary Cloe.

Therefore we know that James and Mary lived in MD from 1759 to 1767. William and David was probably born before this time, and may have been born in Scotland, but I have not found anything to date to indicate this. William went to IN and David to OH where both are included in earlier censuses there. I have the family of William, but have not been able to establish the family of David. ***

From Fauquier Co Tombstone Inscriptions there was a James E. Chloe in the Mt. Morris Church Cemetery . Date: 1934-1961..indicating the Cloe family may still have some of their descendants living there.

Note/DDD: Janes Cloe Simms, 110 Manor Lane, Fredericksburg, VA in Feb. 1981 wrote a short history of the Cloe family that stayed around Fauquier Co. VA./Stafford Co., VA. Her line was through James, James, Alexander born 19 Apr 1799, and married Drucilla Burroughs.*

I do not have all the dates of birth of the children of James and Elizabeth. I have only the census data on some but have date of David from his War Record App. I have Elizabeth's census data from Stafford Co 1810 and David is not there so I am assuming he may be in another household of working to help support his widowed mother. He might have been married but his is not in his own house if so.

1810 Stafford Co., VA (I am including more Census from here and showing people who are listed close to her)

Elizabeth Cloe

2 males 0-10	2 females 0-10
2 males 10-16	2 females 10-16
	1 females 26-45

The first males 0-10 is probably William and Seth.. the other two males, Alexander and James or John.. This shows all of the females of Elizabeth and James but a very slight possibility there could be a dau.-in-law here.

As David is the oldest I have listed I will start with him and see what I can find that can be pieced together to make sense. I am hoping that someone can fill in some of these missing links. I have already give you the census of Fauquier Co. re. David. I have 2 more David's that I have not found a place for but think they fit in the picture somewhere.

David Cloe b Nov. 22, 1829 Ill. d. May 26 1911 age 81 yrs 6mo 4dys bur. St. Joseph, MO.

I did not find this David listed in the Vermillion or Clark Co., ILL census, but by 1850 he could have been gone from home.. His death cert. was signed by a Mrs. Elizabeth Chapman as the person who gave the info on him. I am sure that Henry and David both had other children tan the ones listed in their households in 1850 so this one could have been enumerated in another household that was over looked.

David applied for pension for his 1812 service in the War and I will take some of the excerpts from this. He applied 1850 Vermillion Co., IL giving his age as 65 or 66, stating his name was David Cloe, Clow, or Clough, his name being spelled all three ways. He served in a Co. Commanded by Capt. Joseph Clark in a Regt. of Volunteers Commanded by Col. Dudley. He volunteered in Clark Co., KY. 1813 March 1st.

He was in a battle in which Col. Dudley was defeated and he made his way to Fort Defiance arriving in a very exhausted state and bad feet. He spent 2 to 3 month in the hospital and was ordered home when he was able to walk--He made his mark here....A deposition was made by Milton Leslie Jr. that he had known David Cloe for 15 to 18 years. He said David was and old man with a large dependent family of children, having married a second wife. At the bottom of the page was a postscript requesting mail to be sent to David Clow % Milton Leslie Danville, Ill. 1/14/1851.

April 18, 1855, Vermilion Co., IL. M. Leslie, Justice of Peace, made statements that David Clow appeared before me. David Clow age 69 ib May 29 last was a Pvt. in a Co. Commanded by Capt. Joseph Clark..ect.ect. Under the act of Sept. 28, 1850 David Clow received land warranty 18743 for 80 acres which he has since legally disposed of and cannot now return. He makes this declaration for purpose of obtaining additional land under act approved March 3, 1855..ect.ect. Deposition made by A. P. Chesley and David Morgan as to David Clow"s statements above.
David Clow received 80 acres Dec. 11, 1855 Warrant #16510 Claim #110503.
Danville, IL June 4, 1870, a letter written by Wm.. C. Sanders to Commissioner of Patents Wash. D. C... He states he has an answer to application of David Clow in his possession and David Clow is now deceased. He requests description of land and to whom warrant was made..etc.etc.

The info above is sort of jumbled but it dows give some info. The 2nd marriage seems to indicate the older children of David was probably Mary Ann,(25) Margaret(21) Druzilla(24) in household of Geo. and Delilah Casiday and also I think Jefferson listed as a Pickett was in error according to info on the marriages of Vermillion Co., Ill. It is quite possible the Catherine Clow who married Joseph Jones was also the daughter of David.. At this point I have not really tried to figure out which child belonged to which. I am playing it sort of save and choosing only the ones who are listed on census. It does seem plausible that Edith was a widow when David married her in 1836.. The census do not all agree on her age. 1850..age 40 1860..age 58 1870..age 74.. So you have a choice. I wonder if anyone has looked for a 1st marriage for her?

To go on with Henry and Ann Constine (Foxworthy) Cloe, my info seems to be very sketchy. They were the cause of all this research because I was trying to see if her family would lead me to any knowledge of her parents, as I had about run out of any resources on the Foxworthy's. This is why have not taken the time to actually make any kind of records for the Cloe's. I am interested in a remote way that sounds foolish when I actually think of it. A Foxwotthy descendant tried to compile a history of the family and did very little on it when she died. I am sure she put a lot of time into it but the family seems to have almost stopped communication after a few years. She interviewed a man who had married the granddaughter of Enoch. Enoch has never been found in Iowa where this man lived and this man has not been found in Indianna where Enoch lived so I am sure he was not too intimately acquainted with him and was relying on the legends that always are passed down in all families. He made the statement that Enoch's father was named Phillip and then retracted and said maybe it was Daniel. Then he said Enoch had a sister named "Connie" and he said

Enoch's sister married a James Chloe... The lady who wrote this did not know if he meant there wee 2 sisters or if he meant one sister married Cloe.. I do not have any data on James to date so it may be another Foxworthy-Cloe marriage somewhere in the data.

I am wondering about the mother of David, Henry etc. who was she and why did she go to KY? It seems to me with her being a widow, she would not want to leave a place where she was "AT Home" to go to a strange place. Maybe some of her children had preceded her to KY. Or was it possible that she was related to some of the Foxworthy's or their wives? Apparently Henry was in VA in 1810 as he signed a lease which involved a land lease between Vincent Foxworthy and his wife, Mary, Joseph Johnson and his wife Susannah, Joseph Reed, Richard Reed, and Joseph Combs were all in this and I have interpreted it that Mary, Susannah, Richard, and Joseph Reed were all of the dame family who has inherited this land as being next to land of John Ashby's. The lease is signed by Vincent, Thomas, and Enoch Foxworthy and also Henry Cloe. This seems to indicate Henry was already a family member of the Foxworthy's but he does not show up in his own household in the 1810 census. I think he would show up in Elizabeth's house if he were still single but another thought occurred to me. I have not established the parents of Ann only to the extent that a record of death in the Co. Ray twp. one Ann Foxworthy, age 90 died April 1850...That is wrong.....It was MORGAN COUNTY...RAY TWP. I have been writing this date from memory and I have fouled it up. Anyway, to go on with the thought I had, I wonder if it might be a possibility that the Thomas in Prince Wm.. County could be the father of Ann and the household includes her and Henry..???The Reed children were children of Coleman Reed and wife Ruth- Will 1747-1748 Westmoreland Co., VA.???

1810 Prince Wm.. Co.

1 male 10-16	2 females 16-26
2 males 16-26	1 female 45 up
1 male 45 up

I would have to check this over with what data the other foxworthy's have on this man as I am not sure of marriage dates of Ann and Enoch's brothers or where they were in 1810. I know that some of them went to Clark Co., KY but not sure of year they were found there. The Foxworthy's settled in Clark, Bourbon, Garrison, Mason, Mercer, Montgomery, and other counties in KY. The married into the Bridwell, Layton, Calvert, Tippet, and other VA families. We just have to sort them _____

As you can see there has to be a generation between here and our Ann and Enoch, but Who?... I think all of you have the Vermilion Co., Data Henry so I will not repeat it here but the short biography said he went to Iowa in 1855. When did Isaac and Lydia go to Iowa? Did they preceded Henry? Marion Co., Iowa has one marriage 1850. Nov. 17, .. Narcissa Jane Cloe to Wm.. Iondon. I do not know who this is. I wonder if James or John was in Iowa when the rest of them went there from IL. To get back to the Ill. Census of 1850, Elizabeth in the household of Henry, is probably the mother of Phillip age 9. Harvy age 1 is probably the son of Harvy who married 1st to Elizabeth Slinger Nov. 27 1842. She died at the age of 27 of childbirth Oct. 1849. This from the Ill. 1850 Mortality Schedule. The death date in Marion Co cemetery of Harvey T. was 20 Feb . 1904..b.Oct. 22, 1849. Elizabeth Cloe was a dependant Mother of Philip A. who died in the Civil War. She applied for a pension in Marion Co. Stating that she had not married the father of Philip and she was not now or never had been married. Philip died Sept. 5th 1863 at camp Sherman, Near Elk. River, Miss. Elizabeth died about April, 1899. We have a Philip A. Foxwotthy in our line... The Wesley and Malinda in the 1850 census are probably man and wife as the Mar. date of Wesley was July, 1850. One Wesley and a James H. Cloe signed a deposition for Elizabeth on her application for pension of Philip A.

I do not know who the Alexander Cloe..45..b. VA and Sarah 58 b. VA in the 1850 Clark Co., Ill. census are Listed in the Same Co. are a Wm. H. Cloe 21 b. Ky. and wife Lydia age 18 b. Ohio as these people do not fit into the Bible record of Alexander.

> Note/DDD: There is little doubt that the above is Alexander and Sarah, Cousins that married. Alexander the son of William & Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe, and Sarah the daughter of James and Elizabeth Cloe. Wm.. H. Cloe was a son of Alexander and Sarah. Other children were: Elizabeth b. 1 Jan 1822, m. Baily Ashby; Margaret Ann b. 6 Dec 1824, m. Joseph Perkins Donovan; Francis Maria b. 26 Feb 1826, m. Dudley Shields; William Henry b. 12 June 1829, m. Lydia Ann Leffler; Delia Ann b. 22 July 1823, d. 13 Aug 1824. Alexander married a second time to Mary (Blackburn) Clow who had a son Julius C. Clow/Clough. I have not been able to establish the father of Julius however. This is my line and I have considerable on them. ****

The George W. Cassaday and Delilah Cassaday in the 1850 census of Ver. Co. has Druzilla Clowe 24 b. Ky. in their household. I found these same names in the land records of Fountain Co. Indiana 1835 as well as a John Brady who was there in 1826. Is there a connection?

As I set her pecking away at this thing, I have decided that this family of Cloes are getting me confused because it is hard to keep all of the John, James, Wm., David's separated where you can tell which I am writing about. I will leave Henry here and what data I have will be on the list of death dates in the Marion Co. cemetery list I am enclosing.

John and James is very hard to find anything very conclusive about. John is listed in the 1820 census of Bourbon Co., Ky. I do not have any of the Ky. data, only the index. I do not know where he or the daughters married...daughters of James and Elizabeth, I mean. The man who sent me the Bible record said that Sarah, or Sally married a cousin Cloe and changed the spelling of the name so this means James had to have a brother somewhere....Just a thought.

Note/DDD: The family of William & Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe I believe to be: William; Pitman, probably the one in Rush Co., IN in the 1830 census; Jack; Alexander m. Sarah Cloe his cousin; Alfred m. Harried Trillet, who's family moved to Lewis Co., MO and Osborne Co., KS (I have considerable on this family); Margaret m. Josiah Snoddy and they moved to Clay Co., IN; and Emily m. James Brown and lived in Rowan and Bath Co., KY, (See the book "Brown Family History" by Ferrand. I have not found a copy of this little book but would love to have a copy of this family form it.

The family of James and Elizabeth Cloe I believe to be: David m. Fannie Dawson, 2nd to Edith Pickett; John m. ?? ; Henry m. Ann Constine Foxworthy and lived in Vermilion Co., IL and Marion Co., IA; Sarah m. Alexander and lived in Clark Co., IL; Elizabeth m Dotson Dunaway; James m. Sarah Triplett and moved to MO; Alexander m. Drucilla Burroughs and lived in Stafford Co., VA; William m. several times and lived in Jasper Co., MO and Bentonville, Benton Co., AR; Seth m. Rebecca Daugerty and lived in Harrison Co., KY; Catherine m. Wm.. Stark; and Cecie m. Joseph Stone. Note that a Priscilla Clow married a Jeptha Stone in Bourbon Co., KY.

The family of James and Mary Cloe I believe to be: William m. Elizabeth Walters; David probably the one in 1820 census, Twin twp, Ross Co., OH, probably had four sons and two daughters at least, but I do not know the names of any of them; Susanna b. 23 Sep 1759, m Daniel Sims; John b. 6 Sep 1761;James b 17 Oct 1763 m. Elizabeth; Catherine b. 17 Feb 1767, m Elijah Abbott, at one time lived near Morgan and Rowan Co., KY; Nancy b. ?? m Joshph Ashby and moved to Bourbon Co., Ky in 1817, Vermilion Co., IL in 1829; and Mary b. ?? m William Williams.*

I will go on to a little of Alexander's family. I have much more on his descendants but I will take a rain check on that and send it later. My time is so limited and I do want to get this copied and in the mail to some of you who has been so good to share what you have.

Alexander was born April[ro; 19, 1799 mar. May 5, 1821 in VA. to Drucilla Burroughs. She was born 1797.. The only burroughs I found in the 1820 census VA index was George Burroughs pg 165 a Alexander and Drucilla are in the Stafford Co., VA 1830 census but I do not have data in front of me right now.

One Alexander Cloe served in the Black Hawk War as a Pvt. 11th Co. Vermillion Co., IL, and is buried in Gordon Cemetery, Blont two.. Vermilion Co. I do not believe this to be the same Alexander.

Alexander and Drucilla (Burroughs) Cloe had 10 children:
1=John b. Mar. 11, 1822 (unmarried)
2=James H. b. Sept. 17,1823 m. Mary Edwards
3=Elizabeth b. Dec. 17 1825 m. Austin Knight
4=Alfred b. Dec 20, 1827 (unmarried)
5=Sarah b. May 16, 1830 m. Henry Gill
6=William Shepherd b. June 16, 1832 m. Hannah Catherine Stark

7=Louise M. b.July 10, 1835 m. Edward Gill
8=Mary C. b. April 29, 1838 (unmarried)
9=Charles Wesley b. June 18, 1840 m. Mary Mercer Randel

As far as I can determine, Alexander must have spent the rest of his life in VA.

> Note/DDD: Also see "Cloe Genealogy" by Jane Cloe Simms, of Fredericksburg, VA. It appears that this Alexander and some of his children stayed in VA and some are in the area to this day.*

Wm.. Cloe is the next to youngest son as I have him. I have his birth date as 1800. The bible records that was copied says Seth was youngest but I do not know if this meant he was youngest child or youngest son. I have in my possession, a very long narration written by the son of Wm.. who was Wm.. Henry Cloe Sr. I will try to copy some of the more important data from it. It seems to be a sort of record of the family when Wm.. Sr. was a child and concerns the trials and tribulations of the Civil War when Wm.. was very young. (I mean Wm.. Henry Sr...son of Wm..) According to the family tridition, our Wm.. Cloe married 3 Sisters named Brown. Each of them died and then Wm. married a widow with some children. (Note: My Enoch F. had a brother Thomas, who we believe married 1st to one Elizabeth Brown, this lady is found in a church record in Clark Co. KY in the southern part of the County near the Estill C. line. Estil Co. shows many Ashby's. One Elizabeth Foxworthy died Sept. 1849 Putnam Cop. IN. age 62 b. VA. This was probably the wife of the Thomas Mentioned. Putnam Co. also has marriages of one Wm.. Cloe to Mary Ann Angel 1836. One Wm.. Cloe to Louise Stark. Is it conceivable that these were widows and were nee Brown, Sisters to Wm's first wife? One Thos. Cloe married an Eliza Fulton in Putnam County and I believe this it the same person in the 1880 census of Vermilion Co., IL. So how were they related? I am inclosing Putnam Co. data.

To go on with the info on Wm.. He went to Ky. with his widowed mother. He mar. at the age of 22 and went to Ill. in 1831. He did not like it there and after a few years he moved on to southwest MO. to Jasper Co. Wm.. is son, Wm.. Henry Sr. was born Feb. 7, 1851. He does not mention any other children here. He said his father moved to Fidelity, MO. and his mother died when he was about 3 years old, so this would make the wife of Wm.. die about 1854. Wm.. H. Sr. does not mention any previous wives of his father, but at one point he does mention a half-brother, James. He does not explain. The Death register of Jasper Co. 1883-1892 lists one James H. Clow age 66y 8mo 17d; d.13/8/90; Mining, b. KY; MO 63yrs. This seems to coincide with dated of son of Alexander and Drucilla but I do not think it is their son, However, there is nothing definitely or absolute that Alexader stayed in VA. He was there in 1830 but do not know after then.

Wm.. H. Sr. mentions the other children for his father that was small during the Civil War. The were: 1. Elizabeth 2. John Tylor 3. Amos J. 4. Wm.. Henry. Wm.. Cloe married the widow of John Hickey after the death of his wife in Jasper Co. She had 3 sons, John, Middleton, and Michael Hickey. Wm.. H. also mentions the

"Hickey Bros." He names, Joshua, Middleton and Bannister. I believe these must be brothers to the Widow's dead husband.

Note/DDD: Wm.. Henry Cloe b. 7 Feb. 1800, married: 1st 1822 to ?? Brown and had a daughter Mary or Polly Ann who married James Anderson Davis; 2nd 15 May 1828 in Morgan Co., KY to Mary Brown, and they had a son Jeptha G. Cloe b. 1832 IL; 3rd 23 Dec 1836 to Mary Ann Angel and had Sally b 1837 Iowa, Millie b. 1839 Iowa and James b. 1843 Jasper Co.,MO, (Her parents lived with Wm.. and second wife after her death); 4th 19 Aug 1844 to Emily Trulove and had John b 1849 Jasper Co., MO, William Henry b 7 Feb 1851 Jasper Co, and Amos G. born 1853 Jasper Co.; 5th 2 Apr 1857 to Mary B. Hickey and had Sampson b 1865 TX and Mary b 1869 Ark.

Wm.. Cloe settled in Fedility, MO. but about 1858-59 he moved to a prairie farm about 2 1/2 miles from town. Wm.. was an old man when the Civil War came but he was taken prisoner as a Southern Sympathizer. He was released when he took the oath of Allegiance to support the Constitution and received his protection papers, but, while he was in prison, 2 of his sons, joined the Confederate Army which put Wm.. Cloe's life in very grave danger. Note: These sons are not named, but it is NOT Wm.. Henry Sr. or John Taylor Cloe as they are mentioned later as going to Texas with their mother or rather Step-Mother.

Two Union Soldiers who had known Wm.. Cloe and loved him very much was serving under Ben. Selby's Command. Their names were Major Billy Warren and John May. They came by night and pretended to arrest Wm.. but took him to safety in Ark. In Ark. he became very ill but was nursed back to health by a friend there. In the meantime the widow and the children of Wm.. believed him dead. For two years they were harassed and abused by the Union Soldiers. One of the widows small sons was killed by the soldiers and the house was burned twice besides all the other things that went on. The widow was left in MO with 3 boys and 1 girl and life became unbearable so she took these children and made a long and hazardous trip to Sherman Texas where they had friends. They had no more than arrived when Wm.. who had recuperated in Ark. made his way to the same house and a very happy reunion with the family. Later on, they moved to Bentonville, Ar. I believe Wm.. Cloe died there and probably his wife also. Wm.. Henry Cloe Sr. d. April 1, 1935. He married Georgianna Claypool (b. 1853 Ky. d. 1933).

There children: 1 Kate b 1886. Bentonville, Ark..mar. Dan _. Bohaw; 2..Pearl..b 1887 Bentonville, Ark. d. 1914... Never married; 3.. Wm.. Henry Jr...b. Sept. 29, 1889.. Mar. Katilde Munde.. Indianapolis, Ind. 4.. Sarah Francis..b. Sept. 26, 1892.. mar. Woodson McCombs; 5..Samuel Claypool.. b. April 1. 1895.. mar. Edith Hudson..; 6.. Amos G. b. ? Mar. Betty Wilson.. Their Children .. Seth, Lloyd, Verda, Lark, Emma, Opal. (I omitted the birthplace of Wm.. H. Jr's. children but they were all born Bentonville, Ar. Benton Co. I have a death cert. somewhere of a Charles Nathan Cloe, b. Benton Co. Ark. Son of James A. Cloe. I am not sure of birth date of Charles N. but I think 1886.. I will have to check this. but he died in Denton Co., Texas. This family of Cloes are probably some relation to Wm.. Henry Sr. or maybe the offsprings of some of Wm.'s first wives if he did marry the 3 sisters. One of the descendants of this family said they were related in some way to some Barr Family in Fort Worth, Tex. but I will have to find this letter. For some reason it is not in with this other "Conglomeration" of Cloe stuff.

Lee J. Cloe sent the following info on her Wm.. J. Cloe.
Wm.. J. Cloe... b.1812 VA D. 1854..Marion Co., IN m. Elizabeth Rebecca Wringer. (b. 1814 MD) had one known child, Henry Abraham Clow. b. Mar./April 23, 1850 d. April 11, 1921. Wm.. J. believed to be son of John Cloe B. 1790-1800 Ind.

1820 Index to Va. Census names a Wm.. H. Cloe..Fairfax Co., Va. ..page 62.. Who is this man? does anyone have data on him? Could he be our Wm.. or a son to old Wm.. or old David of Fauquier Co., Va? According to the account I have just given, our Wm.. was supposed to be in Ky. with his mother.
I do hope that all of these Williams have not confused everyone I should try to do this when I have the time to go into depth and detail but if I wait until then, it will never be written.

Seth, has elude me entirely, I have no info on him whatsoever. It seems to be a Cloe name as some of the younger generations have named their children Seth, but I have nothing on his existence.

> Note/DDD: Seth Cloe b. ?? Stafford Co., Va. m Rebecca Daugherty 25 Nov 1834. The resided in Harrison Co., KY and had the following family: James b. 1836 Ill.; Elizabeth b. 1838, Ky; Ann b. 1841 KY; William b. 1842 Harrison Co., KY; Francis b. 1844 Harrison Co.; Jeptha b. 1745 Harrison Co. m. Lucinda; Alexander b. 1851 Harrison Co. I believe Seth died in Harrison Co., KY.*

The daughters of James and Elizabeth probably married in KY. There is a Catherine Foxworthy listed in the 1830 census of Nelson Co., Ky. I have not identified her but it may be possible that the Kitty Cloe could be Catherine and has mar. a Foxworthy as a 2nd Husband. I do not have any census data on her, or the others in KY. I have only the Index and do not have all of the 1820 Indexes.. I loaned it out and it was not returned.. I have ordered another one so maybe I can add to what I have at a later date.

I have taken whatever info I could find from the census indexes that might in some way shed a little kind light on what someone may have in their files and can somehow connect it to make some sense. I think just in the past few weeks I have learned answers until I began to study them a little and start to put them together. It has been like I found a lot of playing early that someone has thrown to the wind and I have picked them up and later began to realize I might have a full ???? if I will just look them over.

I have written down some hap-hazard info and if I get the time I will type them up but may send them as is. Sandra Horn has been kind enough to offer to do some typing but I had everything so disorganized I thought I had better make an attempt to write it. I am not a typist and especially without something to copy.. All this rattling is that strange emptiness in the space between my ears.

I have found a little Ashby, Brady, McCoy, and Jones etc. data I have included. In Putnam Co., Ind. there is Ashby and also Brackney, not Lekney, also one Joseph Ashby mentioned. Possibly the data will connect to Vermillion Co. I found it in the History of Putnam Co.

I have many books and should make a list of them, but will look up anything for any of you that I can.

Just got a nice long letter from Marcia Fuller today and she enclosed a letter explaining Narcissus Cloe.. Written by Mrs Fred Brandes... says she was the daughter of Lydia Cloe by her first marriage to Gilbert Cloe... Now this makes sense because Marcia had already made the remark that Henry must have followed Lydia and Isaac Brady to Iowa, indicating that they probably went There before 1855. I am going to get that full deck of cards together yet!

It is late tonight and this noisy "typerater" keeps my husband awake and hard to live with if he doesn't get the rest so I will do my utmost to finish and get this on it's way to some of you who have written and maybe you can reconstruct the stuff to make sense.

Note/DDD: Rula Cash did a splendid job of trying to establish the Cloe family.

On the Research Document by Linda Cloe Sharman dated 7/23/1977---

Clow, David to Fanny Dawson 13 Nov 1816, his first wife, this is the son of James and Elizabeth Cloe.

Dunaway, Dotson to Elizabeth Clow 3 May 1819, daughter of James and Elizabeth Cloe.

Stark, William to Catherine Clow 20 May 1819, daughter of James and Elizabeth Cloe.

Brown, James to Anna Cloe 3 nov 1815, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe. They lived in Rowan Co., KY.

Snoddy, Josiah to Margaret Clow 1 Nov 1829, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Walters) Cloe. They lived in Clay Co., IN. Her mother lived with her in her old age.

Note that the Baily Ashby, brother of James Ashby, married Elizabeth Cloe, the daughter of Alexander and Sarah (Cloe) Cloe. James and Baily Ashby were the sons of Joseph and Nancy (Cloe) Ashby. Nancy being the daughter of James and Mary Cloe.

I had better get back to bed so I can get something done tomorrow. I guess that I have rambled on long enough, but I wanted to type Rula Cash's papers so that I could follow them better. Please comment on my notes. Also I currently have the Cemetery Records of Clark Co., IL here in the Morman Library, so if you are interested in me looking for anything in them let me know.

I will close for now. The best to you always, and thanks for writing.

Sincerely,

Donald Loden

Let me know if you find anything on John Cloe md Elizabeth Mason, parents of Louisa Jane Burgess Cloe.

Hello Susan;

I went back through old records at home last night and could find nothing substantial to prove anything for you. I show James and Elizabeth had a son John born about 1789 in Stafford County, VA. He moved with his family to Bourbon County KY about 1809 after the father died. She took all her children there following an older son David. One son Alexander returned back to Stafford Co later and have lots of info from his family. Youngest Seth later returned to Harrison Co KY and stayed there. Others eventually moved on West after her death and appear in Vermillion Co IL (Danville) and some ended up finally in Missouri by 1850. Sounds like your John might be our line since places follow. Could also be a cousin following their migration. None of the names but John rings a bell but Mason has popped up somewhere before and will keep digging.

Susan,

I was reading the note a second time you sent me. I would say yes that your Cloe's are related to my family. First the family lived in Bourbon Co KY, then to Vermilion Co IL. Several of the other families I am working on that lived in Vermilion Co. Some time during the 1840's moved to either Racine, WI or near it. Some members of the family moved back to IL . I found a few family members moving to Kansas after living in WI.

Another reason I believe you family is part of the Cloe's from orginally from Stafford Co. VA. I see that one child had the name Wesley. This is a name that is used in the Cloe family. Also one branch of the family that lived in Vermilion Co moved to Marion Co IA. I just copied some notes on the Cloe's and sent them to a man recently. So the notes should be close at hand for me. Will check the notes and get back to you. I hope with good news for you.

Hi Cousin Sherida:
I saw your CLO(W)(E) query on the Illinois US GenWeb page.
I have a CLOW/CLOE ancestor from the Danville, IL area. I surf the USGenWeb regulary looking for new clues and new cousins.
With such an unusual name I'm sure we are related!

My 4G-Grandparents were : JOHN CLOW(E) and ELISABETH MASON. Their daughter, my 3G-Grandmother, was: LOUISA JANE BURGESS CLOW(E).
She was born in BOURBON CO. KY 25Apr1822. I don't know why she was given two middle names, nor the significance of "BURGESS". I don't have any info on her siblings other that I believe a Wesley Clow I found near her in Iowa is a brother.
LOUISA JANE BURGESS CLOW(E) married JESSE MOORE ESTES 08Jul1841 in DANVILLE, IL. They lived in Racine Co. WI . then in Marion Co. Iowa.
They had 12 children, the first 10 in Racine Co., WI and the last 2 at Caloma, IA

Other Clo(w)(e) researchers think that my John Clo(w)(e) is from the line that moved to Bourbon Co. KY from Stafford Co. VA, but we have not made a positive connection.

Below are parts of correspondence from Linda , Zandra and Donald , and another Cloe researcher, contact them they may have info on your line.

We may have some information that we could exchange.

The best to you,
Donald of KS
* and Hi Susan,

I think that there is a good possibility that our lines connect, but don't know where to date. Where did you get the information in the first part of your letter? Very interesting though. I don't think that I have anything on John Clkoe b. abt 1789 Stafford Cp., VA the son of James Cloe and Elizabeth. Several of the Cloe, Clow, or Clowe families moved to Bourbon Co., KY after James died. Including some cousins and uncles.

We will have to see if we can piece it all together. Of interest is Craveen Webster Clowe, Jr. that married a Barbara Hazeltonn (she was born 1831).

Is there any more bits and pieces that you can tell me about your line?

Have to run now. Keep in touch and surely we can come up with something.

The best to you in your research,
Donald

Hi Y'all: I've found a little more on my CLOECLOW/CLOWE line, and I found a descendant right here in Houston, TX whom I hope to meet soon!

Her name is Marie Pittman, email: Mptmn@aol.com. Her line seems to come from an Edward Clow that I have no idea how he fits into the family! (Edward's migration: VA>Holmes Co/Wayne Co, OH>Fayette Co, IL. Many of the children lived in the surrounding areas, especially in Marion Co IL (Alma area). She also asked about a Joshua Clow He may be son of C. Clow of MD).

I've sent her y'alls addresses.

To refresh your memories, here is what I have on my line:

My 4G-Grandparents were : John CLO(W)(E) and Elizabeth MASON. Their daughter, my 3G-Grandmother, was: Louisa Jane Burgess CLO(W)(E). She was born in BOURBON CO. KY 25Apr1822. I don't know why she was given two middle names, nor the significance of "BURGESS". Louisa Jane Burgess CLOW(E) married Jesse Moore ESTES 08Jul1841 in DANVILLE, IL. They lived in Racine Co. WI . then in Marion Co. Iowa.

I have found some Census records:

The 1840 US Census for Danville, Vermilion Co. IL has the following CLOW families:
page 87:
David Clow (3 Male children) one male 50-60; (3 F children) one F 30-40;
page 106:
Alexander Clow (3 M children) one male 30-40; (2 F children) one F 40-50; John Clow (1 M child), 1 M 20-30, 1 M 50-60; 2 F children) 1 F 40-50;
Henry Clow (3 M children) 1 M 50-60; (2 F children) 1 F 50-60.

Jesse Moore Estes lived alone, but next to a brother, in Racine Co. WI on the 1840 Census, I don't know how he and Louisa met! They married in Vermilion Co. IL in 1841. He was a teacher and an abolitionist lecturer before their marriage, turned to farming and eventually served in the Civil War in the 11th Iowa Infantry-Union Forces.

I agree with other Clo(w)(e) researchers who think that my John Clo(w)(e) is from the line that moved to Bourbon Co. KY from Stafford Co. VA

What do you think of the Census info on the CLOW families? Ring any bells, spark any ideas? Are the CLOW families living near my John CLOW in 1840 Vermilion Co. IL his brothers? Does the name Joseph show up in any other families?

Here are bits of correspondence with the CLOW/CLOE researchers:
<<From Pat (patclow@rocketmail.com (Pat Clow) :
Hi Susan! Sorry it took this long to write back to you, but I was out of town for a couple days, then wasn't sure I could match any of our lines, but think maybe they do after all!

My father was Mereidth Clow, gf Paris William Clow 10/11/1901, ggf Jerry M. Clow 10/10/1871, gggf William Clow, and ggggf Stephen D. Clow 12/11/1832 who was born in Bass(?) County Kentucky. Can't find any listing of a Bass County, but there is a Bath which borders Bourbon County. In 1854 Stephen Clow moved to Wayne County, Iowa and stayed there until 1893 when they moved to Franklin County, Nebraska, where most of my family is from.
Stephen married Charity Sigler Clow who was from Henry County, Indiana. They had several children, two of which stayed in Allerton (Wayne County) Iowa for a long time, they were William & George Clow. They also had Eliza dates unknown, Marguerite Clow Secrest 1857-1931, and Abraham Lincoln Clow 1861-1924.

Abraham married Catherine Schenk, and they had 5 children: Catherine June Clow 1919-1929, Delbert Clow 1905-1960, Vern Clow 1901-1964, Stephen Clow, Harold Clow, dates unk.

Do any of these match yours? Would love to find a link, I have various confusing info that I can't make a lot of sense of! Hope to hear from you soon.. pat>>>>

<<From Linda: lindas@zircon.com (Linda Schultz) :
"I went back through old records at home last night and could find nothing substantial to prove anything for you. I show James and Elizabeth had a son
John born about 1789 in Stafford County, VA. He moved with his family to Bourbon County KY about 1809 after the father died. She took all her children there following an older son David. One son Alexander returned back to Stafford Co later and have lots of info from his family. Youngest Seth later returned to Harrison Co KY and stayed there. Others eventually moved on West after her death and appear in Vermillion Co IL (Danville) and some ended up finally in Missouri by 1850. Sounds like your John might be our line since places follow. Could also be a cousin following their migration. None of the names but John rings a bell but Mason has popped up somewhere before and will keep digging.">>>

<<<From Zandra (ZHorn58228@aol.com) :
"I would say yes that your Cloe's are related to my family. First the family lived in Bourbon Co KY, then to Vermilion Co IL. Several of the other families I am working on that lived in Vermilion Co. Some time during the 1840's moved to either Racine, WI or near it. Some members of the family moved back to IL . I found a few family members moving to Kansas after living in WI.
Another reason I believe you family is part of the Cloe's from orginally from Stafford Co. VA. I see that one child had the name Wesley. This is a name that is used in the Cloe family. Also one branch of the family that lived in Vermilion Co moved to Marion Co IA.">>>>

<<<From Donald: (lazbee@southwind.net) :
"Is this John the on page 134 of the 1820 KY Census, and possibly the one on the 1830 page 309? I do not have the information from the 1830 to see if he had a daughter the correct age. This John was probably the one on the Tax list 1817-1831. Did either he or his wife show up in any census of the Danville, IL area?".>>
[John and Elizabeth are on the 1840 IL Vermillion Co. IL Census and the 1850 WI Racine Co. Census, I have not checked the 1820 or 1830 KY Census yet..SF].

<<<From Sherri: (sherida@infowest.com)
"I'm sure we must be related somehow but in going through my files I can't find where. My Henry Cloe came out of Stafford Co., VA and married Ann Constance Foxworthy. But he must have ended up in Danville, Illinois for a short time before settling in Marion Co., Iowa which is where he is buried. I will keep my eyes peeled for your John. I feel sure there is a connection somewhere.">>

I would really appreciate any info (childrens names, all vital dates, places of residence, etc.) on any CLO(W)(E) family so that perhaps I can sort out all of the families and eventually positively link my John to the family of James and Elizabeth of Stafford Co. VA.
We have a great genealogy libray here in Houston, TX. I'd be glad to do reciprocal research for you on any line, any state. Please send names, dates, places!

Thanks for the information on the Cloes. I'll be glad to share what I have on them.

"History of Marion County, Illinois" (page number didn't get copied) CLOE, JAMES H.–County treasurer. Was born inClark County, Kentucky, February 2, 1827, and in 1831 was taken by his parents to Vermillion County, Illinois, where he was principally raised. From hte age of seventeen until twenty-four he was employed in a pork-packing establishment, and during the last few years he was compelled to make a trip each year to New Orleans to attend tothe unloading of port that was shipped, as was then customary, in flat-boats. It was during these trips that he conceived the idea that in his present occupation he was circumscribed that he was competent to manage for himself instead of devoting the best period of his life to building up the fortunes of others, and with promptness characteristic of the man, he made a prospective tour in Iowas in company with his brother, in 1851, and entered land in Marion county and in 1852 came to make it his home, and his means at this time were vested in thirty-six head of calves, and after they matured, were fattened and driven to Burlington, and were the second lot of cattle fattened in Marion County and sent to the eastern market. From that time until about 1873 he followed stock-buying. Since that period he has devoted his farm, comprising 360 acres, to raising Short-Horns, and he has the largest herd of thorough-breds, embracing strains of the best families, in the county. In 1879 he was elected county treasurer, an office he has filled to hte entire satisfaction of those with whom he has had business relations. He has been married three times; first to Elizabeth Keenan, in 1852; she was born in Vermillion County, Illinois. She died in 1856, leaving one daughter, Charlotte N. (now Mrs. James Rice). He second married occured in 1860 to Miss Thursa Conrey; she was a native of Edgar county, Illinois. Mrs. C. died in 1874, leaving seven children: Frank, Amanda, Ed, James H., Joh, Sylvia and Bertha. His third wife was Miss Elizabeth McKern, born in Henry county, Iowa. By this marriage they have a son, A. Neil.

Dear Zandra,

I received your name and email address from another researcher. I was told you are researching the Cloe/Clow/Clough family from Stafford Co., VA. I descend from that family as well and hope to publish a book someday on the descendants of James Cloe, Sr, who d. in Stafford Co. in 1790. My line is through his son John, then through Craven W. Clowe (ca 1796-1831), Elijah Bell Clowe (1825-1905), Virgil Clowe (1906-1988) and Richard Clowe (b. 1935), my father. There are lots of loose ends and some as yet unproven connections to the family that I would like to tie together. Can you help? What part of the family to you descend from? I would be happy to share with you whatever I have. Thank you so much.

Sincerely,
Cindy Clowe Lacy

Dear Cousins,

I am Jane Cloe Sthreshiey, great-great grandaughter of Alexander Cloe, son of James and Elizabeth of Stafford County, Virginia. I got your addresses from Susan!!

I have a few tidbits to add that may help or many only muddy the waters. In no particular order, here they are. In a letter that I have, dated 30 Dec. 1916, written from W. H. Cloe, Jr. of Bentonville, Ark.,the says, "Uncle Seth says that David went to Chillicotha, Ohio. This would be Dave #1, son of James and Mary.

Someone mentioned a missing Bible. I have seen the Bible of Alexander and Drucilla Cloe, and there is no information contained in it that we are not already aware of. In a letter I received 20 years ago, there is mention of a woman in Arizona who contributed Bible records of Alexander and Sally Clow.

As to the question about the spelling.....no one will ever solve that one!!! I have been to the Historical Society Office in St. Mary's County, MD, and have seen firsthand the entries of the four children who were registered there, and the name is spelled CLOW. In Stafford County court records for Sept. 1790, the last will and testament of James CLOW, deceased is presented in court.

There is an inventory in Fauquier County, VA, Will Book 3, p. 118-120, 19 March 1798 that mentions William Cloe.

I have been to the court house in Bourbon Co, KY, and copied the marriage records there. I have that Catherine Clow m. William Stark, 26 March 1818. This is different than the date from one of you.

Elijah Abbott, Joseph Ashby, and Daniel Simms are listed in the 1810 census for Stafford County, VA. Simms is carried on the list until 1816....am not certain of the other two.

Evidently, a rather large delegation set out for KY together, and since many of them were married in KY, one wonders if the relationships were pre-existing or forged during the journey.

We have always been led to believe that Alexander went with the rest of the family, but did not stay. There are no Cloe names on the tax list for 1817, but Alexander is there in 1818.

No one mentioned Goochland Co. VA. The Douglas Register mentions a John Cloe and Frances Crane, 9 Dec. 1773 (the birth of their first child). Those I communicated with 20 years ago felt that this was a misspelling, since there are a large number of peopel named CLOUGH in Goochland County in the 1780's

I live in Stafford County, Virginia within about 10 miles of the original home place. The government took over the land in 1942 in order to expand Quantico Marine Base to support the war effort. The people had two to three weeks to get off of their land. My father is now 91, and remember grazing cattle "over at the old place". At the time, William Shepherd Cloe's home was being lived in, so the reference had to be to Alexander and Drucilla's house. He can remember seeing the foundation and the trees that used to surround the house. Within the last 5 years, a new DEA complex has been built on the land destroying the last of the landmarks. The graves were moved to a government-maintained cemetery at Sowega, VA called Cedar Run Cemetery. I assume that they made an attemp to move all the graves, but many of them did not have head stones, and those who knew who was buried under which rock have long ago passed from this world!!

Again, my connection. I am the daughter of Richard Arthur Cloe, Jr. and Edna Lyell Hutt. My father is the son of Richard Arthur Cloe and Mary Lee Weedon. RAC is the son of William Shepherd Cloe and Hannah Kate Stark. WSC is the son of Alexander Cloe and Drucilla Burroughs. AC, the son of James and Elizabeth.

Going through this material again has been a real treat, and a much-needed respite from first semester exams (I teach high school). As far as I know, I have picked Stafford County records clean.....but with things being done electronically and old books turning up in the attics of the descendents of Damn Yankees, who knows what might turn up one of these days.

Happy ancestor hunting. I will be glad to answer any questions or receive any additional information that any of you would care to send.

Greetings to all of you, my new-found relatives!!

Jane :)

Strangest thing happened yesterday. I got a message from a genealogist who turns out to be the niece of Rula Cash who died in 1987. Do you remember, we both used to write to her back in the 80s? She and I were quite friendly before she died. I talked to her son about saving her archives as she had a wealth of research and he was very evasive and would let none of us help box it and do something with it.

Turns out they thought she had money hid all over the house because she distrusted banks so didn't want anyone getting into her files. I guess after ten years they must have decided they found it all because now they wanted to get rid of the "junk" so they sent it all off to this niece including many of the books. I'm relieved to finally know someone has it who knows what they have. She seems like a very nice lady. She offered me copies of pictures that turned out to be the ones I had sent Rusty in the first place. Rusty would have been so glad it finally rests with someone who will treasure her books and work.

But, it's a good contact to know about so I told her to keep me in her rolodex for future contacts if she needs me. She isn't directly related to Cloe.

Just thought you might find that interesting.

Virginia's "Heads of Families" in 1785 lists James Cloe as a resident of Stafford County with his wife Mary and 6 children; James Jr., William, David, and 3 daughters (females names were considered irrelevant back then). I know that one daughter was named Mary, but have no information on the other two as I am descended from the son James. Sorry I can't be of help.

My grandfather, John Cook, was born in Scotland. He was of Scotch-Irish descent. When a young man he came across the water and settled in Pennsylvania about 1770. He married Elizabeth Black, my grandmother. By this union there were born to them seven boys and three girls. The two oldest boys, John and William, were in the war of 1812. From cold and exposure they contracted diseases from which they died shortly after returning home. Their children were all born in the State of Pennsylvania. On or about 1810-12 they moved to the State of Ohio and settled in Claremont Count on a place called Bull Skin. Their nearest trading point was a place called Felicity, 27 miles from Cincinnati, eighteen miles away. I have heard my mother say that she often rode there on horseback. Larkin, Grove and James Cook settled in an early day in the state of Illinois near a place called Brooks Point, about eight or ten miles south of Danville, the county seat of Vermilion County. They all had large families but all have passed away. Some great grand children are living yet. Jackson Cook moved in an early day from the State of Ohio and settled in Fulton County, Illinois. He had a large family. I never met any of his family but one boy. I met him in 1864 in Nashville, Tenn. He was there on his way to the front. Many years afterward I heard that he had returned home from the front and was engaged in the furniture business somewhere in the western part of the state. I suppose all of the family have passed away. He had a large family of boys and girls. Rudolph Cook moved from Ohio on or about 1850 and settled in Iowa. His farm joined on the north line of the state of Missouri, west in Iowa in the southeast corner of the state, the second county from the corner. I called to see them in the fall of 1854. Their youngest child, Mary, was at home. She was about sixteen years old. I met three or four of the boys. Two of them were married. The oldest boy and girl had some years before moved to California. I suppose the family have all passed away. Elizabeth Cook, the oldest daughter of my grandfather and mother married James Watson. They always lived in Ohio and had a large family. Eliza Cook married a man named Watson, a brother of James, mentioned above. They had three children, when her husband died. She then married Leonard Trialler. They had five children, two boys and three girls. The oldest girl Mary Cox died four years ago (1911). She was the last of the family living. Mary Cook, my mother, married Joseph Crosby. He was raised in Kentucky. By this union they had nine children, five boys and four girls. Three of them were born in Ohio. The others in Indiana. They moved from Ohio to Indiana in 1833, and located in Shelby County, Sugar Creek Township near Boggstown. The oldest boy Jackson died in Ohio, three years old, with croup. The others grew to man and womanhood. They have all passed away but two. My youngest sister, Susan Frances Crosby McGregor is now past eighty years old.

I forgot to mention that my grandmother was of Dutch parentage. She could talk German when she was a young woman. She died in the State of Ohio when past seventy five years old. I never saw her. My grandfather, John Cook, died in Ohio at the age of fifty five. He contracted fever which caused his death. I have heard my mother say that at the time of his death my grandfather had never lost a tooth and did not have a gray hair. My grandfather became somewhat superstitious when on his farm in Ohio one fall he killed all the cats on the place and the next spring he lost five head of good horses, all died. He thot it was bad luck for killing the cats and he never would allow a cat killed on his farm after that.

This is written from memory from what my mother told me when a boy at home and from my own personal knowledge.

vember 24, 1832, in Rittersville, Lehigh Co., Penn. His parents, Charles and Susanna (Kemmerer) Colver, are natives of the same county and are now living near Bethlehem, Northampton Co., Penn. They are the parents of four children, viz.: Joshua J., Maria, Mrs. Feyetta Schortz (deceased), and Charles. Joshua J. Colver was reared and educated in his native county. He was married at Allentown, the county seat, on Christmas day, 1866, to Miss Matilda R. Lazarus, who was born August 15, 1839, in Northampton County, Penn. Her parents, Thomas and Polly (Bolliett) Lazarus, were natives of Pennsylvania, where the former was thrown from a buggy and killed, September, 1871, at the age of sixty-two years. His wife is still living, and is the mother of nine children, viz.: Catharine, Elizabeth, Caroline, Matilda R., Jonas E., Lovina, James, Richard and Tilghman, who died at the age of nine years. Mr. and Mrs. Colver have three sons, viz.: John T., born July 15, 1867, William H., born March 17, 1871, and Franklin B., born July 15, 1880. Mr. Colver came to this county in 1859, and the next year he and his father bought eighty acres of land. He returned to Pennsylvania the same year and in 1867 came to Bureau County to live. His farm contains 160 acres. In politics he is a Republican. Mr. and Mrs. Colver are members of the Lutheran Church.

OLIVER COOK, Princeton, was born July 26, 1842, near Racine, Wis. He is a son of John Cook, who was born April 30, 1812; he died here in 1872. Oliver Cook's grandfather was Larkin Cook; he was a native of Maryland and died in Vermillion County, Ill., to which he came about 1825. The Cook family is of Irish extraction. The mother of Oliver Cook was Eveline (Graves) Cook. She was born 1816, in Fayette County, Ky., and died in 1856, in Vermillion County, Ill. She was a daughter of James and Margaret (Blackburn) Graves, who were also natives of Kentucky. She was the mother of ten children. Of these only three are now living, viz.: Dr. F. Cook, now a resident of Sterling, Neb., Mrs. Amanda A. Holbrooks, and Oliver, our subject, who is the oldest of the three living. He was educated principally in and near Danville, Ill. He came to to this county in 1861; here he farmed one year and then, in 1862, he enlisted in the Ninety-third Regiment of Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company C. He served about eleven months, when he was honorably discharged on account of disability. From the fall of 1864 till the close of the war he served in the Forty-second Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company K, participating in the battles of Springfield, Franklin and Nashville. After the war Mr. Cook taught school for one term in this county, and then engaged in the insurance business, making his headquarters in Wyanet, Ill. In September, 1881, he came to Princeton and at present is engaged in the real estate business, dealing wholly in Western lands in Nebraska, and is agent for the Burlington & Missouri Railroad lands. Mr. Cook was married February 10, 1876, to Miss Mary E. Conkling, who was born February 5, 1851, in this county. She is the daughter of Carl and Ellen (Coulter) Conkling. Four children were the result of their marriage, viz.: Charles W., Laura E., Florence N. and an infant boy. Mr. and Mrs. Cook are religiously connected with the Presbyterian Church.

HENRY COOLEY, Fairfield, was born February 19, 1830, in Pittsford, Rutland Co., Vt. His parents, John and Amanda (Cook) Cooley, died in the same State, of which they were natives Our subject's ancestors came to America in the "Mayflower." Henry Cooley resided in Vermont till he was twenty-three years old, and then immigrated to Whiteside County, Ill., where he sold goods for four years. In April, 1858, he came to Bureau County and farmed eleven years, after which he came to Yorktown, where he has been selling goods for the last fourteen years for O. W. McKenzie, and also keeping the postoffice. Subject was married in Vermont to Frances E. Rowe, who died here November 18, 1870, aged thirty five years. She was the mother of four children, viz.: Franklin H., who was born August 11, 1859 (he married Jennie Van Drew); Mary A., August 21, 1861, wife of A. O. Hunter; John H., March 14, 1867, and Frederick A. Cooley, December 24, 1869. Franklin H. Cooley has two children, viz.: Charles H. and an infant daughter. Mrs. Mary A. Hunter has two

Just after the successful defence of Fort Sandusky by Maj Geo Croghan countering the British threat to WH Harrison's base at Lower Sandusky. On 10 Sep Oliver Hazard Perry gained control of Lake Erie, and immed on 12 Sep Harrison w 4500 men embarks at Fort Malden to Amherstburg. On 2 Oct Harrison begins the pursuit of Proctor w 3500 men, leaving the rest (2000?) as garrison at Detroit under Brig Gen Duncan MacArthur. The Battle of Thames was fought on 5 Oct with US losses of 7 k 22w (5 of whom later die).
4 Oct 1813 Rudolph is reported as having deserted. As this is after the Battle of Thames where the Indian (to OH) threat was wiped out this desertion is after or with the end of active service on the OH, IND Terr. front. also Rudolph's brother William was left behind sick at Lower Sandusky. Their unit was stationed on garrison duty at Fort Shelby, MI, presumably near Detroit. Prob Rudolph and the 2nd OH were at Amherstburg, poss also the Battle of Thames, but more likely left with the Detroit forces. See notes for brother William Cook. Also note that they both enlisted for the standard militia enlistment of 6 months.

1864 Sarah Rebecca says her father sold out in 1864 intending to relocate to Fulton Co, IL [dau Margaret Kennedy there; also a younger brother Jackson Cook is living there - this is something Alfa and Gaylord had overlooked]. NB repetitive pattern - check out where possible the areas where all relatives are living. When they arrived they found the country not to be as expected, went back and spent the summer with the John Cook family (his son).
Fall 1865 sells IA land for $3000, buys land in Wyaconda @ $1200 for 60 acres, plus $1200 for stock and grain on hand.[per Lafe in 1866] 1864/5 Wyaconda, Scotland Co, MO just south of Milton, 3 mi away from their original farm per dau Margaret.
3 Apr 1867 Sarah Rebecca writes that Father has not done a days work in the fields for several years. If she is correct in this then he probably stopped actively farming at or about the time of the move to Wyaconda. Son Wm has taken over the management of the family farm. Wm is the 11th child of 14, and the youngest of the 7 boys.

6 Apr 1869 dies in Wyaconda at 2:00 pm.

John Cook

Zandra Horn has a birth date of 1797 in PA. Don't know if this John cook is the same one as the one who is supposed to have died in the 1812 War. She also has either that he died in 1860/70 in Fulton Co, IL, or that he died in 1860 at age 70 - which would place his bdate at 1790 which better agrees with my dates.
Crosby mss. which is contemporary states that the Jackson Cook family lived in Fulton Co. IL. I wonder if there is a confusion between Jackson and John Cook.

William Cook

4 Sep 1813 William enlisted in the 2nd OH militia Regt with his brother Rudolph. (See notes under Rudolph.) William is reported sick and absent and to be at Lower Sandusky Base, in the Detroit muster roll to 2 Mar 1814, with his service expiring the next day on 3 Mar 1814. From the family mss memoir of Joe Crosby it was reported that 2 of the sons served in the 1812 War and that they both died shortly after returning home. It is very likely that William actually returned home before the expiration of his enlistment with the aid of his brother Rudolph, hence Rudolph's desertion. Here is an instance of a family duty taking priority over an official and legal duty.

Dear Ms. Horn:

Enclosed you will find the obituary of George W. Cook. I did not have the death date for Larkin Cook the day I was at the library so did not get his obituary, but have since found it so will get it for you the next time I'm in Canton. You asked for the obituary for Nancy Graves. Since she died so early (1859) there wouldn't be one here in Fulton county. The early papers very rarely gave any death notices even if they died here and since she died in Vermilion county I'm sure there wouldn't be any. I also checked for an obituary for Mary Cook in 1881 and could find none in the Canton Register.

I checked the following marriage records: Levi Graves--no record; John Larkin--no record; I did find records of the following:

James Cook to Nancy Ann Hutcheson Bk. D. p. 28, cert. # 150; married Sept. 6, 1863 by G.W. Conelly, J.P.;

James Cook to Martha Mackey Bk. B. p. 338, cert. # 325; married Dec. 27, 1856 by Caleb Foster M.G.;

Washington Cook to Isabel Ballard Bk. D. p. 118; cert. # 63; married Feb. 24, 1868 by G.W. Conelly J.P.;

John W. Youngman to Ellen Cook Bk. D. p. 14, cert. # 152; married Aug. 14, 1862 by G.W. Conelly, J.P.;

The James Cook who was married by G.W. Conelly is probably the one you're looking for since the rest of the family was married by him! I also had looked for a marriage of Newell Cook and found none.

The death certificate for Larkin Cook gives the following information.

Larkin Cook, resident of Rt. 6, Canton, IL died at Canton May 4, 1932; widowed; wife's name--Josephine Bressler; he was born Mar. 1, 1849 in St. David, IL; retired; father's name--John Cook born in Ohio; mother's maiden name and birthplace unknown; buried in Shields Chapel cemetery (Buckheart twp.); cause of death--chronic interstitial nephritis and urema; R.H. Maguire of Canton, M.D.; undertaker--John Murph of Canton; informant--Charles E. Cook of Bryant, Il;

I tried to find a death record for Ellen Youngman, but could not. I checked from our earliest 1877 up to 1922. I noted that in George's obit that he had only one brother living in 1922.

I ran out of time so did not look further for d.c's for Newell or James. I could not check for a marriage for Eliza because our marriage index is by male only. OR BARBARA

I checked all three of our old county histories for sketches on the Ballar Cooks, Youngmans, etc., but could find none.

This concludes this report. I will wait to hear from you before proceeding further.

Yours truly,

Betty Gibboney

LARKIN COOK I

Larkin Cook I. son of John Cook, was born in Pennsylvania about 1786. He came from Ohio where his father had settled. with two of his brothers, James and Greenberry, about 1830-31. The date of settlement is fixed by the date of patent grant taken from land records in the court house at Danville, Illinois. There could have been an earlier grant, but as I have lost some of my notes this is the earliest date I have.

He was married three times, first to a Boice, then to a Woodbury, and third to a Sally Brown. He died Feb 23, 1862 at Westville, Illinois.at the age of 75 years and 5 months. His wife, Jane, who died Jan 10. 1850, and two sons are buried in the same grave yard. I visited this grave yard about 1929-30. It is an old deserted grave yard east of Westville, Illinois. It had been fenced in by the relatives of those who lay there and anyone who did not contribute to the fence their relatives were left outside the enclosure. Larkin Cook and his family graves were near the stile by which you entered. To get there we went through the grounds of the old Brooks Point schooland over numerous fences and through undergrowth tangles. It was quite a distance from any highway. I suppose the road which originally led into it had been closed for many years.

Larkin Cook I had a large family. My grandfather, James Cook was his son. My father, Clarles Tilton Cook, was the youngest son of James, and next to the youngest child. He was born in 1857 and had two brothers in the Civil War, one of whom was killed in the war.

LARKIN COOK II

Larkin Cook II was the youngest son of Larkin Cook I. He married a sister of Lee Graves' wife. This information was furnished by my uncle and I do not know who Lee Graves or his wife were. However the old Graves house on Georgetown Road, south of Westville was a familiar sight of my childhood. It was torn down sometime in the 1950's and was well over a hundred years old at the time. It had not belonged to the Graves family for many years.

During the grasshopper plague of 1873 Larkin Cook II took a carload of supplies to the people of Coffeyville, Kansas. He had two boys, names unknown, who went to Iowa and then to Montana. He also had two girls, names unknown.

Your Larkin Cook could be the son of James who came to Illinois with Larkin I and Greenberry. I never got a list of the James Cook I family, but it is likely that he could have had a son Larkin. They seemed to name their children after each other. I had a run on Greenberry Cook's family. I remember that two of his granddaughters visited my mother in 1930 and we discussed the family then.

I might suggest that if you think your Larkin Cook was James Cook I son that you run an ad in the Danville Commercial News. It is read all over the county and you might get some information that way.

Dear Zandra.

I must apologize for the lengthy delay of nearly a year in my response. Yes I am interested in whatever you know. When did your family reach C.A? Rudolph D. Cook arrived in the 1850s. I believe that somewhere I have some info on the parents as Uhz Black, will look for it. I think that we should be able to find something in the records of early Washington Co, PA - this is Fort Redstone Presbytry area. I do have more info on John Cook the founder so to speak just not in the machine I guess. Will also have to dig that up now that I'm not quite so busy.

sincerely,
